DAGENHAM COUNCIL FINANCE.

Expenditure Reduction.

The abstract of accounts published by Dagenham Council this month contain a number of interesting facts, chief among them being that there was an appreciable reduction in expenditure in the year ending March this year, as compared with the previous year.

Last year, the Council spent £583,937 as compared with £595,871 in 1931/32, when two half-yearly rates totalling 15s. in the £ were levied. Last year's expenditure was met by a 14s. 6d. rate, which produced £308,386 as against £298,633 produced by the 15s. rate. The increase in the amount is accounted for by the continued increase in the rateable value of the district.

For the year ended March, 1933, precepting authorities required £177,457 as against £177,859 the previous year, and £188,995 in 1930/31.

The rate of 14s. 6d. was made up as follows: Dagenham Council 5s. 1.9d.; Essex County Council, 7s. 9.4d.; Metropolitan Police, 11.2d.; South Essex Assessment Committee, .2d.; Romford Joint Hospital Board 7.3d.

For the year under review, after deducting capital receipts and sums charged to revenue, the net capital expenditure to be raised by loan was £107,990. The principal items were as follows:—New sewage works, £53,363; salvage plant £7,873; parks (various items), £6,390; highways and bridges £20,131; Central Park Housing Scheme, £16,426; Small Dwellings Act (advances), £13,718.

Mr. E. H. Fordham, of Upminster, has been appointed station-master at East Horndon. Mr. Fordham started on the old London and Tilbury Railway, and has been at Upminster for ten years, having previously been stationed at Plaistow.

SCOUT NOTES.

The Younger Generation.

Wolverhampton has just had a "Boy Week," in which forty-three organisations, including the Boy Scouts, took part in an endeavour to bring work for the social welfare of boys and youths to the notice of the public.

The Bishop of Lichfield gave an address at a great combined service. He said that there was a great deal of nonsense talked about young people. On the one hand, there were old fogies who said, "Things are very different to-day compared with when I was young. I don't know what the present generation is coming to. We were not like that; we were much better people." On the other hand, there were people who said, "Everything depends on the young generation. We old people are washed out. The whole weight of the world to-day is upon youth. They have the wise heads; they get things done."

"That is complete nonsense," the Bishop said. "The truth lies between the two, although it is undoubtedly true that a good deal does depend upon the young people to-day, and more will depend on them in the future." He urged the boys to develop strength of mind and character, which was the power to say "Yes" and "No" at the right time. He described as nonsense the habit of those people who describe the Scout Movement and similar movements as military.

Sunken Car Rescue.

The Chief Scout, Lord Baden-Powell, has awarded the Bronze Cross, the highest gallantry award of the Boy Scout Movement, to Rover Scout J. A. Stewart of the 1st North Berwick Group for his very gallant action in rescuing from drowning a woman and her two children who were trapped in a motor car which had fallen in North Berwick harbour last month.

Mr. Jackson Russell, of Dirleton, was moving his saloon car, with Mrs. Boyd and her two children, Patricia and Thomas, as passengers, from the public parking place at North Berwick harbour, when, for some unknown reason, the car leapt forward instead of reversing. The car plunged into the harbour which was nine feet deep at the time. Stewart, who was standing near by, rushed forward, and waiting only to remove his coat and shoes, dived in. The wheels of the car were uppermost, and he had great difficulty in finding the doors owing to the thick mud which had been stirred-up. He eventually located a door and managed to drag it open, despite the pressure of the water. The boy managed to cling round Stewart's neck with his sister in his arms, and he brought them to the surface and handed them over to people in a boat. Mrs. Boyd managed to get through the door to the surface. Although feeling the effects of the oily and muddy water, Stewart went in again to lend a hand to the other rescuers who were attempting to extricate Mrs. Russell, the driver. He fastened a rope to the axle and with the help of a motor boat the car was turned on its side. Unfortunately, by the time Mrs. Russell was extricated she had succumbed.

The Rev. E. S. Gray has resigned the pastorate of Buckhurst Hill Baptist Church.

STATION TO BE REBUILT.

Ambitious Changes at Fenchurch Street.

Fenchurch-street Station is to be entirely remodelled and enlarged.

The station, which is owned by the L.N.E.R. and serves as the terminus of their suburban lines from and to the Blackwall, Bow and Stepney districts, is also used by the L.M.S. Railway for the very heavy suburban traffic from the Southend-on-Sea, Tilbury and Shoeburyness areas.

Engineers of the L.N.E.R. will be responsible for the scheme, and when it is completed considerable augmentation of train services will be possible. Owing to the magnitude of the task, the public who use Fenchurch-street Station are advised that a certain amount of delay to trains from time to time is inevitable.

The scheme involves comprehensive alterations to the track leading into the station for a distance of half a mile. It includes considerable strengthening and renewal of bridges, the reconstruction of platforms and the provision of a subway to give access to the new platforms from John-street.

The existing tea room, telegraph office and bookstall in front of the present platform barriers will be removed, thus considerably extending the area of the concourse. The refreshment room will be enlarged to compensate for the removal of the tea room on the platform.

COLOUR LIGHT SIGNALLING.

An important part of the scheme, which will enable the station to be used to its fullest capacity, is the provision of colour light signalling, to extend from the terminus to Gas Factory Junction, where the L.M.S. line joins up with the L.N.E.

Contracts for various phases of the work have been let as follows:—

Alterations to Royal Mint-street East warehouse and Royal Mint-street goods depot: Messrs. Chessums, Ltd., Imperial Works, Portland-road, Tottenham, N.

Renewal of steel superstructure carrying the tracks in front of the Royal Mint-street East depot: Messrs. Fred Mitchell and Son, Ltd., City-road, Manchester.

Renewal of bridges over Minories and Vine-street and reconstruction of bridges over Coopers Row and Crutched Friars: The Cleveland Bridge and Engineering Co., Darlington.

The whole of the scheme will be carried out under the direction of Mr. C. J. Brown, M.Inst.C.E., engineer for the Southern Area, L.N.E.R.

STATION HISTORY.

Fenchurch-street Station stands within the boundary of the City of London in a side street connecting Fenchurch-street with Hart-street and Mark-lane. Close at hand are the London offices of all the principal shipping lines of the world, the Baltic Exchange and numerous marine stores, whilst in the rail direction London Docks are reached almost immediately; the Mincing-lane tea and rubber markets, Leadenhall meat market, Mark-lane corn exchange, Eastcheap butter market, and Billingsgate fish market are all close at hand.

The "London and Blackwall Railway," originally the "Commercial Railway," was opened on July 6th, 1840, from Blackwall to the Minories, and extended to Fenchurch-street on August 2nd, 1841. The line eventually became merged into the Great Eastern system and is consequently now part of the L.N.E.R. Since 1876 the London, Tilbury and Southend Railway, now L.M.S., have by agreement with the owning company, used Fenchurch-street as the London terminus of their Southend service.

The original Blackwall line, about 3½ miles long, was in its earliest days worked by stationary engines, a rope attached to the carriages being wound on to large drums at each end of the line. One of the first efficient electric telegraph instruments, introduced by Messrs. Cooke and Wheatstone, was installed at the opening of the line. The line was immediately popular and in the first year the average number of passengers daily was 5,000; to-day approximately 50,000 passengers, 300 passenger trains and 50 empty carriage trains form an average day's business, whilst during the summer season from 5,000 to 10,000 excursionists travel from Fenchurch-street to Southend and back each Sunday.

The terminus has been enlarged from time to time, the last improvements being made last year when the L.N.E.R. and L.M.S. booking offices were amalgamated and the parcels office transferred from the high level to a more convenient position on the ground floor. The alterations now to be effected are on a much larger scale and amount to a virtual reconstruction of the station interior as well as the track outside.

ILFORD SILVER PRIZE BAND.

Dear Sir—May I be allowed to correct the Social Column paragraph in last week's "Recorder" referring to the new band for Ilford. The writer is in error in mentioning the "Late Ilford Silver Prize Band." This band has never ceased to exist and is still so registered with the National Brass Band Association, it having only added "St. John Ambulance" to its title. It has a full membership and is doing exceedingly well, is highly popular at concerts and with football enthusiasts, and in fact, from what one hears, is as much a feature nowadays as the match.

Mr. E. H. Allder was its conductor up to early 1933, when he resigned. The band did not then automatically cease to exist, which seems to be inferred. It will be recalled that this band won third place in the Section C, Junior Shield A contest at Crystal Palace, 1932, this under Mr. E. H. Allder's leadership. As a result it should have been moved up to Section B but missed this section and was put up to Section A instead. This speaks very highly for the band's ability, and also for the enthusiasm and team work of the members.

I am delighted to say, and our many supporters will be pleased to learn, that under the conductorship and training of the bandmaster, Mr. T. Doughty, A.N.C.M., the band only just missed being placed in prize position, this against 23 other bands, many of whom were past Shield Champions.

Ilford will be definitely represented at the East Ham Band Festival by the Ilford (St. John Ambulance) Silver Prize Band.—Yours faithfully,

JAMES ANDREWS,

DEATH AFTER TAKING TABLETS.

Young Wife's Misadventure.

The death of a young Ilford wife after taking certain tablets was investigated by the deputy coroner (Mr. H. J. Jefferies) at an inquest at Romford on Wednesday.

The dead woman was Mrs. Dorothy Edith Baucett, aged 24, of 20, Milton-crescent, Ilford, and she died in Oldchurch Hospital on Saturday.

The husband, Reginald William Baucett, a signmaker, said his wife took certain tablets prescribed by the doctor in order to correct functional irregularities. Witness bought a box of a different type and after his wife had taken a number of these over several days she became ill. A doctor was sent for and she was sent to Oldchurch Hospital.

Dr. W. S. O'Loughlin, of Oldchurch Hospital, said Mrs. Baucett was admitted on October 6th in a semi-conscious condition, and she died early the following day. A post mortem examination showed no external marks of injury. The condition of the stomach was consistent with having taken a dose of some irritant poison. The capsules in question were prescribed by practitioners. Death was due to acute dilation of the heart following a dose of some irritant poison.

The coroner recorded a verdict in accordance with medical evidence, stating that he was satisfied death was due to misadventure.

PRESENTATION TO MR. J. SAVAGE.

Warm Tributes from London Grocers.

Mr. James Savage, of 17, York-road, Ilford, who is honorary secretary of the Ilford Grocers' Association, was at a meeting of the Greater London Council of Grocers' Associations, of which he is treasurer, presented with a handsome dining room clock, suitably inscribed, and Mrs. Savage was given an umbrella.

The president (Councillor Harper, Fulham), making the presentation, said they all knew the value of the work of their treasurer. The gift came from all the members, and was offered as a token of the sincere regard and affection in which Mr. Savage was held by them all.

Councillor A. E. Cobbin (Mayor of Ealing) said he was pleased to have taken part in getting together the presentation. It was a reward for hard work and he was sure the gift would be appreciated far beyond its intrinsic value.

Mr. Savage had been called upon to discharge a most difficult task since the inception of the London Council of Grocers Associations and they were pleased to know his task was now much easier.

Acknowledging the gift, Mr. Savage said it was 21 years ago this month that he walked out of the London Hospital after a severe illness, and he felt he had been preserved for something. If that something was to be of service to the Grocers' Association throughout London, and to receive from them that token of goodwill and fellowship, then he was not preserved in vain.

RING VANISHES AFTER FRIENDS' VISIT.

Accused Woman Says She Found It, But Is Fined.

A diamond ring which disappeared from a Dagenham house following a Sunday evening visit by a woman friend of its owner, and her husband, was the subject of a charge at Stratford Police Court yesterday (Wednesday).

Mary Amelia Dorrington, a married woman, aged 30, of 106, Grafton-road, Dagenham, was charged with stealing a ring, value £4 15s., from a bedroom at 19, Pasture-road, Dagenham, the property of Dorothy May Baker.

She was further charged with receiving the ring well knowing it to have been stolen. She pleaded not guilty.

Detective-Sergeant McCarthy gave evidence that he called at the accused's house on Monday, and questioned her about the missing ring. He told her that it had come to his knowledge that she had pawned a ring during last August, and she replied, "Yes. I found it in a bag in Becontree-avenue, and pawned it for 14s."

Witness later visited a pawnbroker at Hoxton, and saw a ring which was identified by the prosecutrix as hers. The prisoner was arrested, and said, "I did not steal it."

INVITED TO TEA.

Mrs. Baker told the Bench that she and her husband accepted an invitation to tea with the prisoner and her husband, in August. The same evening, the accused and her husband visited her own home, where they played cards.

During the evening witness went upstairs with her husband and put the baby to bed, and while in her bedroom, she removed her ring and wrist watch and put them in a case on the dressing table.

While prisoner and her husband were there, they both went upstairs alone, and would have to pass the bedroom.

A few days later, witness found that the ring was missing. She thought it must have been stolen, but did not go to the police until last Thursday.

Evidence was also given that the ring was pawned on the day following the accused's visit to Mrs. Baker's house.

The accused maintained that she found the ring, and pawned it the same day. She did not know the prosecutrix had lost a ring until two days later, and did not tell her of her discovery, though she admitted she was "silly" not to have done so.

Dorrington was fined 40s., and given the alternative of 14 days' imprisonment. The pawnbroker was ordered to return the ring to its owner.

FIVE HURT ON ILFORD ROADS.

One in Eastern Avenue.

There were fewer road accidents in Ilford during the past week than for some time, only five persons receiving injury and two of these were hurt through falling.

On Thursday afternoon, Charles King, of 20, Keswick-gardens, Ilford, came into collision with a motor lorry while motor cycling in Eastern-avenue near Shenstone-gardens. He hurt his head and left leg.

James Walton, of Somerton, Oxford, a motor cyclist collided with another motor cycle in Green-lane on Sunday and received injuries to the head.

George Doughty, 57, Heath-road, Chadwell Heath, was knocked down by a motor car near the Seven Kings bus garage on Monday and had his face badly hurt. He also suffered from concussion.

In Ilford Broadway on Tuesday, Charles Johnson, 18, Merton-road, Barking, tripped over a kerb and damaged his ankle and in the evening of the same day Evelyn Dann of 38, Crown-road, Barkingside, fell while mounting a bus in Cranbrook-road, and injured her left side.

All the injured persons were taken to the King George Hospital.

THE BEST SHOWS NEXT WEEK.

"THIS WEEK OF GRACE."

WHETHER or not one is a patron of the music hall it is impossible to resist Gracie Fields, for her warm-hearted personality makes itself felt with tremendous effect and endears her to any audience.

She is without doubt the greatest English entertainer of to-day and when, as in her latest picture, "This Week of Grace," she is allowed full rein to her talents and surrounded by a star cast, the reception by the audience is a foregone conclusion.

In spite of the fact that Gracie Fields is a host unto herself, she has the support of an unusually strong cast. Douglas Wakefield and Frank Pettingell are two comedians guaranteed to convulse any audience, whilst John Stuart and Henry Kendall provide the more serious and romantic side of the acting.

From every possible angle of approach "This Week of Grace" is entertainment. There is Gracie Fields and all that she has to offer; there is comedy; romance; a hint of drama and a story which is admirably suited to the style of the star and her Lancashire humour. The film has been lavishly mounted and the production is well up to the best American standards.

"THE KID FROM SPAIN."

THE "Kid From Spain" is the annual screen song-and-dance comedy of Eddie Cantor, succeeding his "Palmy Days" of last season and "Whoopee" of the year before. Eddie makes but one picture a year, saving his energy, his voice and his laughs for a single big effort.

"The Kid From Spain" is the story of a lad, who, getting kicked out of school with his room-mate, gets involved in a bank robbery and escapes to Mexico disguised as Don Sebastian II, the famous bull-fighter. He accepts the acclaim of a great fete in his honour, trying desperately to maintain his masquerade until the minute he is forced into the arena to fight the four bulls in the thrilling climax of the picture.

For the beauty and colour of the arena and for the gala fiesta that precedes it, Goldwyn marshalled together seventy-six of the most beautiful girls. Song, dance, music, as well as laughter, bring them into the picture and take them out.

Eddie Cantor's songs get their refrain from the effervescent, bouncing comedienne, Lyda Roberti, who seconds his comedy through the story. Others in the cast are Robert Young and Ruth Hall, John Miljan, Carrol Naish and Stanley Fields.

"YES, MR. BROWN."

JACK BUCHANAN is unquestionably the most charming and popular of Britain's leading film stars. Always debonair, even when putting over the most farcical comedy, he compels interest with his virile personality and natural acting.

In every one of the films in which he has so far appeared Jack Buchanan is the centre of attraction, although in "Yes, Mr. Brown," his latest film musical comedy, he is supported by a splendid cast including Elsie Randolph, partner in many of his most popular stage shows, Margot Grahame, a beautiful blonde, Hartley Power, famous actor, and Vera Pearce, plump and pretty and light as a feather in the riotous burlesque dance she does with Jack in this production.

BILLY COTTON,
the famous conductor, who is to appear with his band at the Super Cinema next week.

"Yes, Mr. Brown," gives Jack Buchanan plenty of scope for his expert dancing and fascinating crooning of the principal numbers that are already so popular throughout the country. There is a story full of comedy complications, but the essential thing is that Jack stars (he also directed), so what more can you ask?

"THE MIDSHIPMAID."

GAY, irresponsible nonsense is brought to the screen by "The Midshipmaid," a Gaumont-British picture. It is a naval comedy, and tells of the visit of a Naval Economist to the Fleet at Malta. Unfortunately for the success of his plans, the pompous old boy (Fred Kerr) is accompanied by his daughter (Jessie Matthews).

While he is looking into matters of administration, with a view to applying the economy axe to which he plays lip service, his daughter is breaking hearts in the ward room. For his benefit a ship's concert is organised, and all the fun of the fair grows out of this endeavour to provide something that is really economical. It is all very good fun and bright entertainment, to be recommended as a first-rate cure for the blues.

"THE BELLS."

IT was really a whim on the part of Sir John Martin Harvey to revive this famous old melodrama by Leopold Lewis. He did it to please himself. In doing that he has pleased an enormous number of people. His production at the Savoy Theatre is an event. One goes not to see the play so much as Martin Harvey, for his acting as Mathias the Burgomaster is superb. It is very easy to cross the borderland of melodrama into farce, but his genius keeps the play within its true limits.

This is especially so in the second scene of the last act, wherein Mathias dreams that he is charged with the murder he had committed fifteen years before; and, being thrown into a hypnotic trance, re-enacts the crime and signs his confession. The story becomes intensely moving as it speeds to its climax, but against a background darkly dramatic there are incidents in light relief, and these are handled, like the play as a whole, with consummate skill.

Martin Harvey is handsomely supported by the rest of the company, and the result is delightful entertainment.

"THE GHOUL."

"THE Ghoul" tells a thrilling yarn of a macabre-like professor, with a morbid interest in "heathenish" ceremonies. He dies after threatening to return if certain rites are not faithfully observed, one involving the burial with him of a jewel stolen from an idol.

Several crooks are after the precious stone, and this leads to exciting happenings, particularly on the night that the professor does rise from his Egyptian tomb, looking sufficiently ghoulish to strike terror into the heart of the toughest crook.

Boris Karloff, famed for his nightmarish roles, makes an exceedingly grim-looking figure of the professor, and he has a strong supporting cast in Dorothy Hyson, Harold Huth, Cedric Hardwicke, Anthony Bushell, Ernest Thesiger and D. A. Clarke Smith.

THE BIG SIXTEEN.—Billy Cotton's Band are to provide the interlude in the programme at the Super Cinema next week. The musicians are becoming widely known as "The Big Sixteen" because of the original treatment they give to well-known numbers.

Where Shall We Go To-Day?

THE films showing locally to-day (Thursday), Friday and Saturday, include some of the latest important releases:—

SUPER CINEMA.—"Cavalcade" (Diana Wynyard, Herbert Mundin, Clive Brook and Una O'Connor), from the great play by Noel Coward. Also a full supporting programme.

COLISEUM.—"The Warrior's Husband" (Elissa Landi and Ernest Truex), a delightful comedy full of entertainment. Also, "Trick for Trick" Ralph Morgan and Sally Blane), a gripping drama.

HIPPODROME.—"Cynara" (Ronald Colman and Kay Francis), which answers the question, should a wife forgive her unfaithful husband? Also "Beware of Woman" (Jack Hobbs) a breezy story on original lines. On the stage, the Geddes Bros., les 4 Paulettes, the Pickford Sisters and the Hippodrome band.

ASTORIA, SEVEN KINGS.—"Fra Diavolo" (Laurel and Hardy), their latest and most ambitious full length comedy. Also, "Radio Parade," which brings all the British radio favourites to the screen.

CAPITOL, BARKING.—"Cynara" (Ronald Colman, Kay Francis and Phyllis Barry), based on the dramatic novel "The Imperfect Lover." Also "The Phantom Broadcast" (Ralph Forbes and Vivienne Osborne).

REGENT, BECONTREE.—"Cynara" (Ronald Colman and Kay Francis), Colman at his best in a great human drama. Also, "Elmer the Great" (Joe E. Brown), a lively comedy. On the stage Olly Aston and his 1933 band.

Chigwell News.

AN EFFICIENT SOCIETY.

Gardeners Entertained at Manor Hall.

The Manor Hall, Chigwell, was filled to overflowing on Wednesday night when the Chigwell Horticultural Society held their annual prize-giving ceremony and entertainment.

Councillor W. E. Smith presided, and was supported by Mr. J. Sanders (president) and Mrs. Sanders, Mrs. W. E. Smith, Councillor J. Wiseman, Mrs. R. R. Wilkins, and Mr. W. Lamb.

A full list of prize and cup winners was published in the "Recorder" recently.

The awards were distributed by Mrs. Sanders, who was presented with a handsome bouquet by Miss Phyllis Lamb.

After thanking Mrs. Sanders for her services, Councillor Smith went on to say that the wonderful success of the Society was chiefly due to the untiring labours of Mr. Sanders, who had been their president for five years. He was happy to say that Mr. Sanders had consented to remain their president for another year. (Applause.) Mr. Sanders, he went on, had not only the interest of the adult members at heart but also the youngsters who had taken away prizes that night. They looked to the youngsters to maintain the present efficiency of the Society in years to come.

Acknowledging the vote of thanks on behalf of his wife and himself, Mr. Sanders said he thought this year's floral exhibition at the summer show was without doubt the finest the Society had ever staged.

Proceeding, he said that although the weather had been very kind to holiday makers it had been the reverse to horticulturists. It was a lot too warm for plants under canvas and next year they had decided to hold the show a fortnight earlier. He appealed to every woman in Chigwell to have a table decoration entered for the show.

Proposing a vote of thanks to the officers, Mr. Roger Hawkey said they had to thank particularly Councillor W. E. Smith for his help and generosity, Mr. Lamb for his untiring energies as hon. secretary, and Mr. McGuire, who was a very capable treasurer. He also wished to thank Messrs. Kennard and Catto for their assistance.

The votes were acknowledged by Mr. McGuire and Mr. Lamb.

Mr. Lamb said it would be a bit of a wrench for the Society to hold their summer show on a date other than August Bank Holiday. It was on the advice of professional gardeners that they had changed the date. He hoped the people of Chigwell would continue to support the Society which was one of the best in or about Essex. He wanted the cottagers and amateurs to come forward and show their appreciation of the interest taken in the Society by the ladies and gentlemen in the district.

An announcement that Miss Sanders and Mrs. Cyril Sanders, who won cash prizes, had returned the money for the benefit of the Forest Hospital was received with applause.

The ceremony concluded, the company were entertained to a sketch "A very Exciting Evening," by A. E. Milne, performed by the Leyton Municipal Officers Dramatic Club. The players were N. Styles, W. D. Softley, Leslie Roberts, Miss Winnie Payne, Cecil Dodson, Ernie Jacobs and M. Gilder.

WORLD DRIFTING INTO WAR.

Ominous Factors in European Politics.

ROTARY CLUB ADDRESS.

That the world is in grave danger of drifting towards another war was the view put forward by Dr. T. Baillie, M.A., D.Sc., at the weekly meeting of the Ilford Rotary Club on Monday, when he talked on international affairs.

In his opinion the League of Nations had been very successful. There had been some criticism from those who did not think it went fast enough and far enough, but the League was in much the same position as the angler who, having hooked a large fish, risked losing both fish and line if he tugged too hard.

Dr. Baillie pointed out that the post-war position in Europe was complicated by the creation of many new, independent countries in response to the laudable desire of the treaty-makers to give self-determination to small peoples. Amid this welter of nations small and large, with their different aims, feelings and languages, the possibility of misunderstanding was greater per square inch in Europe than in any other part of the world with the possible exception of India, and the opportunities for fighting were more numerous than they had been for a very long time.

FRANCE AND GERMANY.

The crux of the problem was Franco-German hatred, which to-day seemed as bitter as ever it was. Probably the worst feature of the European situation was the revival in Hitlerised Germany of the doctrine of the necessity of war. As Bernhardi, Treitschke and other writers had done at the beginning of the present century, the Nazis were glorifying war as war.

Under the Peace Treaty the Germans were treated not so badly perhaps as they would have treated the Allies had they won, but they were treated quite badly enough, and it was a pity that they were put as low as they were. A decided mistake was made for example, in not fixing a specific limit to the amount of reparations the Germans should pay. There was no finality about the business, and the result merely was to help to provoke the mood that now prevailed in Germany. The past could not be undone, but the lesson remained. The type of mind needed for making a wise peace was very different from that which won wars.

ARMS COMPROMISE.

The outcome of the Disarmament Conference was uncertain, but the most that could be expected from it would be some compromise. Anything was better than nothing. For the conference to end without a settlement would be tragic. There was no doubt that the mass of people desired to see peace stabilised. One hopeful factor was that negotiation through the League of Nations had superseded the method of secret diplomacy that operated before 1914. It was now possible for the public to learn the truth—they could read the speeches that were made at Geneva—and statesmen would always have regard to the effect their words might have on public opinion.

Dr. Baillie added that it was the duty of Rotarians to build up public opinion through their movement, so that sooner or later Rotary would be able to exercise its influence on the world in favour of peace and good understanding.

A vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by Mr. F. G. Smith. President J. T. Burchell was in the chair.

At a special meeting East Ham Council sealed the rate of 8s. 6d. in the £ for this half-year.

MAN WITH BROKEN ANKLES CHARGED.

Carried into Court by Warrant Officer.

Suffering from two broken ankles both of which were encased in plaster-of-paris, Edward Thomas Roberts, painter, aged 32, formerly of 268, Longbridge-road, Barking, was charged on a warrant at Stratford Police Court, on Tuesday, with failing to maintain his wife in accordance with the terms of a court order.

The amount owing was £17 18s. 3d.

The complainant, Mrs. Dora Roberts, of 251, Ilchester-road, Dagenham, did not appear.

Roberts, who was carried into court by the warrant officer, said he had been in hospital for nine weeks. When he was able to return to work he intended making a claim on the insurance company and with the money he thought he would receive he would pay off his arrears. If he were convicted he would lose his job.

The Bench agreed to adjourn the case for two months to enable Roberts to carry out his promise.

How the Ilford Experiments Worked :: Thrilling Games in Local Leagues

LACK OF COHESION IN POOR GAME.

Promise of Cochran.

ILFORD 2; CLAPTON 1.

Isthmian league match at Forest Gate. Scorers: Ilford: Craymer (51 mins. and (56 mins.) Clapton: James (79 mins.). Attendance: About 2,000.

THIS game could not be judged on normal standards because normal circumstances were not operating.

Clapton were forced, through injuries, to make so many changes in their published team that the programme was practically valueless without the alterations. Four youthful reserves were drafted into the already very young side to take the places of Macdonald, Clayton, Richardson and G. A. Pingree.

Ilford, for reasons of experiment chiefly directed towards the discovery of a goal-scoring forward line, re-shuffled their halves and forwards. In addition Huggins was unable to play and Hayes took his place.

In these circumstances no one knew what to expect and dead failure would have disappointed no more than glowing brilliance would have pleased.

POOR GAME.

Actually we had a poor, scrappy game that fairly well lived down to the standard which in recent years has marked the meetings of the two old rival clubs. Elderly gentlemen with long white whiskers have been heard to tell of the thrilling "local Derbies" which the clubs used to fight but the custom seems to have fallen into disuetude these many days.

There was much confused moving, much loose kicking and much time spent in punting the ball aimlessly up and down the field.

LIVELY CLAPTON.

Clapton with the enthusiasm of youth looked lively and adhered to first time methods in a way which made the more sedate Ilford players look terribly slow, though actually they were playing the cleverer and more successful game which, given cohesion, would have produced goals in plenty.

But you cannot re-shuffle a side, whose principal deficiency was in understanding, and expect it to play with the smooth working arrangement of an electric clock. Things just don't pan out that way.

It was perfectly natural for forwards and halves to be guessing at each other's intentions and to play, in consequence a ragged, disunited game.

EXPERIMENT NOT A FAILURE.

But the experiment was by no means a failure. It brought two goals, both from Craymer whose plight was the least to be envied since for a half-back of long standing to move up to centre-forward means a radical change in practically everything—the ball comes to him differently and instead of following it he has to wait for it.

Though it would be ridiculous to suggest that he was an outstanding success (it would have been phenomenal if he had been) and while I would not be so foolish as to assert that he was as good as Dellow in his general play, it is true to say that he strengthened the forward line in the goalmouth and worked very hard in general.

COCHRAN DOES WELL.

I liked Cochran, too, and noted that he and Braund reached very quickly a nice understanding. He is quick and resourceful and shoots well. He virtually scored a goal, and that a brilliant one, with a shot that hit the underside of the bar and bounced down and out.

Halcrow betrayed two prominent faults which definitely spoiled his game and retarded the front line as a whole. In the first place he fed Hellard very indiscriminately and to the exclusion of almost everyone else. In the second place he dallied too long with the ball.

Apart from this he played well but no better than he has done at inside-left.

HALVES GOOD, BUT ——.

Because of the re-arrangement the halves played a good game which yet had the appearance of being held back from being better.

Young with two new wing halves, was plainly at sea; he did not know what Glen and Triesman were going to do and in consequence refrained from obtruding for fear of being superfluous.

His work was cool and sedate and his well-judged long passes excellent. He laid back far too much, however, and needs to tackle with much more confidence and less hesitation and, withal, hover closer behind his forwards.

Treisman was the hardy old warrior, as he always is, and he played as well as he has ever done in defence and a little better than usual in offence. He was the best of the three though Glen produced flashes of really first-class football.

HOLMES'S GREAT GAME.

Holmes was the best player on the field and if he did anything that was not of the highest class I couldn't have been looking. Some of his deft methods of relieving forwards of the ball could not be bettered by any player in the game of football.

With such class artistry beside him plucky Jack Hayes could not show to the advantage he really deserved. He was dashing and ferociously keen in tackling and only his kicking needed attention.

With all respect to Huggins I liked Jack Hayes the better.

Braund ranked second to Holmes and played delightfully but he has obviously got to do something about that knee which was causing him more trouble than he probably cared to show. Hellard was not so successful as on his first appearance but this was because of the remarkably fine display given by Sullivan, the Clapton left back.

It was not until late in the game that Hellard was able to shake off the back's careful guardianship.

ILFORD'S PROMISE.

There were moments in the first twenty minutes of the game which seemed to hold out promise of a really fine game on Ilford's part. Hellard early dropped a fine centre into the goalmouth but found no Ilford man there and there was one delightful movement by Glen, Braund and Cochran which led to Cochran shooting well, but fruitlessly, from a most difficult angle.

Craymer also got in a low shot from 20 yards which caused Hart some anxiety because of a wicked bounce developed by the ball just before it reached him.

Ilford were very lively and seemed to need only that vital understanding which at this time did not seem far away and yet was to prove just out of reach all the time.

CLAPTON LUCKY.

Braund put in a beautiful corner (one of many) which led to a hectic scramble in the goalmouth. During it Craymer shot but Sullivan stopped the ball on the line with Hart beaten.

Shortly after Hart ran out to punch away another corner from Braund, missed the ball and fell. There was another scramble but Ilford could not force the ball in the net.

It was 25 minutes before we saw Clapton do anything but feed the Ilford backs with free kicks. Then Jarvis put in the best shot so far and Barlow saved it well.

A GLORIOUS CHANCE.

Six minutes before half-time, by which period Ilford's style had slackened off in a disappointing manner, Haynes miskicked and let the ball go to Craymer. He should have tried a shot but decided to pass forward to Halcrow. Instead of shooting at once, from a range of two yards, he dallied and the ball was deflected to Cochran who was standing ten yards out.

He shot beautifully and the rising ball hit the underside of the post and bounced down and out. Decidedly hard luck.

In the first minute of the second half Cochran made a good effort to get to a hard centre by Craymer, who had worked out to the right, but was just beaten by a back and a few minutes later Halcrow shot low and so hard that he knocked Hart off his feet with the ball which was scrambled away rather luckily for a corner.

Braund placed the kick well but the ball went out to Young who dropped it coolly and exactly into the penalty area where Braund seized it, shot, and hit the post.

THE GOALS.

Again the ball came out but Hayes punted it forward and across to Hellard, who looked to me to be perilously near offside, Hellard put the ball in the centre and CRAYMER turned it very neatly into the net (1—0).

Ilford well deserved their lead for they had been consistently more frequent in attack.

After 11 minutes Braund was fouled near the corner flag and placed the free kick so well that the ball ran along the face of the crossbar and dropped on to CRAYMER'S head which blunt instrument popped it into the net (2—0).

Ilford then dropped back and play, which had been mediocre at many of its stages, slipped back to poor. There was much wild kicking and very little football.

GLEN GOES OFF.

After 25 minutes Glen, in attempting to stop Inns, fell and damaged his leg, from the injury to which he had only recently recovered.

He hobbled off and did not re-appear.

It was nine minutes after this that JAMES shot during a melee in the Ilford goalmouth, Barlow had the ball covered but Hayes, who was running across the goal, was hit in the chest by the ball which was deflected into the net (2—1).

Pluckily as Clapton had played I doubt whether they justly deserved even that one goal. Many of their players were good but experience was badly needed. They caused Barlow little trouble.

FRIENDLY GAMES.

LOXFORD OLD BOYS JUNIOR, 4; BARKING ABBEY, 1.

Loxford opened the season well. The Loxford forwards had much of the play, but it was a magnificent effort by the backs and half-backs that kept the ball in the Abbey half. The Brown brothers still retain their trickiness of last season, while Buscall has much more dash. A splendid defensive trio of Cavannah, Stamp and Greaves kept the Abbey at bay. After twenty minutes, a shot by D. BROWN was deflected by an Abbey defender for a goal. D. BROWN followed up by a well placed goal. The Abbey were being completely held until, at last, a corner was forced which resulted in them scoring.

The second half started rather slow but after a while play reached a fast standard. Loxford had most of the play and CROSS scored a pretty goal which was soon followed by one from LAWRENCE.

Loxford.—F. Manning; D. Greaves, R. Stamp; A. Tarrant, D. Cross, R. Cavannah; T. Ball, D. Brown, D. Buscall, H. Brown, F. Lawrence.

GLENBROOKE, 2; DOWNSHALL OLD BOYS, 1.

Downshall had the better of the play during the first half, Glenbrooke made some attacks but were unable to score. Downshall finally scored about five minutes from half time through FARROW.

On resuming Glenbrooke showed an improvement and scored from a penalty, BARNES taking the kick. Shortly after DAY (J. E.) scored from well out. Good goalkeeping on the part of Jewell stopped many of Downshall's movements.

Glenbrooke.—E. Jewell, A. Matthews, W. Marshall; W. Armstrong, A. Barnes, L. Coal; J. E. Day, A. Bray, S. Rodwell, J. D. Day, P. Yeo.

DICK GERMAN

A SPORTSMAN'S POINT OF VIEW: By "SPECTATOR."

ANYTHING MIGHT have resulted from changes such as Ilford made in their team last Saturday—anything or nothing. It was a sheer gamble.

MY IMPRESSION was that the experiment was by no means a failure though it was a long way from being a howling success.

THAT THE game was a poor one is no reflection on those who were in changed positions.

POOR GAMES between Ilford and Clapton have become almost traditional. Certainly I have not seen a good one in the last five seasons.

IF ILFORD at their best could not make a game of it can we expect an experimental side to do much better?

THAT IT was a poor game was, I believe, mainly due to Clapton though they could not avoid it.

Very Young!

THE AVERAGE age of the Clapton team was not more than 20, I was told, this extreme youth being caused by the introduction of several reserves to take the places of injured first-team players.

THE NOT unnatural result was that while they had plenty of dash they had little science.

ILFORD WERE always the better and cleverer team and in the early stages played really good football.

BUT THEY were knocked off their game by Clapton's hustle.

HAD MEN like Crussell, Gibbins, Bryant and Inns been in the Clapton side I warrant Ilford would have played far better than they did.

I WAS glad to see Craymer score his goals. He is not a born centre-forward but he tried hard and did well enough to justify another trial.

Cochran Does Well.

COCHRAN STRUCK me as having a deal of promise and I particularly liked the way he played with Braund and Glen. He must have a further show.

YOUNG LOOKED slow and did hang back too much but he seemed to me to be diffident about asserting himself when Glen and Treisman so often drifted in to the middle.

THAT HALCROW did not do better was entirely his own fault for he kept the ball too long and gave it to Hellard too often when that man was closely marked.

ON THE WHOLE the team played interestingly enough to make me wish that the same side would be played again.

BUT IT is not to be.

As You Were!

THE TEAM chosen for the home match with St. Albans on Saturday is: Barlow; Holmes, Huggins; Young, Craymer, Treisman; Hellard, Welsh, Dellow, Halcrow and Braund.

BACK WHERE we started, you see!

WHAT SENSE there is in making experiments on a one-week-only system frankly I can't see.

DID ANYONE expect so radically changed a team to settle down and play well at the first time of asking?

IF ANYONE did he can have had precious little football experience.

WHY COULD not last Saturday's team have been given a real trial over at least two matches?

SOMEONE MAY say that League points are at stake.

SO THEY ARE, but Ilford picked up two last week, and anyway I have never yet noticed Isthmian League clubs taking a morbid interest in League points.

UNFORTUNATELY there isn't that interest in the League.

NO HARM could possibly have been done and a few discoveries might have been made if the experiment were repeated next Saturday.

FOUR ILFORD MEN IN COUNTY SIDE.

Four of the Ilford F.C. team have now been chosen to play for Essex against Suffolk at Ipswich next Wednesday.

Braund, Halcrow and Holmes were originally picked and now Young has been selected to play at centre half.

Holmes will be captain of the side.

THE TEAM never will be strengthened at this rate of progress.

Huggins Ill:

THOUGH HUGGINS has been selected for Saturday it is not known whether he is fit yet.

HE WAS in bed last week-end suffering from indisposition and that was why he did not play at Clapton.

HAYES WAS an efficient deputy. There is practically nothing to choose between the two of them.

What About It?

IF HOLMES does not get an International cap this season amateur full-backs must be a very talented lot.

I AM certain none could have surpassed his masterly display at Clapton.

IT IS a relief to see that the cares of captaincy have not so far influenced his play as they have done other players.

Will Braund Turn Pro?

I AM told that persistent attempts are being made to induce Braund to embrace professionalism.

THE SCOUTS of several clubs have been watching him lately and a midland club sent a scout to Clapton last week to have a look at him.

AS BRAUND is on the books of West Ham, however, they must have first choice.

HE HAS so far resisted the many temptations dangled in front of him.

WISELY I think, for the career of a professional footballer is not one to be adopted lightly by anyone who has a safe job.

THERE ARE many pitfalls and risks of which, perhaps, the least is that of an injury which will throw the player workless on the streets.

THE INHUMAN transfer system is a further snag which makes a player little more than a slave to be bought and sold with no thought for his desires.

Hardship.

THERE IS a player, not unknown to Ilford people, who, at almost a moment's notice, was "sold" to another club hundreds of miles away.

HE HAD bought a business the same week and now he has had to leave his family to run the business while he lives so far away that it is impossible for him to go to them on any but rare occasions.

COULD GO on mentioning matters of this sort for a bit but I haven't room.

PROFESSIONAL football is not a matter of milk and honey unmixed with less palatable ingredients.

NOT THAT that will make any difference to young players—they'll go in for it anyway.

Glen Finishes.

T. C. GLEN has written to the Ilford Club announcing that he has finished with football.

HIS CAREER was ended virtually by the injury he received when playing against his old clubmates—London Caledonians—at Ilford last October.

HE THEN damaged a knee ligament so badly that he played no more until last Saturday week when he turned out for Ilford Reserves.

HE DID so well that he was chosen for the first team last Saturday.

AFTER PLAYING a clever game he went to tackle late in the second half, fell and caused his old injury to re-assert itself.

GLEN, I am told, was almost heart-broken at his bad luck.

AND IT is bad luck for he was a splendid half with years of good football before him.

ILFORD SUPPORTERS will commiserate with him most sincerely and hope that his injury may prove to be not so serious as he now thinks it to be.

BY THE WAY, Glen was not off the field for most of the game as he was said to have been by some London papers.

HE WENT OFF 20 minutes before the end.

Having It Both Ways.

FROM Monday's "Star":—

THOUGH Craymer may have justified himself at centre-forward in the fact that he scored Ilford's two goals, it is doubtful whether he would not be of better service at full back.

IS THAT a wise-crack or something?

ANOTHER LONDON paper which contains an article under the name of Edgar Kail refers to Craymer as the "star" of the game.

IT ALMOST looks as if someone is wrong somewhere, doesn't it?

Honour for Braund:

BRAUND HAS been selected to play for London at Brussels on November 1st.

ANENT MY reference to Mr. McDonald last week I have had an interesting letter from Mr. H. G. Tyler, who at the age of 54 is captain of the Piscatorials C.C.

THIS CLUB is mainly composed of Ilford men working at Billingsgate.

MR. TYLER was also a Southern league referee and was one of six who were taken over by the Football league when the Southern league became the Third Division.

"I REMEMBER," he says, "that Mr. Harry Curtis, the present manager of Brentford, was one and I had the honour of being another."

IT IS nice to know that referees live so long as this—or is it only the good ones that enjoy the privilege?

ALSO HAD a letter from Mr. Howell, the hon. secretary of the Nubians F.C., concerning whose unique colours a reference was made last week.

HE SAYS that despite the remarks made about the colours they hope the team will not prove to be a "blot" on Ilford's League football.

I AM very sure they will not. Beauty is only skin deep and in their case the blackness is not even as deep as that! Good luck.

INCIDENTALLY, the Nubians are rather unusual in another particular inasmuch as they have three pairs of brothers in their side.

THEY ARE C. and J. Monk, A. and C. Wood and G. and W. Lines.

Plan Wanted.

CANNOT SOMETHING be done to ease the difficulty of finding the various pitches on Fairlop Playing Fields?

"V. J. R.," who paid a visit there last Saturday to watch Ilford Corinthians had great difficulty in finding them.

I EXPERIENCED similar trouble in the cricket season.

SURELY IT would be possible to devise a plan of the ground, with the pitches numbered and shown, which could be fixed by the entrance gates.

I SEE NO reason why the names of the clubs renting the pitches should not be shown on the plan as well.

THERE WAS a piquant touch about the Old Westhamians and Ilford Corinthians match, provided by the fact that in the Old Boys' team were four or five teachers, while the Corinthians are nearly all ex-schoolboys who have not long left.

Teachers Taught.

THE TEACHERS attempted to give a little lesson in the art of operating the offside trap, but the pupils turned the tables by scoring at least one of their goals because of it.

OFFSIDE TRAPS should be operated only by experts. They do not always come off then, as many professional exponents will tell you.

ILFORD F.C. SUPPORTERS should note that the Victory Supporters Club are holding a dance on Thursday week at the New Hall, Clements-road, at 7.30 p.m.

MR. GEORGE GOWING tells me that Mr. Jimmy Yeo and Mr. George Drane will be there.

"BUDDY" CRAYMER is disposing of tickets to playing members.

IF YOU WANT tickets write to Mr. Gowing at 27, Buckingham-road, Ilford.

ILFORD CORINTHIANS Stop Watch competition resulted in E. Asker winning. The time was 28 minutes.

GLENBROOKE F.C., whose average age is 18 to 20, want away games for October 21st and 28th. Can any club oblige?

Mr. W. R. HOOKER, 46, Kimberley-avenue, Seven Kings, is the Glenbrooke secretary.

BARKING'S TEAM to play Sutton in the Athenian League, at Sutton, on Saturday, will be:—J. J. Wilson; S. Gentry, J. Woodcock; W. H. Turtle, A. Eglin, C. Popplewell; C. J. Ladd, K. Mayes, W. Humphrey, F. Shellitoe and R. Mayes.

Tug-o-War Successes.

THIS YEAR has been a fine year for the Seven Kings Garage Tug-o'-War Team. They have won the L.G.O.C.S.A. Championship Cup, Dagenham Hospital Cup, beating Barking Police in the final.

THEY HAVE been selected for the third time to represent the L.G.O.C.S.A. In four years they have won the Tramways, Omnibus and Tube Championship three times.

ON SATURDAY at the Garage Club, Kingsford House, a concert and dance was arranged to present medals to this team. All the leading officials of the district were present and were welcomed by the Garage Committee and a crowded house.

MR. COBB, the social secretary, arranged a fine number of artists.

I LEARN from the Gantshill Methodist magazine—"Outdoors," that the sports clubs of the church have formed a Sports Council as a central body.

Mr. E. C. BAKER is the honorary secretary.

Speedway:

THE NEW BRITISH Individual Champion (writes "Broadside,") is an Ilford boy, for Stevenson, though now living at Barking, resided in Natal-road for several years.

HE IS undoubtedly the most outstanding rider in the history of speedway racing and he holds the track records for Crystal Palace, Sheffield, Nottingham, Wembley, West Ham and Clapton.

MANY OF these records he has broken several times.

"TIGER" CAPTAINED the English team in four Tests out of five this season, and has been captain of West Ham since 1929.

THIS IS another record, since no other rider has held a captaincy for so long a period.

TO HIS mechanic—Alex Tate, another local man—Stevenson owes much of his success, for he has had the fastest motors on the speedway, and "Tiger" is the first to admit the worth of Tate.

YET, WITH all his honours, Stevenson remains the modest young man he was before his success—a shy champion in spite of the fact that he is the idol of the crowd.

HIGH SPIRITS IN ILFORD CORINTHIANS' MATCH.

Youngsters Defeat Off-Side Trap.

(By V.J.R.)

THAT youth and determination plus the team spirit, go a long way towards the success of a football club, was clearly proved to me when I watched Ilford Corinthians play Old Westhamians, at Fairlop, on Saturday.

The Corinthians are the club I have in mind, their average age is about 21, and they certainly have a record of which to be proud.

The club was started only three seasons ago, when the Corinthians A team were in the Ilford Minor League, B section, of which they became leaders.

They went into the 2nd Division of the Intermediate League, and were again champions. They are now in the 1st Division, and have conclusively beaten the present champions.

This looks as if the Corinthians will emulate last season's performance, for Old Westhamians have been champions for three seasons running.

They have now three teams, whose success has been chiefly due to the splendid efforts of their chairman, Mr. P. M. Seddon.

SATURDAY'S GAME.

As to the game on Saturday, the Corinthians played dashing football, while the Westhamians' game was hustling. They used the offside trap far too much.

During most of the first half the Westhamian backs relied on standing well up the field, and, if they failed to stop the opposing forwards they appealed to the referee for offside.

Incidentally the first goal came when the referee ignored a plea of offside by the Westhamians.

Although, as one lady spectator remarked, the offside trap is all in the game, it is rather an unsporting feature, and is anyway best left to experts in this peculiar art.

The Corinthians typified the right spirit, and deservedly won, against a team whose football was slightly superior.

At the start of play, the Corinthians had the advantage of wind and sun, and forced their way through several times, but were not positioned well enough to allow for a hard shot at goal.

Seddon sent in a good shot, which just failed, and Peacock, the Old Westhamians' goalkeeper, saved from Reeves. A chance was missed when Westhamians put three of the forwards offside.

This Saturday V.J.R. and Dick German will be at the Ilford Borough League match between St. Margarets and Ashurst at Goodmayes Park. Kick-off 3.15.

WESTHAMIANS PRESS.

Benton, for Westhamians, appeared the best of the forwards. He put in some neat touches, and passed excellently, with the result that after about a quarter of an hour's play, the ball was mainly in the Corinthians half, and Griggs, who played a splendid game in goal, had his work cut out. On two occasions he was very lucky to get the ball away.

ONE TOO MANY!

As all the pitches on the Fairlop ground are adjoining, the ball often found itself kicked from one pitch to another, much to the disgust of Richards, the Corinthians secretary and left wing, when he found himself on one occasion with two balls at his feet when on his way towards goal. This put him off his balance and a back robbed him.

Though both sides were attacking well, they finished badly, due, for the most part, to erratic kicking near the goal.

The Corinthians half back line was good, "Spider" Edwards putting in some deft touches, and making valuable openings.

The Corinthians now forced a corner which was taken by R. Regan, who is an adept at these shots. He sent in a splendid one, which was cleared, however.

CORINTHIANS SCORE.

The first goal, for the Corinthians, came after half an hour's play, and was scored by L. REGAN. The Westhamians had been using their offside trap but it broke down, letting the forwards through, and thus Regan scored, the referee ignoring the appeals against it.

Just after this, the Westhamians made a good run down the field, and were near to scoring, but alas! not near enough.

The second half started off with a rush, and, it seemed to me, the Westhamians had decided to suspend their offside play, in favour of robust football, but the game remained in a fairly peaceful state.

Seddon, received a nasty kick on the ankle, and remained off for a short period.

RICHARDS scored the Corinthians second goal, when, from two yards out, but in a difficult position, he hit the post, the ball ricochetting into the goal (2—0).

The Westhamians made strong efforts and won their way through, but in front of goal they shot wide on several occasions.

But from a pass by Pearson, CAWSTON beat Griggs, only four minutes after Richards had scored. This did not daunt the Corinthian men, for two minutes later REEVE, centre forward and captain, scored.

Westhamians proved dangerous again, but Griggs in goal, was excellent and saved time after time.

The raids were too persistent, however, and CAWSTON again sent in a shot which gave Griggs no chance (3—2).

The Corinthians had got through several times, but made many sad mistakes in front of goal, when they had easy chances.

Still they put the result out of the question when, just on time, the goalkeeper was drawn out of goal some distance, and RICHARDS easily scored from a pass across the goalmouth (4—2).

As this was only their second match of the season, the Corinthians put up a very good performance, and should go far.

As I have said before, the Ilford Corinthians team are young, and they have great enthusiasm, and probably won the match more on this than on the excellence of their football.

They have a safe goalkeeper in Griggs, who shows signs of great promise. The backs, Samson and Sampson, both defended ably, but will need more intensive practice before their passes find the right mark.

The half backs, F. Edwards, S. Edwards and T. Day, were the backbone of the side, paving the way for the forwards, who were given chances galore.

It was not always the fault of the forwards that goals did not come; the Westhamian backs were hefty fellows, and now and again proved it.

Richards and Regan on the wings, were both fast, and passed well into the centre, where, however, most of the chances were missed. This department should do much better when a better understanding is reached.

Teams:—

Ilford Corinthians: Griggs; E. Samson, H. Sampson; F. Edwards, S. Edwards, T. Day; C. Richards, L. Regan, A. Reeve, P. Seddon, R. Regan.

Old Westhamians: Peacock; T. D. O'Connor, F. Wilders; F. Norris, P. Biggs, E. A. Storey; A. W. Pearson, H. Clarke, H. Cawston, W. Benton, C. Newman.

ILFORD AND DISTRICT LEAGUE.

CRANBROOK WESLEYAN, 1; CLYDE, 4.

Features of this Premier Division game were the splendid goalkeeping of the Clyde custodian and a brilliant display by their inside right. Clyde forwards worked the ball well but were ineffective in front of goal. The Wesleyan defence were unable to get a grip on the play and so gave their forwards little support. The best part of their team was the left flank.

BARKINGSIDE, 0; WARREN, 3.

Playing their first Premier Division game at the Recreation Ground, Barkingside were heavily beaten. But for a magnificent display of goalkeeping by Long the score would have easily been doubled.

From the opening Warrens looked very dangerous and Long was beaten from close range after twenty minutes. A spell of midfield play relieved the pressure for a time, but the B's forward line rarely looked dangerous against a powerful trio of halves. Warrens again found the net just before half-time.

Despite a reshuffling of players Barkingside showed no improvement, and Long was subject to heavy bombardment throughout the second half, and he came out of the ordeal very creditably. Griggs also got through a great deal of work, but with the halves overrun it was impossible to check the lively Warren raiders. Warrens are a very nice team.

ALBERTONIANS, 1; PARKVILLE, 1.

At Loxford Park in the First Division a brilliant game was played at a tremendous pace. From the start Albertonians attacked, their forwards and halves working smoothly together. Only the sound play of the Parkville goalkeeper prevented goals accruing. It was rather against the run of the game, therefore, when Parkville took the lead through GOODWAY who took advantage of an error by the Albertonians' defence. Shortly after the A's were unlucky when Bowcher hit the post with a fine effort. Good movements by the strong Parkville attack were countered by solid defence, particularly by Stamp. In the second half Albertonians spoilt many good moves by weak finishing but they equalised through CROWE in the closing stages.

Albertonians.—Lucy; Stamp, Giles; Walker, J. Thompson, Jim Thompson; Crowe, Nichols, Budgen, Bowcher, Wills.

GOODMAYES, 5; ROVERSCOUTS, 4.

After MAUGHAN had opened the scoring for Goodmayes the visitors were soon on level terms. Goodmayes, however, combined well together, and WAITE put them ahead. Roverscouts equalised just before the interval.

In the second half the home team were quickly off the mark, and BUTLER added a third goal, and a few minutes later the same player scored again. From a breakaway Roverscouts reduced the lead and then made several spirited attacks on the home goal in an effort to equalise. Play was then transferred to the other end and good work by the home forward line resulted in BUTLER completing his "hat-trick." This was soon followed by a fourth goal.

Goodmayes.—C. Allen; A. Richardson, E. Hoss; L. Beere, A. Mann, C. Alvarez; L. Butler, W. McMarth, A. Maughan, C. Waite, K. Knowles.

CLIFTON, 4; ST. ALBAN'S, 3.

In the Second Division Clifton played their first league match at Fairlop. In the first minute GILLON scored for them. Ten minutes later COWPER increased the lead and GILLON followed with another. Only a few minutes had gone before GILLON again scored from a perfect centre from Cowper. In the second half St. Alban's improved though the game became slower. After 15 minutes SAUNDERS scored the best goal of the match for them and in the next minute he scored again. NASH added the third fifteen minutes later. St. Alban's tried hard to equalise but the Clifton defence was impregnable.

Clifton.—D. Rockley; R. Hall, D. Smith; J. Atwell, H. Stephings, J. Lovett; R. Lovett, E. Hughes, J. Gillon, F. Merry, A. Cowper.

GREEN LANE UNITED, 4; RAMBLERS, 1.

At Goodmayes Park in the Third Division Green Lane scored their first goal in District League football after ten minutes when TOOGOOD netted. The game was lively and even but the Ramblers lacked cohesion. The United increased their lead with goals from WOOD and PATEMAN. In the second half MITCHELL reduced the lead for Ramblers but TOOGOOD added a fourth for Green Lane shortly after.

Green Lane.—Ayres; Bennett, S. Widdup; Waltes, F. Widdup, Jarvis; Clark, New, Toogood, Pateman, Wood.

INTERMEDIATE COMBINATION

OLD CENTRALIANS, 3; NUBIANS, 3.

Nubians made their debut in the First Division at Woodford Green and were a goal down in the first ten minutes. They then improved and LINES scored a good goal. Soon after MONK put them ahead and LINES increased the lead just before the interval after a determined piece of work.

In the second half the superior stamina of the Old Boys told and for 20 minutes they had the better of the game and scored twice. Nubians lost a great chance of winning when they placed a penalty kick wide. The result was a fair one.

Nubians.—F. Griffiths; C. Monk, W. Cooper; J. Mander, A. Wood, L. Denithorne; S. Howell, C. Wood, G. Lines, J. Monk, and W. Lines.

ILFORD CORINTHIANS A, 3; EAST HAM BOROUGH OFFICERS, 2.

Playing the Borough Officers in a Third Division game away the Corinthians deserved their win. Both sides played well. EASTWOOD, STRINGER and DIGBY scored for the Corinthians.

ILFORD BOROUGH LEAGUE.

FOREST GATE Y.M.C.A., 2; STAINES U., 2.

At Hainault. Staines should have scored two or three goals in the first half but finished badly and there was no score until the second half. Ten minutes after the interval Rook started a good move which resulted in PLEDGER scoring. Within five minutes the Y.M.C.A. had equalised. Staines soon went ahead through HARRIS but with only two minutes to go Forest Gate again drew level.

Staines.—E. Hall; L. Topham, J. Bowden; F. Mann, W. Rook, A. Popplewell; V. Harris, A. Harris, S. Weedon, B. Harden, R. Pledger.

HOWARDS, 8; ST. MARGARET'S, 2.

In Division 1, Howards, at home, played well from the start and soon took the lead through A. Wheatley. Though the visitors were always fighting back and scored once, they could not prevent Howards scoring three more goals before the interval. In the second half St. Margaret's scored again but this inspired Howards to further efforts and four more goals resulted. Howards' scorers were:

WHEATLEY (4), SOUTHWORTH (2), ANDREWS and DENNIS.

Howards.—V. Hunt; R. Hornsby, L. Martin; C. Prior, L. Bowler, F. Howe; A. Tottman, C. Southworth, A. Wheatley, E. Andrews, J. Dennis.

NEW ILFORD PLAYER.

F. Moule of Leyton.

The Leyton centre-forward of last season, F. Moule, has applied to the Ilford club for a place in their team.

He will be given a trial at the earliest opportunity.

Moule was last season very closely in the running for the centre-forward berth in the Essex County eleven, and gave Webb, the Romford man, a keen race for the honour.

Huggins is unfit to play on Saturday, and Hayes will partner Holmes.

Chigwell Row attacked frequently after the interval and but for good goalkeeping and missed opportunities would have scored several goals. The home side went ahead shortly afterwards WALLACE taking a pass from Wilding to go between the backs and score the winning goal. From then on Chigwell Row were easily the superior side.

This was Ongar's first defeat and if Chigwell Row can maintain this form they are assured of a successful season.

Chigwell Row.—Vince; B. Vale and Wade; Ward, Wilding and Crump; Darkin, M. Vale, Wallis, L. Martin and A. Martin.

The Lord-Lieutenant of Essex is to hand over to Barking a portrait in oils of Alderman A. E. Martin, J.P., C.C. (Charter Mayor and first Mayor) to-day (Thursday).

Ilford Boys to Play at Home on Saturday.

CORINTHIAN SHIELD MATCH.

ILFORD Boys (under 14 team) begin their representative matches on Saturday when they play Walthamstow Boys at the Cricklefield in the 1st Round of the "Corinthian" Shield.

Last year Ilford received two defeats at the hands of Walthamstow, one at home in the "Corinthian" and the other away in the semi-final of the "Robert Johnson" competition.

It is expected that the present Ilford team, which consists almost entirely of last year's "Sun" team, will at least make amends for one of those defeats.

Four boys, Crisp, Glover, Dorken and Fleet, were regular members of the "Corinthian" side last year.

The kick-off for Saturday's match is at 10.45 a.m. and the following admission charges will be made: Adults 4d., children 2d., stand 1d. extra.

The Ilford team will be: Thurman (Loxford); Fleet (Newbury Park), Camp (Downshall); Tubb (Beal), Dorken (Loxford), Glover (Newbury Park); Dodson (Newbury Park), Uncle (Newbury Park), Crisp (Loxford), Moore (Beal), O'Reilly (S.S. Peter and Paul).

HOSPITAL CUP MATCHES.

Eight schools were engaged in the first round of the Hospital Cup Competition on Saturday.

The S.S. Peter and Paul v. Barkingside match was very keenly contested. At the conclusion of the customary 70 minutes' play, the score stood at two goals each but in extra time SS. Peter and Paul scored five times with no reply from Barkingside.

Christchurch did not play up to their usual form against Gearies and lost by two goals. This was probably due to team changes which they had to make.

Becontree did not find much difficulty in defeating South Park who were unable to respond to Becontree's five goals.

The remaining match between Goodmayes and Highlands was abandoned before half time owing to an accident to the Highlands goalkeeper which necessitated his leaving the field. The match will be replayed later.

The results were:—

S.S. Peter and Paul, 7; Barkingside, 2.
Gearies, 4; Christchurch, 2.
South Park, 0; Becontree, 5.

DAGENHAM SCHOOLS.

DAGENHAM SUPPORTERS' CUP, ROUND 2.

Park, 1; Beacontree Heath, 1.

Beacontree Heath, 3; Park, 2 (replay). Both games were very close. Fenner, of Park, shot at every opportunity but was foiled by Parrish's excellent goalkeeping.

EASTBROOK, 1; WHALEBONE, 1.

This was a surprising result as Eastbrook have won all their games. Both defences showed great solidity with Lee prominent for Whalebone and Townsend for Eastbrook.

MARSH GREEN, 2; FANSHAWE, 0.

Marsh Green's good defence held a lively Fanshawe attack at Bay. The game was closer than the score suggests.

CHARLECOTE, 9; GREEN LANE, 1.

With its wings in fine form, the all conquering Charlecote side sweeps on irresistibly. A battle royal is promised when Charlecote meet Eastbrook.

LOCAL LEAGUE GAMES.

LOXFORD OLD BOYS, 2; DAGENHAM JUNIORS, 5.

Dagenham Junior must be praised for their clever side. Play was even for the first twenty minutes, after which Loxford opened the score through PAYNE. The visitors then scored twice in five minutes. The second half proved to be Dagenham Juniors v. Pearson, the home goalkeeper, who gave a magnificent display of 'keeping. The Juniors twice again found the net before Loxford retaliated through BONNER.

Loxford.—D. Pearson; W. Davy, J. Gargrave; R. Ingee, A. Bonner, P. Griffith; T. Crosswell, A. S. Baker, A. L. Payne, R. Bullock, E. A. Roxcroft.

ASHURST, 4; ILFORD LTD., 3.

Ashurst opened at Fairlop with a hard won victory after a clean and interesting game. THORN gave them a lead but ATTWOOD brought the scores level for Ilford Ltd. R. COLEMAN was instrumental in putting Ashurst ahead again only for the visitors to equalise again through GEARY, who scored from a free kick. The second half brought a ding-dong struggle. COLEMAN once more gave Ashurst the lead but ATTWOOD put Ilford Ltd. on terms and it was not until close to the end that SPRINGALL capped a splendid afternoon's work by scoring the winning goal.

Ashurst.—Witt; F. Coleman, S. Yone; T. Rounsome, S. Cody, H. Collingwood; B. Manse, E. Raven, R. Thorn, R. Coleman, R. Springall.

GANTSHILL, 3; I.M.O., 2.

At home, Gantshill Methodists and Ilford Municipal Officers made their bow to league football.

Ten minutes from the start a well placed corner kick by Tucker enabled TAYLOR to open the score for Gantshill. Even play followed, WADSWORTH equalising after 25 minutes. Close on half time RATH was unfortunate in putting through his own goal.

Gantshill, playing well together, went further ahead six minutes from the resumption, TUCKER scoring from a scrimmage in the goalmouth. I.M.O. improved greatly, a 30 yards drive by Trayler hitting the crossbar, but ROBBINS made amends with a good goal shortly after.

Gantshill.—M. Paris; H. Davison, D. Martin; W. H. Fowlis, L. Peak, F. Hellyer, R. Newson, J Brown G. Cordell, W. Taylor, L. Tucker.

I.M.O.—F. Workman; S. Stapley, F. Rath; R. Brown, J. Wright, C. K. Lister; A. H. Traylor, K. Robbins, S. A. Wadsworth, E. F. Condie, A Magson.

ILFORD ARGYLE, 2; ILFORD KINGSTONIANS, 5.

A good game was seen at Fairlop. Play was even until Argyle opened the scoring with a clever shot from WAYLAND. Kingstonians then pressed strongly, the centre forward headed the equaliser. Just before half time Kingstonians went ahead through their inside left. Shortly after the change over Argyle equalised when A. HAWKINS scored with a hard drive following a fine solo effort.

For the remainder of the game Kingstonians made several attacks on goal and scored during a scrimmage. An almost certain goal was averted, when Sear was out of goal, by Fraser who kicked the ball away off the line. Kingstonians scored their fourth goal with a drive which Sear touched but could not divert and in the last few minutes BISHOP scored their fifth. Kingstonians deserved their win, although perhaps not by such a large margin, as they were quicker on the ball and made better use of long open passing. Argyle will be better when they play a more open game.

Ilford Argyle.—Sear; Caple Harrington; Grove, Fraser, Wilson; F. Hawkins, Bustard, Wayland, Reed and A. Hawkins.

ILFORD CORINTHIANS B, 7; ILFORD LIMITED A, 0.

In Division 2 Ilford Ltd. gave a good display in spite of their heavy defeat, their goalkeeper particularly doing well. MERRELL (4), BLACKWELL (2) and ASKER scored for the Corinthians.

SOUTH ESSEX THURSDAY LEAGUE.

REDBRIDGE, 6; THAMESIDE, 1.

Redbridge began their league programme sensationally by defeating the unbeaten champions for the past two seasons.

The game throughout was very interesting all goals being good ones. The Bridge opened the score through GENTRY in the first ten minutes but Thameside drew level from a penalty just before the interval.

On changing ends the Bridge proved themselves masters ROWE adding the second goal after some clever work.

This was followed by SPELLER crashing the ball in the net from close range. Then a fine backward pass from Aldred to LAFFERTY ended with the latter scoring with a well placed first time shot. SPELLER followed with another and to complete the half dozen ALDRED gave no chance with a well placed shot. It will be noticed that the Bridge have some of their old players back again.

Redbridge.—D. Chapman; H. Wenn, L. Mead; F. Green, S. Hunwicks, A. Munson; V. Aldred, C. Lafferty, W. Speller, F. Rowe, G. Gentry.

CYCLING.

NOTES AND NEWS OF THE CLUBS.

C.T.C. (Barking Section).

Sunday's gymkhana, favoured by dry weather until tea time, attracted another large attendance. The many and varied events created much friendly rivalry. One of the events, a pillow fight on cycles, caused a great deal of fun, especially when the finalists, after many severe blows, still retained their balance. The obstacle race proved another amusing event, followed by a four-lap time trial.

After tea at the "Leather Bottle," Blackmore, prizes were distributed by Mr. T. Houlder.

Members and friends are cordially invited to the section's dance on Saturday, October 14th, at the Eastbury School, Barking, at 8 p.m., tickets may be obtained from any member of the committee.

HAINAULT R.C.

On Sunday the run was conducted by the Captain, Mr. D. Wright, who led the club to a favourite house of call, the "Three Horseshoes," Parndon. This particular place is rich in cycling lore, being very popular in the early days of cycling. Here, there is mention of the Old Hainault C.C.

After refreshments, a sing song was enjoyed, and then the ride home was commenced into a blustering wind. Although the membership is mixed, there has not been very much enthusiasm shown among the ladies, and the hon. secretary would like to remind any intending member of either sex that membership fees paid now will carry through to December, 1934.

RUGBY

WANDERERS' HEAVY DEFEAT.

Too Many Team Changes.

THIRD AND FOURTH TEAMS WIN.

(By F. S. B.).

CONSTANT changes are unsettling to a team, and just at the moment the Wanderers are having to make too many changes each week.

In the circumstances the team can hardly be expected to give of its best. Even so this does not by any means fully account for the sluggish performance of last Saturday, when Finchley, on their own ground, won a decisive victory to the tune of 32 points to nil.

TOO PACIFIST.

The second half was conspicuous for some rank bad scrimmaging for which it is difficult to find an excuse.

Plater, Simona and Graham were entirely too pacifist in policy. Gibbon did not produce the form of the previous week, and only Jenkins played well, with Haynes, who we are inclined to think of as a veteran, a close second.

The latter was invariably well ahead of the remainder of the pack, excepting, of course, Jenkins and sometimes Gibbon.

The whole team needs to concentrate on backing up.

Behind the scrum Thompson did quite well, although a few of his passes were a bit wild. Sutherland, who came in on the wing had a bad match. He had few chances in attack, but his defence was unsteady. His opposing wing was allowed a lot too much rope.

Taylor, at full back, a position with which he is not conversant, played well. At present his positional play is not all it should be. Throughout the game he fielded the ball well, and found a good touch. Best of all, however, was his tackling, some of which was very wholehearted.

THE GAME.

The game started with the Wanderers taking play to the Finchley twenty-five. One or two good movements were instituted by the backs, but the home defence proved very sound. Hesse put in some good runs along the touch line.

However, Finchley were able to save their line, and shortly after they opened the scoring all against the run of the play. A high punt fell short of Taylor, and upon hitting the ground broke off at right angles, leaving the full back standing and clearing the way to the line. The kick was successful.

Upon resuming the Wanderers still continued to do most of the attacking, but the Finchley forwards were now occasionally getting the ball back. The few Finchley attacks were broken up by sound defence, until a forward rush took play into the Wanderers' half. A rather lucky kick found touch a foot from the goal line, and bad marking allowed a Finchley forward to drop over from the line out.

LEAD INCREASED.

Before half-time Finchley increased their lead when, from a scrum inside the twenty-five, quick breaking forwards backed up to join in a movement which produced a score rather far out.

At half-time the Wanderers, after doing practically all the attacking were behind by 11 points to nil.

Finchley started off in the second half at a great pace, and the Wanderers were soon penned in their own half. The home forwards were now definitely superior, and the Wanderers' scrummaging was becoming very ragged. After continued pressure Finchley scored two tries, the first of which was converted with a fine kick.

It was obvious that the Finchley team were now playing like an inspired team, and three further tries were added, two of which were converted. The last try but one was a very spectacular affair, the Finchley right centre running from just inside his own half very cleverly.

This week the Wanderers are at home to Ealing, the kick-off being timed for 3 p.m.

Wanderers B 17; Ealing 0.

The B team were entertained by Finchley on Saturday. The play was kept in the Finchley "25" for a short time, and the efforts of the team were rewarded when L. C. Scott went over for a good try, the ball coming from a loose maul to Tatham, who quickly gave his "threes" the chance to show their mettle.

From the kick-off play was once again in the Finchley territory, and from another scrimmage the ball went to K. Mann, who ran in to score under the posts. In the second half Ilford quickly scored again through K. Mann, W. Simpson kicking a great goal. Further tries were scored by W. Simpson and J. D. Potter.

The forwards were ably led by W. Simpson, who played a very fine game. The backs combined very well, and with a little more practice together they should develop into a useful line.

Wanderers C 19; Finchley C 0.

The Wanderers C gained a decisive victory over Finchley C in South Park by two goals and three tries to nothing.

The day was a suitable one for the Wanderers' backs to show what they could do, and, with Finchley outclassed in the scrummages, the men behind had plenty of opportunities. The best of these was D. L. Williams at stand-off who, well served by Rangecroft, got his attack going splendidly.

His try, in which he threaded his way down the middle, beating half the Finchley team en route, side-stepping, swerving and "selling the dummy," was the crowning effort of a fine afternoon's work.

Firmin, on the left wing, did many excellent things including converting his try from a difficult angle.

Gold was good individually, but too often delayed his pass, consequently crowding out his wing man.

Cole did well in an unaccustomed position, and Collins was a safe full back.

Forward all did well again, particularly Covell, Soesan and Howe.

The scorers, besides D. L. Williams and Firmin, were Mew, Gold and Matheson.

The Wanderers were on the attack almost throughout the game and they threatened to score many times before they actually did; this was in part due to the excellent defence put up by the visitors and partly due to minor infringements by themselves. Play after the interval was a repetition of the first half, though the Finchley defence was never really worn down.

ILFORD ATHLETIC CLUB

Back to the Rough Stuff.

(By L. A. H.).

On Saturday the club gathered at the winter headquarters, Chigwell Row, for the second run of the 1933-4 cross-country season. The weather conditions were ideal.

The afternoon's programme may be summed up in the phrase, "The mixture as before." Some fifty runners of both sexes were present and, divided into "packs," were soon off on their respective journeys.

A word of explanation regarding the division into "packs" may be of interest. It is obviously desirable that persons of similar capabilities should run together and our men are usually divided into three groups or packs, "fast," "medium" and "slow." The fast pack usually operates on the principle of the "Devil takes the Hindmost," and with them we are not concerned.

The other two groups are sufficiently comprehensive in character to provide marked differences of capabilities as between individual members.

Therefore, the running of the "slow" and "medium" packs is subject to certain rules. Each pack has its "leader" and "whipper-in" and it is the duty of these temporary officials to regulate the speed of the pack and to keep them together.

If rearrangement seems necessary, they must see that this is done and the slower group adequately supervised.

To get back to the subject of last Saturday's run, two of the men's packs covered four miles, while the slow pack indulged in a steady three miles. The ladies covered their special 2½ miles layout in good fettle.

FIXTURES FOR OCTOBER.
Saturday 14th: Social run with Grafton A.C., Chigwell Row.
Saturday 21st: Captain's v. vice-captain's team, Chigwell Row.
Saturday 28th: Essex Beagles and Woodford Green, Chigwell Row. (Social evening follows run).

Mid-week training: Tuesdays 7 p.m.—These runs will be held from the P.L.A. sports ground, Cranbrook-rise, Ilford. It can be said definitely that the facilities available are a great improvement upon anything enjoyed by the club in previous years.

Any persons interested in athletics are invited to apply to the hon. general secretary, Mr. E. H. Moon, 12, Aldborough-road, Seven Kings, who will be delighted to supply full particulars of the club's activities.

SPEEDWAY.

ILFORD RIDER'S FEAT.

Stevenson is British Champion.

By "Broadside."

Tiger Stevenson, the English and West Ham captain, won the British Individual Championship at the Stadium, Custom House, on Tuesday night.

He also beat his own record for the four lap rolling start of 81.8secs.—a speed of 44 miles per hour—by covering the distance in 81.6 secs a speed of 44.1 miles per hour.

Stevenson beat Ron Johnson of the Palace by two straight runs.

He gained a similar victory at the Crystal Palace on Saturday and the welcome he got from the 40,000 spectators when he did a lap of honour with his mechanic on the back was tremendous.

Stevenson had the inside berth in the first heat and he gained a three length lead on the first circuit.

Johnson, riding like a man possessed, drew up to within a length on the final lap, but Stevenson literally hurled his machine in front and crossed the line three lengths ahead of his rival.

In the second heat there were four false starts but when they did get away Johnson, on the inside, gained a slight advantage which he did not hold for long, for Stevenson, riding magnificently passed him on the second bend.

Over the rest of the lap it was a case of first one in the lead and then the other, when suddenly Johnson's motor eased up and at the pit bend in the next lap he pulled in and left Stevenson to finish alone at 43.26 miles per hour.

The Conran trophy for West Ham riders was won by Bluey Wilkinson who beat Croombs easily at 41.29 miles per hour.

Stevenson fell in this final and Hansen who was close behind him laid his machine down to avoid running into him.

The Cunday trophy was won by the one and only Tiger who beat Case and put up the fastest time of the evening at 41.57 miles per hour, in this race it was Wilkinson's turn to fall and he did the job very thoroughly by turning all-ways at once.

The Consolation Trophy was won by Farnden with Hansen second and an Australian, Kilmeyer, third.

VALENTINES S.C. ACTIVITIES.

Footballers Make a Start.

By J. B.

After leading at one period by two clear goals the Valentines Sporting Club (Ilford) eventually lost their first game of the season by two goals scored in the last quarter of an hour of play, but, as this was our first match of any description since the end of last season, the form displayed by Saturday's team as a whole was decidedly promising. Our opponents were the Gas Light and Coke Company, who had already scored one league victory this season, but it was not until the end of half an hour of the second half that they scored the goal which gave them the lead for the first time.

The match, which was an Ilford and District League, 1st Division fixture, was played on our ground, in Goodmayes Park, and after only five minutes play R. Warner got through to score our first goal of the season.

For the greater part of the game we continued to have the better of the exchanges, and at the end of half an hour H. Goreham got over an excellent centre, from the right wing, which E. E. Upton standing unmarked, converted with a shot that beat the goalkeeper all the way. Two minutes later, however, J. Barrie, our left half, had the misfortune to deflect the ball into his own goal, and so open the Gas Light scoring. Ten minutes before the interval the opposing forwards got a smart snap goal.

Early in the second half both sides missed at least one good chance each, after which the game went fairly evenly for half an hour, at which stage Gas Light took the lead. Two minutes later they had got another goal.

In this game we relied almost entirely upon last year's men, only two new players being included in the side, so there is little news yet of the fresh members recruited during the close season.

WALKERS' WEEK-END STROLL.

Only two of our members were booked for racing, last Saturday, these being F. C. Ryder and E. A. Lamb, who were entered for the six miles road race, held in connection with the Finchley Charter celebrations. For the rest of the walking section the chief attraction was our ninth annual week-end stroll, and in this a party of nineteen ultimately arrived at Great Waltham. Starting from our headquarters, at the "Cooper's Arms," Chadwell Heath, at 9.30 a.m., on Saturday, the vanguard took to the road in pleasant weather and made their first halt at Noak Hill, a distance of six miles.

After that Navestock was passed, and another brief stop made at Kelvedon Hatch, the journey then being continued to the "Leather Bottle," Blackmore, a distance of 14 miles.

This point was reached at about 1.45 p.m., and other members joined the party here for lunch. At 3 p.m. another start was made, and the route then taken was by way of Loves Green, Cooksmill Green and Roxwell, to Boynton Cross, at which place tea was served at the "Cross Keys" Inn, at 5 p.m.

After tea the party made its way through Good Easter and Mashbury, and on to the destination at the "Six Bells" Hotel, Great Waltham, a total distance of 28 miles.

Hot dinner at the "Six Bells" at 8 p.m., was an enjoyable meal, and then followed a good evening together, and so, finally, to bed. After breakfast, on Sunday morning, the party got on the road about 10 o'clock, and started the walk home, which, despite heavy banks of rain clouds at different intervals, was accomplished without rain. In fact there were almost as many sunny periods as there were black, and the whole week-end, the details of which were again so carefully arranged by Mr. L. A. Aves, was another enjoyable success.

Next Sunday the stroll fixture is a morning walk to Hornchurch, leaving Seven Kings station at 10 o'clock, as usual, with Mr. E. A. Lamb as the conductor.

SWIMMERS' SUCCESSFUL SUMMER.

The summer programme of our swimming section, in last week's "Recorder," was a good one in all respects, and a report issued by the secretary records a large membership and a successfully completed list of inter-club races. Some of the fixtures originally made had to be scratched for one reason or another, but even then an aggregate of ten races were decided.

Of this total six were for the men, who won five and lost one, while in the four races in which our ladies' team was engaged we won three and lost one. Special mention is made of the useful work done by Miss K. Holland, the club coach, and her services have been secured for our winter season, which opens on Friday, October 20th, at 8 p.m.

A number of club races will be held during the winter, and we have again entered a team of men and a team of ladies for the "Wise Shield" competition, which was revived last winter, and will again be a feature of winter swimming in Ilford for 1933-34. Other plans for the season will be posted on the notice board at the baths, and the committee intend to organise a life saving class for those members desirous of joining.

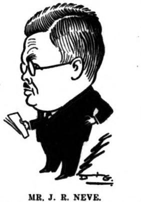
On Monday night, at 2, Richmond-road, Ilford, the inaugural general meeting of the proposed new badminton section was held, but a report of this is held over until next week. On Saturday next the tennis section will meet in London for their second annual dinner, and arrangements made for this event will provide a good evening with which to celebrate the end of their 1933 season.

In the meanwhile the tennis committee has completed its work in connection with the dance to be held at the Ilford Palais-de-Danse on Wednesday, November 1st, and tickets are now available for circulation.

Since writing the above report we have learned with very deep regret, of the sudden death of Mrs. Dorothy Baucutt, who, with her husband, Mr. Reg Baucutt, was a member of both our tennis and swimming sections. Only a week before her death, which occurred with such tragic suddenness, on Saturday last, Mrs. Baucutt was at tennis with us, and members will miss her company, and feel for Mr. Baucutt in his great loss.

Our sympathy is also extended to Mr. John Clegg, one of our prominent walking members, who, it is also reported, lost his father earlier last week, following a severe operation in King George Hospital.

SPORTSNAPS.



MR. J. R. NEVE.

Until lately secretary of the Ilford Athletic Club which office he held for three years. Member of club four years. Was honorary member when he offered his services as secretary. Can you imagine anyone taking on a scribe's job unless its at the end of a gun? A Perfect Secretary he was affable but possesses strong personality. Such a good secretary that he knows where everyone's bootlaces are. Never a minute late. Resigned for business reasons and is now vice-president of the club.

ILFORD S.C. SUCCESSES.

Placed in All County Championship Events.

At the Essex County Championships which were held at East Ham Baths on Saturday Ilford S.C. were successful in obtaining places in all the events in which they competed.

In the men's 100 yards championship, R. Gillham took third place to R. Sutton, Plaistow, and R. Oswald, East Ham.

We were unfortunate in the boy's 100 yards as J. Burke was unable to swim as he had broken his arm again the Wednesday before the race. This seems to be an habit with him, as it is only a few months ago that he did the same thing.

In the men's team championship we took second place to Plaistow, our time for the 528 yards being 5mins. 16secs., just 7secs. behind Plaistow.

The team consisted of H. Rothan, R. Gillham, A. J. Patterson, R. Barber, S. R. Pryor, and W. Bentley, each man averaging just over 52secs.

The girls took third place in the girls' team championship in 3mins. 7secs., just 4-5ths of a second behind Harwich. The girls' team were E. Wilde, J. Mayhew, E. Walker, D. Sutton, P. Varty, P. Luff.

In the boys' team championship we again took third place, the time being 6.55 for the 528 yards. The team consisted of E. Pearce, L. Thompson, C. J. Soul, D. Maynard, E. Berry and D. Marfleet.

The ladies also succeeded in coming in third to Plaistow and Harwich, their time being 7.16 for the 528 yards. Seeing that three of the juniors swam in this team after having swam in the heats and final of the junior team and also in the heats of the ladies, it was a very good time to put up.

The team was G. Anderson, B. Houston, M. Moulton, J. Mayhew, E. Walker and, I believe, B. Bonsor.

On Tuesday next we start the winter season in the Second Class Bath, when the times will be as follows: Ladies, 8 to 9 p.m.; and men, 9 to 10 p.m., when subscriptions become due.

I have just been informed that our two members, G. Henty and C. Scott, who had entered in the junior fancy diving championship of the A.D.A. open to all England, were successful in taking second and third places. Seeing that competitors had travelled from all parts to the Marshall-street Baths for this contest, and the large number of entries, this result was very satisfactory.

The championship was won by a Birmingham lad, with G. Henty second and C. Scott third, both of the above club.

HOCKEY NOTES...

By HARRY HASLAM

THE Old Christchurchians were the only local team to win last Saturday as Ilford were beaten at home and Goodmayes lost to Barnet at Barnet.

Ilford have a stiff fixture at Southend next week when they meet the Old Southendians who were a much improved side last season. In fact, I think they were putting out five elevens.

Goodmayes are unfortunate in losing the services of Eames, their goalkeeper, who is unable to turn out on Saturdays owing to business reasons.

Incidentally I heard only this week that he was married a few days after Arthur Drummond and I am sure all local players will wish him every happiness in his new sphere of "double harness."

He is still very enthusiastic about hockey and is anxious to join a mid-week side. He is still available for the County "A" if required as he is keeping his membership with the Goodmayes Club.

The Goodmayes report is quite enthusiastic this week but I am sure the club can do with a few more members if three teams are to be put into the field every week. It is very disheartening to a side to be short and the lower eleven is the one that gets it in the neck. If there are any budding hockey players in the district looking for a club, I should be glad to hear from them.

Congratulations to Miss Harris, of the Ilford Ladies, who captained the Welsh side recently against the American tourists. Miss Harris tells me the Americans are very much improved and could be made into a good side.

I am pleased to hear this week from Mr. Atkinson of the Port of London Authority.

If these notes should catch the eye of the hon. secretary of the Air Force at Hornchurch, I should be glad to hear if my old friend Chas. Coultie is their hon. secretary this season and to let me have a fixture card and a few notes on the side. It will be remembered that Hornchurch won their way to the final of the junior Air Force Cup last season, when they were beaten by their old rivals from North Weald.

Fixtures for Saturday are Ilford v. Old Southendians at Southend, whilst the third eleven entertain the Old Southendians 3rd, the fourth eleven being away to Romford 2nd.

Goodmayes are away to the Bank of England, and Old Christchurchians are at home to Brentwood 2nd.

Eastwood Ladies open their season with a visit from Harrow, whilst the Old Christchurchians entertain Upminster. I came across the centre-forward from Upminster in an Insurance Cup final last week, and if the rest of the side are up to her standard, the Old Christchurchians will have a hard game.

Club reports as follows:—

ILFORD.

ILFORD 0; MAIDENHEAD 1.

Ilford played their first match at home to Maidenhead.

Several new faces appeared in the Ilford team as owing to illhealth and injury the Chamberlain brothers and Harding will not be available for some time. Maidenhead were unfortunately short in the first half but they were able to hold the Ilford forwards.

The home forwards worked hard but they were very weak near the circle and failed to make any real openings in the opposing defence.

After the change over Maidenhead soon opened the scoring. Ilford tried hard to equalise but the luck was not with them.

On the whole the team shows promise, but several experiments will probably have to be made before the best forward line is found. Flemming at centre-half played a hard working game and has a very good idea of positional play.

GOODMAYES.

GOODMAYES 1; BARNET 2.

Goodmayes opened by visiting their old friends at Barnet and losing by two goals to one.

Play was of a fast and open character. Goodmayes penned Barnet in their own half for the first ten minutes and were unlucky not to score. Barnet then came into their own and scored a very fine goal. Just after this Jeffes received a nasty injury, being badly cut about the forehead, and had to retire temporarily.

Half-time came with Barnet leading by the only goal scored, but after about ten minutes the Goodmayes right-wing took the ball up the field and centred for Purrier to equalise. Barnet then set up a series of attacks which culminated in their inside-right giving them the final goal. They just about deserved their win on the run of the game. Duncan at left back was the outstanding player for Goodmayes, his "flicking" being a most useful form of defence.

Team: Hooton; Crowhurst, Duncan; Forbes, Gunn, Andrews; Russell, Lurman, Powell, Purrier and Jeffes.

Goodmayes 2nd lost their first match this season to Barnet 2nd by 2 goals to 1. Both teams fielded strong sides and the game was fast.

The home team played well during the first half and the inside-right scored with a fine shot just before the interval.

On the resumption Goodmayes had a lapse and the visitors succeeded in equalising. The home team then rallied but failed to prevent Barnet scoring the winning goal.

Goodmayes halves played well during the first part of the game, but after the interval they were inclined to keep the ball too long and failed to pass correctly. The ball was distributed amongst the forwards very well during the early part of the game but was kept in the centre too much during the latter stage of the game.

Nevertheless the team should do very well this season and good results are anticipated.

OLD CHRISTCHURCHIANS.

OLD CHRISTCHURCHIANS 2; KEARLEY & TONGE 0.

At Wanstead. Play was decidedly to the O.C's advantage during the first half but the forward line lacked cohesion, and offside spoiled promising movements until B. Clark netted after about thirty minutes.

In the second half the O.C's dominated the game and the forwards played a fine passing game until after good work by Wiles, D. Slade scored. These attacks were kept up but the home defence played a sound game and managed to smother most of the shots.

Goodmayes 3rd were the visitors at Barkingside on Saturday; they came, they saw, they conquered—by the narrow margin of 3—2—and they were value for their win. The O.C's seconds fielded a re-shuffled team owing to absentees, and included a couple of welcome recruits, both of whom shaped promisingly. Vice-captain Claude Nash, erstwhile right-winger, very sportingly volunteered for the vacant goalkeeping position and did well there, being in no way to blame for the three goals against him.

Goodmayes showed the better team work. Their wingers were very fast and from one of their attacks they opened the scoring after about 15 minutes play. Ten minutes later Gerald Larcombe, who was essaying the centre-forward position, equalised with a very clever goal. Goodmayes replied in the next minute by going straight through the centre and scoring, and, just before half-time they scored again, thus leading by 3—1 at the interval.

The O.C's had rather more of the game in the second half and Ed. Massey put in a lot of good work. From one of his centres Gerald Larcombe hit the post with a first time shot. George Marshall nearly scored from the rebound but it was recruit Robinson who put the finishing touch.

P.L.A. 2; R.U.R. 2.

The P.L.A. opened their season with an away match at Gravesend with the Royal Ulster Rifles. The game opened with P.L.A. pressing and after five minutes they were rewarded with a goal. The Irishmen rallied however and squared matters by half-time. In the second half the soldiers' physical trim became apparent and playing a much faster game they were unlucky several times not to score but eventually got the ball in the net. The P.L.A. defence though very hard-pressed held out and five minutes from time P.L.A. scored a runaway goal. On the whole the visitors were lucky to escape with a draw, but credit must be given to the excellent defence and well-timed rushes of their goalkeeper Camp. The home side played an extremely fast combined game and local secretaries are advised to write to Captain Jowers at the Gravesend Barracks if they would like to add an extremely enjoyable fixture to their list.

WOMEN'S HOCKEY.

OLD CHRISTCHURCHIANS 6; MARNION 1.

At Barkingside. The O.C's were again too good for Marnion although it was not until the second half that they found the net. The O.C's have not yet settled down and the team work is rather ragged but this should soon be remedied. A point of Saturday's game was that the halves were too close to the forwards leaving a nasty gap in midfield. Goal scorers: V. Beckwith, 2; O. Prustman, 3; A. Clark, J. Robinson.

The Old Christchurchians Ladies 2nd XI visited Marnion, their opponents of the previous week, at Woodford, on Saturday and were successful in returning home the victors by seven clear goals. Marnion fielded a stronger team and the O.C's defence was kept fairly busy. The visitors, however, were quicker on the ball and gave their opponents few opportunities of shooting. Special commendation is deserved by G. Clarke, M. Haythorne and W. Backhouse. Goal scorers for the O.C's were B. Phillips (2), W. Backhouse (2), J. Fenn (2), N. Reynolds (1).

Modern Inventions in Schools

VIEWS ON THE ART OF LISTENING.

Children Who Learn Not To Hear.

EDUCATIONIST AND THE NOISE PERIL.

Children need to be taught to listen in exactly the same way as they have to be taught to read. To-day there is a very grave danger that a wrong use of wireless is teaching children, and adults as well, the entirely opposite thing how to shut out and not hear any sound which they do not wish to hear.

This was one of many interesting statements made by Mr. C. Bavin, M.C., of the Central Educational Department of the Columbia and H.M.V. gramophone company, in the course of a lecture-demonstration on "The use of the Gramophone in Schools," given to Ilford teachers at the Beal Modern School, on Thursday.

"To-day," he said, "the wireless is installed in the homes of all your pupils. And in a great many families the wireless is turned on and kept on. I went, the other evening, into a home where two big girls were trying to do their evening preparation. They were sitting at the table. Father and mother, one on either side of the fire, were talking at the top of their voices, and the wireless was full on, blaring away in one corner of the room. No one was listening to it, or wanting to listen to it. How those poor little wretches could do any serious work, I couldn't understand!"

This state of affairs, he continued, was not limited to just a few homes, but was quite common in many. The result was that children and adults were developing the habit of not listening.

"Children learn to shut their ears to the beastly noise at home," he said, "and then when they get to school they use that power to shut their ears to their teachers. When they leave school and go to a job, the boss says, 'Do so-and-so,' but they've got so used to not hearing what they don't want to, that they don't hear him. And then you all know what's going to happen!"

He urged those who take any share in the training of children, to teach them either to turn the wireless on and listen, or shut it off altogether.

GRAMOPHONES IN SCHOOLS.

Gramophones, he believed, could be used to great advantage by teachers in schools, but teachers should never just put on the gramophone and leave children to listen.

"They must hear, not only with their ears, but with their brains!" he said. "You must direct and control the listening. You must supply a sort of running commentary, showing your children what they should listen for. When you are teaching appreciation of a piece of music, of course, a time will come when your children know what to listen for, and you will then be able to put your record on for a quiet listen. But you must realise that at the start the child no more understands what to listen for, than he knows how to read until you have taught him."

Mr. Bavin first demonstrated how records might assist in developing an appreciation of literature. He put on a record of Mr. John Drinkwater reading one of his own poems, "Mrs. Willow," which, of course, showed how the author intended the work to be read. And the lecturer suggested that the children should be told to listen to the reading with a view to finding out the answer to two questions—"What did Mrs. Willow do?" and "At what time of the year was the poem written?" It was also possible to get records of other poets reading their own works, and also to obtain passages of Shakespeare recited by Forbes Robertson.

In the teaching of languages, the use of the gramophone offered two advantages. A particular passage or phrase could be reproduced over and over again, spoken by a Frenchman, until the child learned to mimic his exact reproduction of the sounds. And the French phrase was always preceded by the English translation, so that the two things became linked automatically in the children's minds. It was also possible to have French children speaking as well as adults.

HEARING RHYTHM.

But the gramophone, he considered, was most outstandingly useful in teaching children to listen and to appreciate music, and in training them to catch the rhythm which is the real spirit of the piece.

Then followed a most remarkable demonstration showing how subjects such as time and form, which to most people seem dull and full of technical mysteries and difficulties, can be taught even to tiny children with the utmost ease and delightful simplicity, without the use of a single technical term. And many members of Mr. Bavin's audience, as the demonstration proceeded, found that though they had no pretence to the slightest musical accomplishment or any talent in that direction, they were themselves able to pick out the different instruments in an orchestra, catch two simultaneous rhythms, and distinguish and recognise the phrases of music combine in different types of composition.

The teaching of music Mr. Bavin said, should begin in the infants' school, with the teaching of percussion. He believed that as soon as a child could learn its letters and fit them into simple words, it was able to learn to know a crochet from a quaver, and to beat time with a percussion instrument.

By the time a child reaches the top class of the infants' school, it should be able to recognise a tune simply by hearing the rhythm tapped out.

The next stage in musical education was to make the children listen and count how many times the same tune is repeated in one piece of music. He played Chopin 7th Prelude, and showed that the same few bars of music were repeated again and again.

"Teach the children that no matter what we do, whether it's making a pudding, making a dress, writing a composition, or composing a piece of music, we must have some plan on which to work. And so a musicion does not put his notes together anyhow. He has a special theme, or tune, about which he writes."

A symphony was a piece of music made up of one tune treated in all sorts of different ways, said Mr. Bavin, who then played Haydn's "Surprise Symphony" to illustrate the point. In a sonata, two tunes were used.

"Your main task as teachers," he concluded, "is to make children listen intelligently to what they hear, and to show them what a pleasant thing listening can be."

BUSINESS BY PLANE.—The use of the aeroplane for commercial purposes was recently demonstrated by Mr. D. C. Lamb, managing director of Lamb's Ltd., motor agents, who with his two colleagues, Mr. H. T. Francis and Mr. G. V. Royle, and his son, a Cambridge undergraduate, flew to Coventry to carry out a business deal. They left Ilford at 11 a.m., inspected fleets of cars and took lunch in Coventry, and were home again by 4 p.m., the whole trip costing only £12, which included tips.

WHEN RELIGION IS A CURSE.

Rev. H. P. Simmance at Ilford Men's Meeting

"Religion can be a curse," said the Rev. H. P. Simmance, in an address at the Ilford Men's Meeting on Sunday. Religion had given support and sanction to the lowest things in nature as well as the highest.

In 1572, a day of solemn thanksgiving was proclaimed and Te Deums were sang throughout Europe. The great event so solemnly celebrated was the slaying of 20,000 Huguenot Christians on St. Bartholomew's Eve. Religion was the cause of the slaughter and religion the cause of the Te Deums.

In Belgium was a collection of instruments of torture so infamously varied and complete that if all Hell sat up all night it would be difficult to add to the museum of torture, invented by Christians to correct one another in the religion of Christ.

Christ was not crucified by the irreligious, but by the religious. Any war was bad business, but a war of religion, called "a holy war" was worse.

IGNORANT PREJUDICE.

The ignorant prejudice that refused to honour the work of the League of Nations because of some Old Moore's Almanac outlook, was a moral obtuseness.

When a great earthquake destroyed Lisbon and tens of thousands of people, the religious of that day ascribed it a punishment for their sins. That wickedly uncharitable judgment turned Voltaire into an Atheist.

The narrow and ignorant mentality that conceived such parodies of Christ's religion made human and humane people stay outside the churches. It was so easy to endure the misfortunes and sufferings of others and to ascribe them to the will of God who had some special lesson to teach them. Suffering and pain were certainly not the will of God.

When would men give up their un-Christlike conceptions and ask themselves whether the religion they held was linked up to the highest, or did it give sanctions for hatred towards those who did not worship in the same way. When would men learn the story of the amazing love of the great mother-heart of God.

UNEMPLOYMENT DECREASE.

Steady Improvement in Ilford.

There are at present almost 500 fewer unemployed in Ilford than there were this time last year.

This fact was stated at the first meeting of the reconstructed Ilford Employment Committee at the Town Hall last week by the secretary, Mr. H. J. Collyer. The number of persons registered at the Employment Exchange as unemployed, he said, was 2,801 (of whom 427 are women) compared with 3,291 (438 women) in 1932.

Since the September meeting, reported the secretary, 316 persons had been placed in employment through the medium of the Exchange.

The meeting was presided over by Mr. W. J. Oliver Sheat, who welcomed Mr. J. M. Hamilton, a representative of the Divisional Controller. The committee, he continued, were endeavouring to do all in their power to help those whom they were appointed to serve, by advising the Minister on the many questions that required solution from time to time.

Mr. Hamilton apologised for the absence of the Divisional Controller, and on his behalf thanked the chairman and the members of the committee for their interest in the work of the Employment Exchange and their public spirit in advising the Minister on all matters appertaining to the activities of the Exchange in the Ilford area.

Others members present included Mr. Barker, Councillor Braithwaite, Messrs. Gale, Hankinson, Harding, Haskell, Hasler, Hedges, Howard, Hutchings, Councillor Meade, Messrs. Miles, Porter, Stevens, Taylor, Miss Larkin and Mrs Watts.

On the motion of Mr. Taylor, seconded by Miss Larkin, Mr. Porter was again unanimously elected vice-chairman.

ELLEN TERRY CLUB FOR THE BLIND.

At the weekly meeting of the Ilford Ellen Terry Club for the Blind, on Thursday, Mrs. Wise presided, and an enjoyable musical programme was contributed to by Miss Breens, Miss B. Chapman, Miss Willing, Mrs. Barnes and Mrs. Sharp.

CHURCH NOTES AND NEWS.

Goodmayes Wesley Guild.

The opening social of the Goodmayes Wesley Guild, held last Wednesday, took the form of an indoor garden party, the hall being appropriately decorated. The programme included games and competitions and vocal solos were rendered during the evening by Mrs. Hammond.

The various sectional officers of the Guild gave short explanations of their respective sections and speeches were also made by the president's wife, Mrs. Mitchell, and the new general secretary, Miss G. E. Brooks.

Thanksgiving in the Slums.

Harvest festival thanksgiving services at the Salmon-lane Mission (Conder-street), Limehouse, always auspicious events in the lives of many hundreds of poor people in East London, held their forty-third annual celebrations during the week-end.

Saturday evening was actively spent in decorating the Mission Hall and collecting and arranging the many gifts. Large numbers of poor and aged folk, and little ones trooped in, bringing some little thank-offering, and obviously proud of their part in the festival. On Sunday, all services were attended by large congregations. The hall was again full on Monday evening, when Mr. S. T. Norman (chairman of the Mission Trustees), presided and Mrs. J. Lockwood, of Ilford (president of the Mission), gave a helpful address. Mr. A. Conridge also briefly spoke. Mr. E. Percy Dennis (hon. superintendent), supporting a hearty vote of thanks to all who had contributed to the success of the gatherings, expressed his gratitude that he had been privileged to take part in the good work of the Mission for 40 years. He pleaded for support to hasten the completion of a new and larger mission hall so vitally needed to accommodate those now unable to gain admission to the Mission services.

Wycliffe Young People's Institute

At last Sunday's meeting of the Wycliffe Young People's Institute, the speaker was a member of the Institute, Mr. E. R. Steiner, B.A., who gave an extremely interesting address.

Dr. Leslie Burrage sang two solos delightfully.

Seven Kings Men's Meeting.

At Seven Kings Men's Meeting on Sunday, Mr. Wyman spoke of the Christian ideal in the world of to-day. He stressed the utter futility of trying to cram theological data down the throats of the man in the street. It was a truism that one must first attend to a man or woman's bodily needs, before it was possible to interest them in things spiritual. To talk of hell to many of the two and a half millions unemployed would be waste of breath; their retort would probably be, "Hell? I am going through it now!"

Miss Gertrude Hills charmingly rendered three solos to everyone's enjoyment.

Beacontree Heath.—Preacher at 11 a.m., Mr. W. J. Bennett; 6.30 p.m., supply.

Barkingside.—Preacher at 11 a.m., Rev. T. F. Chislett; 6.30 p.m., supply.

Seven Kings.—Preacher at 11 a.m., and 6.30 p.m., Rev. W. O. Smith.

Eastern-avenue. — Preacher at 11 a.m. and 6.30 p.m., Rev. R. Ashby Howe.

Connaught-road.—Preacher at 11 a.m. and 6.30 p.m., Rev. Luther E. Laven.

Erkenwald School, Highgrove-road, Dagenham.—Preacher at 6.30 p.m., Rev. H. J. Crocker, subject, "The Utmost for the Highest."

PRESBYTERIAN.

Oakfield-road.—Preacher at 11 a.m. and 6.30 p.m., Rev. W. M. Traill, M.A.

St. Andrew's, Goodmayes.—Preacher at 11 a.m. and 6.30 p.m., Rev. David Sutherland.

ROMAN CATHOLIC.

St. Augustine's, Barkingside. — Mass, 9.15 a.m.

SS. Peter and Paul, Ilford.—Masses at 8, 9.30, 10.30 and 11.30 a.m.; evening service, 6.30 p.m.

St. Vincent's, Becontree.—Masses at 8, 9, 10.30 and 11.30 a.m.; evening service, 6.30 p.m.

Holy Family (Five Elms), Becontree.—Masses at 8, 9.30 and 11.30 a.m.

OTHER DENOMINATIONS.

Christian Science, Cranbrook Hall. —Services at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Christadelphian, Scrafton-road. — Speaker at 6.30 p.m., Mr. F. R. Thompson, subject, "Back to the Bible."

Penticostal, Ashton Hall, Chadwell Heath.—11 a.m., Communion service; 3 p.m., Bible study; 6.30 p.m., Gospel study.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

MAYOR REBUKES CYCLISTS.

Carelessness That May Be Fatal.

Dear Sir,—In the course of years it has been interesting to read the discussions in your paper in regard to the rights of cyclists as compared with the rights of motorists, but I was forcibly struck with the positive carelessness of cyclists last evening. I had occasion to go up Green-lane, and between Seven Kings-road and Bennetts Castle-lane I passed no fewer than eight cyclists with no rear reflector or signal of any kind. This appears strange to me in view of two facts; the requirements of the law on the one hand (a rear, red reflector), and the terrible consequences to which they themselves are liable in the event of accident.

As a cyclist for very many years, and also a driver of a motor car for a considerable period, my sympathies are strong both with the cyclist and the motorist; for the safety of the cyclist on the one hand, and the saving of undeserved abuse of the motorist on the other. I understand that cases are occasionally taken before the Bench at Stratford, which means the loss of a day's work, even if there be no fine and costs, but that is by far the least consideration. The mutilation of young boys or girls (or those of more mature age), or possible crippling for life, does merit (I feel like saying "does demand") the careful consideration of this matter.

I can scarcely believe that cyclists realise fully the risk they accept so lightly; the cost of a red disc fixed at the rear is trifling in view of the consequences such provision may save. This is important both to employers and employees.

Trusting that careless cyclists will accept this as a word in season, I remain, yours faithfully,

C. W. CLARK,
Mayor.
Town Hall, Ilford.

INTER-LANGUAGE.

Official Reply to Critic of Esperanto.

Dear Sir,—I notice in your issue of last week two references to this Association, and beg to reply briefly. Mr. Beer asks anyone interested to write us to find out whether he has a knowledge of Esperanto or not. All that I can reply is that I have no information whatever as to his knowledge or ignorance of Esperanto, but if his ignorance of the language is on a par with his ignorance of the Esperanto movement, as displayed in his letters to the Press, this ignorance must be very great.

I do not know on what grounds Mr. C. C. Turner thinks that our association suggests that Esperanto is intended purely for diplomatic purposes, and I can assure him that no such thing has ever been said or suggested by us. Experience shows that Esperanto is fully suitable for all purposes of international intercourse, and the growing use and recognition of Esperanto justifies our belief that Esperanto should be taught in the schools, as, in fact, it increasingly is being taught. I enclose for your information a manifesto signed by some of the most prominent educationists in the schools, and another giving opinions of teachers and inspectors who have had practical experience of such teaching and its results.

Finally, your correspondent says that the objections to Esperanto raised by the advocates of Ido and Volapuk still remain unanswered. As there are no advocates of Volapuk left, it is difficult to answer objections raised by people who are non-existent. The case is almost the same with Ido, except that there remain one or two diehards whom we can admire for their hopeless loyalty to a lost cause. I enclose, however, a leaflet giving an answer to the objections that used to be raised by the Idists in the days when Ido was seriously advocated.

If and when there ever are any Occidentalists in England except Messrs. Beer and Biddle, and if ever they can bring forward any serious objection to Esperanto based on fact and not on fancy, the Esperantists will, of course, always be ready to give a reason for the faith that is in them, but surely the columns of the "Ilford Recorder" are not the place for a technical discussion which could have no value to anyone not acquainted with the facts and systems discussed. Suffice it to say that in theory and in practice, Esperanto holds the field, and if anyone is sufficiently interested to wish for details, I shall be pleased to send him free the leaflets named, or any further information, on receipt of an enquiry.—Faithfully yours,

MONTAGU C. BUTLER, M.R.S.T.,
Secretary.
British Esperanto Association,
142, High Holborn, London, W.C.1.

The Union of English and Spanish

Sir,—Mr. Howell still carries on an argument which bears out my contention that the anxiety of the advocates of the various proposed international languages would render any attempt to proceed with same into a modern version of the Tower of Babel.

It may be true that the union of English and Spanish would be very like Occidental, but if both Englishmen and Spaniards have got to learn another language, surely it would be just as easy for them to learn the one with which they are not acquainted as it would be to pore over Occidental, only to find that the student would be still handicapped by lack of knowledge of Esperanto, Volapuk or some of the other inventions which appeal to their adherents as being ideal.—Yours, etc.,

C. CLAXTON TURNER.
BM/ENK8, London W.C.1.

Why Ido is an Improvement.

Dear Sir,—Your correspondent, Mr. Howell, suggests that Ido is inferior to Esperanto. It will be interesting for your readers to know that Esperanto was published in 1887 by its sole author, Dr. Zamenhof, while Ido was developed out of Esperanto by the International Delegation in Paris from 1900 to 1907.

We do not deny that Esperanto is a very fine piece of work, particularly in view of the fact that its author was an amateur, and not a linguist. We do not contest its value any more than one would contest the value of Stephenson's Rocket, the first engine to be invented, but everyone will acknowledge that the Flying Scotsman is a very great improvement on the Rocket. In the same way those who know the history and development of Ido will acknowledge that the younger language is a great improvement on Esperanto

We Idists regret very much that our friends, the Esperantists, who work for the same idea of the auxiliary language, do not acknowledge this necessity of development, but we are convinced that some day they will acknowledge that such evolution is absolutely necessary here as in every field of human progress.—Yours faithfully,

J. HEINRICH.

AMATEUR BOXING.

Plea for Greater Interest in Ilford.

Dear Sir,—In reply to your correspondent interested in amateur boxing, in this week's "Ilford Recorder," it is strange to me that a growing suburb like Ilford makes no effort to encourage the youth of the borough in the most manly of games.

Boxing to-day is vastly different from what it was in pre-war days, in fact most amateur shows are like a society function. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales is patron of the Amateur Boxing Association, and H.R.H. the Duke of York will attend an amateur show at East Ham on November 2nd, whilst the Duke of Gloucester will do likewise at Canning Town on November 9th.

The sport is the higher expression of the art of self-defence, and ensures the fighting instinct, so necessary in every walk of life to-day, being directed into the right channels.

If a few sportsmen in the borough were to call a meeting, backed by the Scouts, and "K" Division, Metropolitan Police—famous a few winters ago for their amateur shows at Ilford Rink—I feel certain your correspondent, with dozens of other youths, could be catered for in a sport which has played a great part in the moulding of the history of this nation.—Yours, etc.,

Hon. Secretary,
Civil Service Boxing Club and Councillor, Amateur Boxing Association.

LONDON CO-OP MANAGER RETIRES.

Manager of the Seven Kings branch for the past ten years, and previously at the Cann Hall-road, Leytonstone branch, in a similar position, Mr. Paul W. Robey has now retired after 27 years service with the London Co-operative Society.

At a function held at the store, Mr. Robey was presented with a £25 cheque from Seven Kings residents and friends and a wash chest stand from local employees.

Mrs. Robey was given a cut glass vase and a bouquet of pink carnations, presented by little Miss Joan Connatty, daughter of the Seven Kings greengrocery manager.

Referring to Mr. Robey's lengthy service, Mr. J. N. Webster, general manager, said that his genial personality and charm of manner had endeared his retiring colleague to all members and employees in the Seven Kings area and they would join with him in extending to Mr and Mrs. Robey best wishes for many years of good health and comfort.

Mr. Robey suitably replied.

Mrs. F. A. Ashby (nee Higgins) for 12 years clerk at Seven Kings branch, was then presented with a mahogany table from the staff, and a large frameless mirror from members and friends.

PRIMROSE LEAGUE—SPLASH NIGHT.

The first annual "Splash" night of the Primrose League (Ilford Branch) Swimming Section was held at the Ilford Baths on Monday.

Alderman F. Smith, vice-president, attended and presented the prizes. In a few well chosen words he expressed his keen appreciation of the very fine swimming and the sturdy appearance of the girls and boys taking part.

A feature of the evening was an exhibition by the babies of the club, the youngest of whom is only four years old, arranged by our coach—Miss Daly.

Prior to the prizes being given Ald. Smith made a presentation to Miss Daly as a mark of the club's appreciation for her work and assistance.

THE DOG NUISANCE.

Dear Sir,—The dog nuisance in this vicinity is becoming an abomination. It has lately, more than ever, become the custom for dog owners to let out their pets at early morning and night to roam the street and in consequence one meets dogs of all descriptions endangering their lives in the traffic, fighting among themselves and generally becoming a nuisance to all.

May I, as a dog owner, protest through the medium of your paper, that those who are too lazy to exercise their animals in the proper manner should not keep them.—Yours faithfully,

H. S. BATSFORD.

ACCIDENTS IN PARKS.

Sir,—During the past few weeks, I have witnessed accidents in Goodmayes Park and at Cricklefields Sports Ground. It seems almost incredible that in neither place was a telephone on the ground, and valuable time was consequently lost before the ambulance could be summoned.

Now that the Council elections are at hand perhaps some of the candidates will give this matter consideration, and thus support the Postmaster General's endeavours in advertising the telephone service.—Yours, etc.,

C. J. KEBBELL.

JOKING APART...
HIGH LIGHTS AND SIDE LIGHTS HERE AND THERE.
& JEWELL

HUSH-HUSH POLICY.

"I can see the day coming," said Jewell, "when a platform 50 feet high will be built outside the Bank of England, or the Old Lady of Treadmill-street, as they call it; a vast concourse will assemble, and the Lord Mayor of London, who will be accompanied by the Prime Minister of the period and a couple of dozen selected flowers of the aristocracy and, if the platform be a strong one, a City Alderman, will scale the ladder and then, with due pomp and ceremony drop a pin amongst the seething whirlpool of traffic.

"As the crash of the falling pin hitting the ground booms on the ears of those present, a silent cheer will go up and the ceremony will be completed by 24 votes of thanks, all in the deaf and dumb alphabet

"The Lord Mayor and his guests will then adjourn to the Mansion House and wallow in turtle soup and congratulations on having seen the complete abolition of noise.

"I hope I shall be there for, though I say it as shouldn't, I have taken the lead in the abolition of noise. Long before the "Ilford Recorder" and Lord Riddell began their campaign I was using on my car a silent motor horn of my own invention.

"It operated this way. On approaching a pedestrian I pressed the bulb of the horn, whereupon a model of a hand was extended in front of the radiator cap (this was when I had a radiator cap) and tapped the pedestrian politely on the shoulder and jerked its thumb towards the pavement.

"At the same time, and if the pedestrian was a lady, another hand politely lifted the radiator cap and a concealed gramophone said, "D'you mind, madam?"

"But when the mechanism went wrong one day and this little speech was delivered to a policeman on point duty I gave up that part of it.

"Another invention of mine which did a great deal to eliminate undesirable noise was the noiseless bell I had on my door.

"On pressing the knob, the step collapsed, precipitating the caller down a chute into my special noiseless, padded coal cellar.

"This meant, of course, that we collected anything from errand boys down to income-tax and rate collectors, and we had some little difficulty with some of them, mentioning particularly the postmen who took to wrapping our letters round bricks and hurling them through the windows from the street.

"We devised, therefore, a special apparatus above the bell. It was composed of a sensitive piece of material which registered the facial expression of the caller.

"People like income-tax collectors, policemen and hawkers know that no one wants to see them at the door, and they consequently look grim as they press the bell.

"On this expression being registered an electric current was set in motion, and the trap door was prevented from opening.

"I am now turning my attention to other methods of reducing noise.

"I have practically completed the Jewell Silent Soup-spoon and a noiseless knife and fork, these latter weapons being made of soft rubber.

"As you know already my wireless set has always been silent, and I am wrestling with the problem of training the goldfish to stop singing in his bath.

"The next time the wife cuts the lawn she will do so with a pair of noiseless scissors constructed entirely of rubber.

ME: "WHAT NOISE?"

"If any man has forwarded the cause of silence it has been me, and I welcome Lord Riddell as an ally, and you can put me down as having said so.

"But much remains to be done.

"The Ilford Council has set a lead with their pneumatic-tyred wheelbarrow, which they should follow up with soundless speeches.

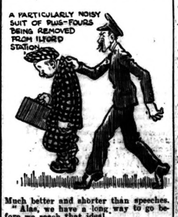
"I am going to suggest that, if they must make speeches, they should make them in dumb show; if they must drop books on the floor they should use sorbo-covered volumes and, if they must have their speeches published, they should have a silent film taken of their actions.

"'What,' you will say, 'about the Houses of Parliament?' A proper question. Now I suggest that, instead of delivering speeches explanatory of their intentions, they should act a series of charades and leave the public to see the film and guess, as they do now, what they mean.

"To show you what I have in mind. Suppose the Government bring in a motion to double the expenditure on something—say armaments, which is the first thing they think of.

"Enter a taxpayer, who will be recognised by his threadbare look, bearing a bag of money. Enter the Prime Minister, who strikes taxpayer with a blunt instrument and snatches bag of money.

"Enter armament manufacturer, dancing a madrigal to the glory of war. Prime Minister steps up to him. A. M. opens a case of samples of bombs, howitzers and battleships. P. M. registers I'll-Have-a-Basin-of-Those expression. Pours bag of money into A. M.'s pocket and takes the case. Tableau. Curtain. Everything neat and effective.



A PARTICULARLY NOISY SUIT OF PLUS-FOURS BEING REMOVED FROM ILFORD STATION

Much better and shorter than speeches.

"Alas, we have a long way to go before we reach that ideal.

"We have first to educate the man in the street before we tackle the harder nut—the politician.

"We have to educate newsboys to whisper into your ear instead of bellowing 'Orl the winnerrs'; we have to see that our park-keepers regularly oil all grass-hoppers and crickets and rub frogs nightly with embrocation.

"We have to bring in a Statute ordering the fixing of silencers to cats and dogs, symphony orchestras, boiler factories, taxi-drivers and other producers in a large way of discordance.

"While we of the Anti-Noise League do not disapprove of saxophones we disapprove of saxophones in the roar, and we shall insist of this section of an orchestra being placed in a separate and sealed room which permits of no noise issuing from it. This will be no hardship to the players who never listen to the rest of the band, any way, and will be a boon to the public.

"Then we have to teach people in glass-houses not to throw stones, but to use sponges instead; we have to fit out all our sidesmen with tennis shoes, the heels of which do not squelch; we have to introduce rubber milk-churns and teach the railway to use rubber-shod horses instead of engines.

"We have to instruct bandits in the use of silent revolvers, or gats, and shopkeepers must use noiseless glass which will not create a din when operated upon by smash and grab raiders.

"When that, and a few other things have been done, we shall have reached the ideal state when you will be able to hear the deep whirr of the grass growing, the sullen boom of buds bursting and the shrill rasping of the Duke of Dumwit thinking.

"I think," said Jewell thoughtfully, "we will use the yardstick Fate has given us and make him the acid test of quietude."

Cranbrook Wesley Guild.

The banquet held on the first night of each winter session by the Cranbrook Wesley Guild, took place on Wednesday, when, as usual, there was a good attendance.

Tribute to various branches of the Guild's activities was paid in a number of toasts.

All Saints' Church.

Harvest Festival Services were held at All Saints' Church, Goodmayes, on Friday and Sunday. The church had been decorated with masses of flowers, fruit and vegetables.

The address on Friday was given by the Rev. D. C. Tibbenham, vicar of St. Mary's, Plaistow, the preacher at both morning and evening services on Sunday being the Rev. W. Horne, of Felixstowe.

Special music was sung at all services the choir giving a particularly fine rendering of "The Wilderness," by Sir John Goss and "O Lord how Manifold."

Little Ilford Baptists.

Harvest thanksgiving services were held at the Little Ilford Baptist Tabernacle on Sunday. The Rev. S. Frape was the preacher in the morning, Mr. Cornell delivered an inspiring address to the children in the afternoon, and in the evening, the minister (the Rev. C. Ayton Williams) was the preacher.

The celebrations were continued on Monday evening, when a devotional meeting was held. After which, more than fifty people sat down to the annual harvest supper.

ILFORD TEACHERS ARE "SO BASHFUL"!

Educational "Talkies" Leave Them Speechless

BUT SCIENCE MASTER OFFERS CRITICISM.

An exhibition of educational sound films, held by the Ilford Teachers' Association at the Beal Modern School on Wednesday of last week (and briefly reported in the "Recorder"), proved so informative that only one of the audience—a science master—could be persuaded to comment upon them.

The exhibition, which was arranged with a view to considering the desirability of introducing such methods of education into Ilford schools, consisted of six films, dealing with scientific, musical, historical and geographical subjects, and all especially designed for exhibition to schoolchildren.

They were, however, considered by Mr. T. L. D. Porter, B.A., B.Sc., science master at the Ilford County High School, to contain such a mass of material that no schoolchild could possibly remember any of it. In fact, he declared that, after seeing such films, pupils would finish the term no wiser than they were when they commenced it!

Mr. H. J. ODELL.

Mr. H. J. Odell, president of the Association, introduced the films, the first of which illustrated some of the principles of the surface tension of water.

Obviously, it surprised many of the audience, so that its devastating effect upon a class of schoolchildren can well be imagined.

SCIENCE BLOWS BUBBLES.

Amongst other almost incredible things, it showed how ordinary bubbles of soap and water could be stretched into cylindrical shape, blown one inside the other, and generally manipulated without bursting.

The second film dealt with the miracles of pollination, the parts and physiology of flowers being presented by animation. The third (made in America) explained the important part taken by percussion instruments in the symphony orchestra. The fourth had for its subject the depredation of the woodwasp in timber, introduced the woodwasp's parasite, an amusing creature (when magnified) named Rhyssa, and showed how its activities prevent the woodwasp from multiplying at too great a rate, thus reducing the damage to the timber.

It was all tremendously interesting, but more fit for adult education than the young.

The other two "talkies" were a film dealing with the Island of Cyprus, and another with the life of Stanley, the explorer. These, with the musical one, seemed more likely to be grasped by the juvenile mind than the others.

Following the exhibition, the chairman spoke of the progress of the cinema and emphasised the hold it had on its patrons.

Remarking that it had been said that such aids to education as the film represented, would eventually oust human teachers altogether, he reminded his audience that, although many of these aids had been introduced, the teachers still remained.

He declared they should not neglect such possibilities as were opened up by the educational talkie, and asked them to consider its advantages or otherwise, as applied to their work.

FILMS "TOO PACKED."

But though he gave them every possible encouragement, the audience could not be persuaded to discuss the subject. Many minutes elapsed before Mr. Porter eventually arose to air his views.

His first objection to the innovation was based on the smallness of classrooms, which made it impossible to introduce the apparatus to separate classes of scholars.

Next, he considered that there was a great deal too much material crowded into the films, especially mentioning the one dealing with surface tension. In this respect, he thought there were enough experiments which could be done by the children themselves, before seeing the more abstruse ones performed in the film, which, he added, could only be used as a very rapid recapitulation of a series of experiments done in the classroom.

Concerning the second film, he thought that, though there was a great deal of information contained in it, again it was "much too packed."

Speaking of the film on Cyprus, he said: "If this film were one of a series, and were followed by others concerning other countries of a similar nature, the children would get muddled up with the films, and would know no more at the end of the term than they did at the beginning.

"If there were too much of this sort of thing, you would know as much of the subjects treated as you do of the sermons you hear at your church, at the end of six months."

He emphasised that it was the personal touch of the teacher himself that counted in the long run; unless they had that, they could not have education in its real sense.

"SO BASHFUL!"

The chairman afterwards continued to cajole the other members of the audience to give their views, but without success, and, in giving it up as a bad job, Mr. Odell declared: "It's difficult to believe that Ilford teachers can be so bashful!"

Thanks were rendered to Mr. G. J. Miles, secretary of the Association, for arranging the exhibition, which was held in conjunction with the Western Electric Company.

Plans for the completion of St. Alban's Church, East Ham, as a memorial to Miss Dallaway, and also the erection of a vicarage, have been approved by the Town Council.

White to play and mate in two.

Solution of Problem No. 33, by L. Chaplin (kt 4 R 1 b; 2 kt k Kt; r B 6; 1 P 2 R 3; p K B 1 Kt 3; 3 P 4; Q 7; 5 b r 1). Key move B—Kt 8, threat Q—B 7. If R—Kt 2, 2 Kt (R 7)—B 6; if B x R, 2 Q—B 7. If Kt—K 1, 2, Q—K 6; if Kt checks, 2 Q x Kt.

Some solvers suggested B—K 6 ch, but to this K—K2 and there is no mate. The unusual feature of this problem is the exposed position of the black king. Mates appear imminent in every direction, yet he has a loophole to everything except B—Kt 8

I understand Mr. Chaplin is leaving for the North of England. He is the second local problemist to leave the district within a short time, and his loss will be felt by Romford and Essex, but I am hoping for a contribution from him occasionally.

Correct solutions received from E. W. Fryd, P. B. McKelvey, H. G. Brunner, J. J. Henderson, F. J. Banks, Oscar F. de Brunner, A. H. Lawton, J. Kelly, Sidney H. Welsh, W. G. Collins.

FATHER VERSUS SON.

Mr. J. G. Hayes is too well known in Ilford and Essex chess circles to need reintroduction. His son, Mr. Sidney G. Hayes, is perhaps lesser known for the simple reason that for long periods he is domiciled abroad, and his visits to this country are only at distant intervals. Recently he returned from China and found time to contest a series of games with his father, emerging with credit and a heightened reputation. Two years ago he won the championship of Hong Kong, a feat practically equal to winning our City of London championship, which shows that the tuition received from his famous parent has not been in vain.

Readers may judge the quality of his play in the game given below.

(a) In defiance of the warnings of the "don't-push-your-pawns-on" school, Mr. Hayes seizes the centre first time.

(b) I thought he intended P—Q B 4; it would have been more like his usual aggressive style.

(c) P—Q Kt. 4 would make room for the bishop at Kt 2, and assist his development.

(d) Necessary, because of the threat P—K 5; but black's development can only be described as shocking.

(e) This move frankly puzzles me; Kt (Q 1)—B 3 would at least suggest a challenge to white's steady accumulation of force.

(f) If Kt x P ch. 27. K—Kt 2, Q—B 4; 28. R—B 3, Q—R 4; 29. R—B 8 ch. and the Queen is lost.

(g) It must be a long time since a player of Mr. Hayes' ability has found himself in such a predicament. He simply hasn't a move worth mentioning.

(h) And the verdict is that the pupil outplayed the master.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS STUDY CIRCLE

Mr. L. Aldous on the Economic Conference.

What did the World Economic Conference set out to do? How far had it succeeded?

These questions were dealt with by Mr. Leslie Aldous at the first of a new series of lectures to the Study Circle, held at the Gatehouse Cafe, on Wednesday, over which Mr. C. P. Sharpe presided.

Since the Great War, said Mr. Aldous, a number of nations had attempted to revert to the conditions of 1914, apparently without realising the enormous industrial and financial changes that had taken place. The expansion and changes of about fifty normal years were crowded into the war years and those immediately following, for the fighting nations made superhuman attempts to become self-contained, especially in the manufacture of armaments. For this, large sums of money were borrowed, mostly from America, which further became the creditor nation by supplying goods and food. In this way, the centre of credit was shifted to New York.

Mechanisation of industry, making for rapid output, left countries at the end of the struggle with millions of unemployed, although in 1919 and 1920 there was an apparent "boom" owing to the urgent demand for goods denied during the war.

That demand was not effective because it was not backed by the purchasing power of the general public.

The fact that gold, the means of exchange, was being put into cold storage, especially in New York, prevented its fulfilling its proper function. At one time, as much as eighty per cent. was locked up in America and France, and there followed a general hold-up of international trade.

The League of Nations called a conference in Brussels, which was attended by experts from 39 countries, and the advice they offered helped to balance the budgets of several countries, and gave Austria a fresh start.

HOPES UNFULFILLED.

From 1924, it looked as if the depression had been overcome, and there was another apparent revival of trade, especially in the United States. But experts noticed that the feature of a rise in wholesale prices, usually accompanying any real increase of trade, was absent. Wages were too low to provide purchasing power, and the time came when manufacturers could not sell goods. Wall-street felt the pinch, and wild selling of shares took place, and this effect immediately made itself felt all over the world.

Germany had borrowed money from America for payment of War debts, and when American financiers began to withdraw capital from Berlin, crashes followed. Banks in Germany, Hungary, Austria and France closed their doors.

After much arduous preparation the World Conference was called for June 1st this year, and in the meantime, President Roosevelt had outlined an ambitious scheme for trade recovery, which included linking the gold currencies of the world, setting the unemployed to work, raising wages, and reducing tariffs.

Before the Conference had been at work for a week, great divergences between national policies were brought to light. France was unwilling to go as far as America and British statesmen were unwilling to link the pound to the dollar.

In the attempt to find common ground the Conference was divided into so many committees and sub-committees for specific investigations that in a short time it became unwieldy, and at the end, all that was possible was to put into print the different opinions.

The British Government suggested that something might be done by concluding a number of bilateral trading agreements. That meant, of course, hundreds of such arrangements, and so far, except for agreements with the Argentine and Denmark, little had been done.

At present, the Conference stood adjourned, and the machinery was ready for resumption of work at a favourable opportunity. Also, the League was pursuing investigations, and collecting and analysing the facts of world trade.

ILFORD GOLF CLUB.

Thrilling Play in Pyman Trophy Final.

The final for the trophy presented by the late Arthur Pyman was played on Sunday, G. Lightbody and W. W. Milne winning a hard fought game by 3 up and one to play from Dr. Gilchrist and Alex. Barbour.

Both sides had strenuous matches in the previous rounds so that the final was followed with keen interest by a large number of members and friends.

The morning commenced by Lightbody and Milne rather feebly losing the first two holes, but they squared at the 7th, Gilchrist and Barbour tormenting one another with bad shots. They, however, came back on their game and although play was fairly even they managed to finish one up on this round.

SERIOUS MATTER.

In the afternoon all of them looked very serious, and Lightbody deserved the applause of the crowd for his long shots which were a great help to his partner, a much less experienced player.

The critical point of this round, which gave the eventual winners an advantage, was when Gilchrist, much to his disgust, missed a yard putt on the 13th for a win.

To add to their troubles Barbour, although driving well all through, pulled his tee shot at the 14th into terrible rough. A lost hole at the 15th made the winners fairly safe at dormy three. Gilchrist, by sinking a long putt for a winning four at the 16th, reduced it to dormy two, but a long drive to the bunkers at the 17th and an excellent approach by Lightbody and Milne respectively gave them the well deserved win.

The referees were Messrs. W. J. Forrest (captain) and J. J. Hindom.

COURSE IMPROVED

After a few years absence from Ilford I was pleasantly surprised at the wonderful improvements made on the course, the excellence of the greens—particularly the new ones—also the efficacy of the bunkers which are now mostly sanded.

I am also informed there is no risk of flooding as in the old days.

The club are as well to be congratulated on their new extension to the club house, making it I should think the best in Essex.

There are three billiards tables for members' amusement when their golf is spoiled by weather, and a large additional lounge if they want to rest.

I quite agree with their genial secretary, Sidney Martin, when he says that Ilford people are fortunate in having such amenities on their doorstep at a reasonable subscription.

Harvest Festival.

Woodford-avenue Congregational Church was filled to capacity on Sunday, when harvest thanksgiving services were held. The augmented choir gave a very pleasing rendering of the sacred cantata, "Ruth," by A. P. Gaul. The enunciation, tone and attack were above the average, and reflected credit on the choirmaster, Mr. Conroy L. Norris, who conducted. The soloists, Madame Nellie Norman, Madame Hilda Davis, Miss Doris Wright and Mr. S. Needham, were all at their best. Mr. W. J. G. Farrer was at the organ, and his sympathetic accompaniment helped to make this the choir's most successful effort.

The sermon was preached by the minister, the Rev. W. Rutherford Lane.

Miss Audrey Holmes, of Chigwell, who was the only lady to win all her matches for Essex in the County Championship, was beaten in the second round of the English Ladies' Championship by Miss M. Beard. Miss D. Wilkins and Miss E. Young, also of Chigwell, were beaten in the first round.

SCHOOLMASTERS PROTEST.

Delay in Restoring 'Cuts' Criticised.

An important meeting of men teachers in Romford and district was held under the auspices of the National Association of Schoolmasters at the King's Head Hotel, Romford, on Friday last.

The chair was taken by Mr. P. King, the president of the Ilford Association, who presided and explained that the meeting was called to protest against the Government's delay in restoring the illegal ten per cent. "cuts" in teachers' salaries.

Mr. W. E. Cray, ex-president of the National Association of Schoolmasters, reviewed the economic and financial position immediately preceding the crisis of 1932. Even if it had been a matter of national urgency that the salaries of teachers should be cut, he said, the Government showed indecent haste in acting, because they had a definite contract with the teachers, and contracts must be honoured. The Government had acted dishonestly and the dishonesty was still continuing in spite of the fact that the reasons given for making the cut had disappeared.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer declared at a Mansion House banquet last week that we had now "turned the corner," unemployment was beginning to diminish, and he was confidently hoping to have a Budget surplus for 1934. The crisis had passed, but the "cuts" remained.

Referring to unemployment among men teachers, Mr. Cray said that this could be overcome if the Government had the courage to insist that women teaching in boys' schools should be replaced by men. A boy needed the influence of a man teacher. In thousands of cases he was not getting it. Meanwhile, men teachers, expensively trained, were without posts.

Mr. Cray, who was warmly applauded, then moved the following resolution:—

"In view of the fact that the financial conditions adduced in 1931 as the alleged reason for reducing salaries of teachers have now disappeared, this meeting directs attention to the dishonesty of the Government in not forthwith arranging for the salary scales to be restored. Further, this meeting deplores the gross inefficiency of the Board of Education revealed by its failure to make provision for the employment of those teachers trained recently at its behest."

This was carried unanimously, and it was decided that copies of the resolution should be sent to the Prime Minister, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, the President of the Board of Education, and the Essex Education Committee.

ASSOCIATION'S AIMS.

Mr. Thoday, a former Treasurer of the National Association of Schoolmasters, then addressed the meeting on the aims and objects of the Association. He emphasised the necessity for a separate consideration of the salaries of men and women teachers, whose responsibilities were so vastly different in the existing organisation of society. There was no doubt that teaching was a relatively good proposition for a woman, but a poor outlook for a man.

Stories From Scouting: No. 1.

Eighty miles beyond Broken Hill in Australia, towards the interior where the aborigines are still seen, there is a colony of settlers who spend their lives digging for opal and other precious stones. They have wireless for a medical service, flying nurses, flying doctors and a flying parson.

It was learnt that a sick man from the colony was being brought into the settlement by his 13-year-son who had been a Scout. Soon after leaving his homestead he became unconscious. The boy tied him on his camel and brought him in to the settlement, but he died soon after. At dawn the next day the boy collected the camels, climbed on the back of the leader and set off on his homeward trek. His only remark was: "I have got to go back. I am the only man there."

Aldersbrook Men's Meeting will re-commence on Sunday afternoon at St. Gabriel's Church Hall, with Councillor A. G. Gay, J.P., as the speaker, and on Tuesday the Literary and Debating Society will open a new session with a debate on the recent transport legislation.

The National Association of Schoolmasters stood for the interests of the schoolmaster. They were not out to depress the wages of women teachers, but they claimed to have their case considered quite separately from that of the women. Unhappily, this goal could not be attained by working within the National Union of Teachers, where the women far outnumbered and outvoted the men, and which was pledged to a policy of equal pay for men and women. He claimed that it was impossible to have unity in the teaching profession when the interests of men and women teachers were so much at variance. He urged all schoolmasters present to join the National Associaton of Schoolmasters, and fight for the interests of the schoolmaster and the claim of the schoolboy to a man teacher.

Many questions were asked and answered, after which it was decided that as soon as a sufficient number had enrolled, a Romford branch of the National Association of Schoolmasters would be formed.

READY FOR THE ELECTION.

THE thinning out that has already taken place among the candidates —"certain," "probable" and "possible"—for the Ilford Borough Council election on November 1st, gives us a better idea of what the final grouping will be. Last week the "Recorder" suggested that the Liberals, whose plans were being kept secret, might have a last-minute surprise up their sleeve. Events have since shown that they had, but not of the strategic kind that would have confounded their opponents.

* * *

An official statement on behalf of the Municipal Elections Committee of the Ilford Liberal and Radical Association announces that as there has not been sufficient time for preparation it has been decided to withdraw from the present contest and make an earlier start next year. Discretion has been wisely exercised. There were only four months in which to raise a fighting fund, select candidates, enrol an army of workers and create a large organisation. With the holiday season intervening, it was a creditable performance to have brought the project so near to completion, but without completion to the last detail it would have been courting failure to plunge into a campaign against forces so fully equipped for the purpose as the Conservatives and Socialists are known to be. This was to have been the Liberals' first venture into municipal politics. Although postponement may disappoint some of the younger and more ardent members of the party, they will enter the fight next year better armed and with enhanced prospects of success.

* * *

After all, the election is not going to be such a "party dog-fight" as some critics predicted. Goodmayes is the focal point of interest in the struggle between official Conservatism and official Socialism. Mr. W. R. Spencer, whose unexpected defeat last year seemed to toll the knell of the Independent candidate, is not standing this year. He is no doubt reserving himself for an effort to regain the seat that Labour won from him by a mere handful of votes, and his friends are confident that he is destined to come back. Therefore Councillor W. E. Meade, of the Labour Party, and Mr. David Hutchison, of the Constitutional Association, will have a straight fight. Each should have the satisfaction of regarding the other as a foeman worthy of his steel. Both have a strong personal pull in the ward. Both have records of public service apart from their political work—Councillor Meade as a member of the Council for the past three years, and Mr. Hutchison as a Free Church worker and a member of the Council of the Industrial Co-partnership Association. Both will command a strong party vote, but the election will be more than a trial of party strength, for there will be an incalculable weight of non-party votes to be reckoned with, and the disposal of those is a question highly speculative. From this point of view, good organisation is one of the most important factors in the winning of an election.

* * *

The contest in Seven Kings is likely to be as exciting as that in Goodmayes, but for a different reason. Councillor O. Waters has no fewer than three opponents, the most formidable of whom is the Rev. Alex R. Mead, minister of the Meads-lane Congregational Church. To receive so much attention must be highly flattering to a retiring councillor, but the decision of the Seven Kings Ratepayers' Association to adopt the Rev. A. R. Mead as the association's candidate seemed like the shadow of a coming event. Councillor Waters's long if rather stormy career as a member of the Ilford Council has been twice interrupted by defeat at the polls. Omens may be left to the superstitious. The fact remains that Mr. Mead is the strongest candidate that has appeared in Seven Kings for a long while, and if his friends work for him as they should he will win. Councillor Waters will not fail for want of trying. He is a hard fighter, and his following in Seven Kings is by no means inconsiderable. Labour, always in earnest, will be the keener for the chance of profiting by the split vote.

* * *

The retirement of Councillor C. Eves from municipal life was as mysterious as unexpected. No hint of it was given beforehand, and no reason when it was made known. Gossips have invented reasons, none of which sound plausible, and for the present at any rate the true ones must remain the property of the person most concerned. Mr. Eves was first elected to the Council in 1926, when Ilford became a borough, and he had made his position so secure that he might have sat for South Hainault for many years more without anxiety as to the result of the triennial poll. As it is, however, he leaves the way open for a very popular candidate in Mr. John Tubb, the hon. secretary of the South Hainault and Goodmayes Ratepayers' Association. Besides his Labour opponent (Mr. H. Clark), Mr. Tubb is likely to have against him the veteran, Mr. F. J. Philpot, whose name is familiar to the older generation of Ilford people.

* * *

In Loxford Ward Councillor W. B. Eke, who was first returned only last year, is being challenged by Mr. A. Lesadd with the support of the Constitutional Association—a party tussle similar to, but hardly equalling in interest, that in Goodmayes. Councillor A. W. Green is strongly entrenched for the defence of his seat in Park Ward against Mrs. F. E. Bennett (Labour). In North Hainault Councillor C. F. Jay, who also is opposed by a lady member of the Labour Party in Mrs. L. Mansfield, should have no difficulty in repeating his victory of three years ago, but none envies him the task of reaching all the electors in a ward so large that it would make a Parliamentary constituency of respectable size. The partition of North Hainault is a question that will have to be tackled seriously in the near future. It is unfair to expect any candidate to bear the heavy expense in time and money entailed by an election in a ward of 18,000 local government electors, and the electors themselves may well object that numerically they are not adequately represented on the Council. In Clementswood Councillor G. J. Wetton will have a straight fight with Mr. J. H. Ames (Labour), and last comes Cranbrook, where Councillor Russell Daniels will probably have a free field—a gratifying experience that Cranbrook members have often enjoyed.

Thank You, Mr. Coroner!

LET all road users heed the words of Dr. P. B. Skeels, the new coroner for South-West Essex. At an inquest on the death of a man who was run over and killed by a lorry at Seven Kings on Friday, the driver explained that "he blew his horn and expected the man to hear." The following dialogue ensued:

Coroner: But supposing he was deaf, are you to knock him down simply because he could not hear?

Driver: No, sir. We are not to know he is deaf.

Coroner: Should you not assume that he is deaf?

Driver: No, sir. We assume that people can hear.

The Coroner: You are quite wrong. You are to assume that everyone is deaf and take every precaution in using the road.

That is the whole pith of the matter, tersely stated. At last motorists, and not only motorists but all road users,

"Insufficient Time to Prepare."

OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

The Ilford Liberal Association is not to run its own candidates in the Borough Council elections after all.

It has been decided that there was not sufficient time to prepare for such a contest, but the organisation that was recently set up is to be maintained with a view to taking the field in force next year.

The position is explained in the following statement issued on behalf of the Municipal Elections Committee of the Ilford Liberal and Radical Association and received by the "Recorder" on Monday:—

ILFORD LIBERALS AND THE MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

Regular readers of the "Ilford Recorder" will be aware that at the end of June last a special general meeting of the Ilford Liberal and Radical Association passed by a very large majority a resolution, which stated that in view of the political complexion given to the forthcoming Borough elections by the other two parties it was essential that the Liberal point of view should be represented. Until this year the majority of Liberals have viewed with disfavour the introduction of party strife into local affairs, but it is clear to nearly all thinking people that once the party spirit has been introduced nothing can be worse, either nationally or locally, than a "dog-fight" between two extremes of "Left" and "Right" with no moderating voice to keep within bounds of sanity the inevitable clashes of two diametrically opposed principles, both of which Liberals conceive to be fallacious.

Therefore, the Ilford Liberal Association passed the resolution and elected a Municipal Elections Committee to organise for the elections with full powers to select candidates, to state their policy and to raise a Fighting Fund.

The Committee elected its officers and began its work early in July, only four months before polling day. Considering the extreme shortness of time, the success of the committee's steady work and the response to the various appeals that have been made, have been most encouraging and augur well for the vitality of Liberalism in Ilford. The funds raised have been in excess of the expected total. Several men and women well known in political circles (such as the Ilford Parliament) have been approached and have accepted invitations to become prospective Liberal candidates while a number of people have come forward and offered their utmost support in the strenuous election weeks. In addition, a comprehensive policy has been prepared.

In spite, however, of everything that has been done, the committee has reluctantly come to the conclusion that four months is quite insufficient time in which to prepare for an election, if all seats are to be contested, which is considered to be essential. There has been no time in which to organise the various ward committees and to form bands of workers sufficiently large. Nor have the prospective candidates had time yet to make that personal acquaintance with a large proportion of the electorate which can be obtained only by intensive and long sustained canvassing. Finally (though this last is only a passing difficulty) among the small minority of members of the Association who opposed the whole project of contesting local elections, there were one or two in "key" positions who for reasons perfectly honest were quite unable to march in step with the majority.

For all these reasons the Municipal Elections Committee decided last week not to contest the Borough elections in the Liberal interest this year, but to begin here and now to prepare to fight every vacant seat in twelve months time, by perfecting its organisation and by continuing to collect its Fighting Fund. The fund remains open and the hon. treasurer (Mr. R. A. Fairbrother, of 313, Wanstead Park-road, Ilford) will welcome donations from all who realise the vital necessity of making the voice of Liberalism effectively heard on the Borough Council. The progress made by the committee within the last few months has been magnificent, and it is unanimously felt by its members that if the same degree of enthusiasm is maintained nothing can prevent Ilford Liberalism achieving considerable successes at the polls on November 1st, 1934.

FALL FROM TREE.

Mr. W. Radley, of Fairview-road, Chigwell, was badly injured last week when he fell from a ladder while gathering fruit in his garden.

At one time he was so poorly that oxygen had to be administered. His condition is now improved.

It will be recalled that Mr. Radley celebrated his golden wedding last year.

including pedestrians, have been told without equivocation what their plain duty is.

* * *

We do not for one moment suggest that in this case the driver was blameworthy. It may be noted that, without retiring, the jury returned a verdict of "Accidental death." But, as we have pointed out time after time, accidents are not acts of God. They do not "just happen" of their own accord. A motor car does not move forward without somebody's foot on the accelerator or swerve without somebody's hand on the steering wheel. Every accident has a cause. The cause is invariably human error. And the error itself can be traced to the utterly wrong assumption that Dr. Skeels has so strictly condemned—the assumption that the other fellow is in full possession of his senses and will necessarily do the right thing. If he is not in full possession of his senses and does not do the right thing, and so gets killed, the fault is his entirely.

* * *

That assumption, firmly rooted in the minds of road users, has been tacitly accepted and consistently upheld by magistrates and drivers. Manslaughter charges fail because of it. Drivers are exonerated because of it. It is sufficient to plead "I blew my horn." It is marvellous what magic there is in a horn! Your average motorist regards it as the passport to safety—his own, at any rate, whether he be in a driving seat, a witness box or the dock. Having blown it, he sits back, "steps on the gas" as he would say, and expects the rest of the world to make way for him. He has put the onus on the other fellow; his conscience is clear. And magistrates, coroners and juries back him up in that false and fatal delusion by regretfully but firmly laying the blame on the shoulders of the "unfortunate deceased."

* * *

More than a question of law is involved here. It is a moral question. At the bottom of the whole sickening business of this daily slaughter on the roads is the failure to recognise that each and every road user, whether driving or walking, is personally responsible for the safety of other people as well as his own. Human skill and mechanical perfection will do little to reduce the appalling list of killed and injured until that responsibility is accepted by the public at large. In present conditions one assumption is safe, and one only; and that is that the "other fellow" is deficient in road sense and therefore bound to do the wrong thing. It may not be the most flattering view to take of him, but the conclusions drawn from endless reams of inquest evidence show it to be at least a rational one. To put the argument on a higher plane, the way to safety lies in the practice of the Golden Rule.

£40 DAMAGES FOR JILTED GIRL.

Ilford Lorry Driver's Changed Mind.

HIGH COURT SUIT

"Cooled Off" After Six Years Courtship.

Damages of £40 were awarded by a common jury in the King's Bench Division yesterday (Wednesday) against an Ilford man, Mr. William James Stubbs, a lorry driver, of Meadway, Ilford, for breach of promise of marriage.

The plaintiff was Miss Dorothy Ethel Howes, a waitress, living at Bow-road, Bow, E., who alleged that they became engaged in September, 1930, and in August, 1932, Mr. Stubbs refused to marry her.

She also claimed damages in respect of a number of articles which she said she had bought, with the knowledge of Mr. Stubbs, for the home.

Mr. Stubbs was not represented by counsel and was not present in court.

Mr. H. Glyn Jones, for Miss Howes, said the case was a plain and straightforward one. It was not one in which there was a mass of correspondence to read "in the hope that every expression of endearment in the letters will put a pound or two on the damages the jury would be asked to award."

SIX YEARS' COURTSHIP.

Miss Howes was 26 years of age, and she and Mr. Stubbs had been walking out together for about six years. In 1930, they became engaged, during the three previous years having spent all their spare time in each other's company.

On one occasion there was a disagreement between the two because Mr. Stubbs had promised to take Miss Howes out, and when he arrived he was accompanied by his mother, his sister, and his sister's young man.

"You have heard the saying that two's company and three's a crowd," said Mr. Glyn Jones, "but when it comes to bringing the mother and sister, and the sister's young man, it really is a crowd." (Laughter.)

"COOLED OFF."

After this, counsel continued, Mr. Stubbs began to "cool off," and told Miss Howes that they should part. Plaintiff was not willing that they should do so, and suggested that they should not see each other for three weeks. This was done, and they met again afterwards, but a few weeks later Mr. Stubbs said he would not marry her. It was only after giving Mr. Stubbs some months to make up his mind that Miss Howes commenced proceedings against him.

Miss Howes, in evidence, said that she was unwilling that they should part. She was happy with Mr. Stubbs and believed that they would have been happy if they had married.

Mr. Stubbs earned £2 18s. a week as a lorry driver for a petrol firm, and in addition received commission on the sale of petrol.

JUDGE'S SUMMING UP.

Summing up to the jury, Mr. Justice Macnaghten said their task of assessing the damages which Mr. Stubbs should pay to the plaintiff might have been made easier if they had had the advantage of seeing him in court.

"He might have been a very attractive prospective husband," added his lordship, "or, on the other hand, he might have been very unattractive, and you might have thought that this young lady was very fortunate in losing such a husband.

"All we know is that she was very happy with him for several years. Your assessment will have to be made 'in the dark'."

The jury were absent from the court for over half an hour in arriving at their verdict. They intimated that the damages included the special amount claimed for articles purchased by Miss Howes for the home.

Mr. Justice Macnaghten entered judgment accordingly, with costs.

SUSPECT FURTHER CHARGED.

A further charge, under the Prevention of Crimes Act, alleging that he had been found at High-road, Ilford, about to commit a felony, was preferred against Clifford Ralph Wilson, a baker's roundsman, aged 35, living at Hanging Hill-lane, Hutton, Essex, when he appeared in the dock at Stratford yesterday (Wednesday), charged on remand with being a suspected person loitering in the High-road with intent to commit a felony.

The accused was arrested by a police officer who alleged that he saw him walking about in the vicinity of Woolworth's Stores, where, he said, he picked up a bicycle which was locked, and so could not be removed.

Mr. J. C. L. Sharman, who appeared for the prisoner, now stated that, having regard to the additional charge, he would prefer to be dealt with by a jury.

PREVIOUS CONVICTIONS.

Evidence was given by Detective-Sergeant Woods, of the Sutton Police.

The officer said he was present at the Newington Sessions in February, 1932, when the accused was convicted of housebreaking, in the name of Clifford Ralph Clarke, and sentenced to twelve months hard labour. At the same time, other convictions were proved against him for felony.

On that evidence, the prisoner was remanded for another week, bail being extended.

PLIGHT OF THE MERCHANT NAVY.

Interesting Address to Women Conservatives.

At the Ridley Hall, All Saints' Church, Goodmayes, on Monday, Captain Coombs, general manager of the Officers' (Merchant Navy) Federation, Ltd., addressed a large audience on the serious position of Britain's Merchant Service. He pointed out that before the war, British ships, manned by British sailors, carried most of the world's cargoes.

To-day things were vastly different. Foreign countries were competing with this country on very unfair terms, as their shipping was bolstered up by Government grants or subsidies.

He contrasted the life of the average man ashore with that of the merchant officer, emphasising the fact that officers at sea worked week-days and Sundays alike all the year round without holidays. Rates of pay were shockingly low, due to frequent cuts with the deepening of the depression in trade. Officers and men of France, Germany, Italy and the United States of America all enjoy higher rates than those paid to British officers.

Captain Coombs reminded his hearers that in time of war, the officers of the Merchant Navy formed the second line of Naval defence.

Mrs. Hutchison (ward chairman) presided, supported by Mrs. Craig, deputy president of the Women's organisation; Mrs. Hinton, divisional chairman; Mrs. Green, deputy chairman; and Captain Owen, of the Merchant Navy Federation.

LICENSEE IN FRACAS.

Fined for Assaulting Customer's Creditor.

A fracas that happened at the "Crooked Billet" public-house, Billet-lane, Chadwell Heath, in which the landlord, a customer and a creditor were involved, had a sequel at Stratford Police Court, on Tuesday, when Abram Pye, licensee, was summoned for assaulting and beating Henry Howard, of Holdam-road, Bow, on September 24th.

In connection with the same incident, Howard was summoned by Charles G. Bennett, of Rose-lane, Romford, for alleged assault.

Mr. J. C. L. Sharman appeared for Mr. Pye.

BOLTED INTO SCULLERY.

Complainant said he went with his wife to Rose-lane, Romford, to try and find Mr. Bennett, who owed him money. As Mr. Bennett was not at home he went to the "Crooked Billet," which was about 500 yards away, and there saw Mr. Bennett in the bar, drinking. He called him outside, and said to him, "What about paying some of the money you owe me?" Mr. Bennett walked round the side of the house and complainant followed. Mr. Bennett suddenly bolted into Mr. Pye's back yard and dashed into the scullery, closing the door behind him. He stood at the door a few moments and then defendant came rushing out, saying, "Don't you come down here interfering with my customers." He had not seen Mr. Pye before, and had had no dealings with him. Mr. Pye then struck him.

Mr. Sharman: Didn't Mr. Bennett run into the private entrance of the public-house and into the private scullery of Mr. Pye?

Witness: He ran into the scullery.

And you ran after him?—Yes.

Had you a man named Harris with you, who was fined 40s. for assaulting Mr. Bennett in May?—Yes.

Did not Mr. Pye open the scullery door just in time to prevent you going into the scullery? Didn't he say, "Please leave my private premises."—That's a lie. I stood outside the scullery door three minutes before he came out. I then said, "Will you please send out the man you have encouraged in there?"

Didn't he then say, "whether Mr. Bennett is in there or not, please go away?"—He said "Bennett is not inside, clear out."

Didn't you strike him first?—I did not strike him.

AN OFFENSIVE REMARK.

After Mr. Pye went in, didn't you shout an offensive remark through the saloon bar window?—What, me shout an offensive remark through the saloon bar window? No!

Mr. Sharman: I suggest that if you had kept away from the private part of the premises this would never have occurred.

Complainant did not answer.

Mrs. Violet Howard said she was with her husband, and saw Mr. Bennett dash into the scullery.

Mr. Sharman: Did your husband shout for Mr. Bennett to come out?—No.

Did you hear Mr. Pye ask your husband to leave his private premises?—No.

How far away were you?—About two or three yards.

You did not see or hear very much did you?—No.

Did you hear Mr. Howard shout something very offensive through a window—No.

WENT TO "BEER-SHOP."

Alfred George Harris, a motor driver, said he went with Mr. Howard looking for Mr. Bennett. He went with complainant to the "beer-shop," and he afterwards saw Mr. Bennett slip into the scullery. He then saw Mr. Pye dash out of the scullery and hit Mr. Howard on the head.

LANDLORD'S VERSION.

Giving his version of the trouble, Mr. Pye, in the course of examination by Mr. Sharman, said he had been the licensee of the "Crooked Billet" for 20 years, and it was the only licence he had held. He had never been summoned before. Before the incidents occurred he was serving in the saloon bar. While there, one of his customers made a statement to him about a row. He ran down to his private side entrance and, in consequence of what he saw, he went through his kitchen into the scullery. He did not know that Mr. Bennett was in the scullery, but outside he saw complainant, Mrs. Howard and Mr. Harris. Mr. Howard was very savage. He was on the scullery step and as he (defendant) asked him to leave Mr. Howard struck at him, and he (defendant) pushed him away with his fists.

Mr. Theo Godley (chairman): A very effective way, too.

Mr. Sharman: During that conversation was there any reference to Mr. Bennett?

Mr. Pye: He said something about a Mr. Bennett, but I asked him to leave my premises at once.

Was your wrist injured?—Yes, it was cut and bled for a quarter of an hour.

Continuing, Mr. Pye said although he did not call them, the police arrived. He later went back to the saloon bar, and after about five or six minutes, complainant and Mr. Harris came down the private path and shouted at him through the window.

He did not give the matter another thought until he was served with a summons.

Miss L. Pye, daughter of defendant, said she saw Mr. Bennett run into the scullery, and saw Mr. Howard close behind. She did not hear anything that was said outside. She saw Mr. Howard strike her father first. She also heard her father ask Mr. Howard to leave the premises, and he refused to go.

The police officer who served the summons on Mr. Pye was called for the defence, and he declared that when he handed Mr. Pye the summons, he said, "They came rushing round my back door after Mr. Bennett, and some people in the bar said there is some trouble at the back. I said, 'That is my private entrance.' I asked the man to leave, and he struck at me and I pushed him back."

This concluded the evidence in the first case, whereupon Mr. Howard went into the defendant's stand, and Charles G. Bennett became the complainant, with Mr. Sharman prosecuting.

SECOND CASE.

This case opened with Mr. Bennett being asked by the Chairman how much money he owed Mr. Howard.

Mr. Bennett: Between six and seven pounds.

Mr. Howard: That's a lie. It is £23.

Mr. Sharman: Whether it is £7 or £23 the fact remains that the defendant has never taken the trouble to take Mr. Bennett to County Court.

Complainant then said he dashed into the scullery because he was afraid of Mr. Howard. Defendant had threatened him in Romford, and he thought it best to keep out of his way.

Describing what happened when Mr. Howard saw him in the bar, complainant said defendant asked him if he had any money for him. He said "No, I have not at the moment." Defendant then asked him to go round the side, and it was then that he was struck on the chest. He then ran for the scullery.

Defendant denied assaulting complainant.

After a brief consultation, the Bench decided to fine Pye 20s. and costs, and the second case was dismissed.

LABOUR PEER AND FASCIST MENACE.

The Shirt Movement of Many Colours.

"IT WILL LEAD TO WAR."

Last Night's Speech to Ilford Railwaymen.

"I am not a bit concerned about all these little boys of 18 or 19 who have no work to do, and think it very smart to put on a shirt and click their heels and all that sort of thing.

"I am not perturbed about the type of Fascism introduced by Lord Trenchard, with his boys coming down from the university to answer telephone calls."

This was the declaration of Lord Kinnoul, the Labour peer, when he addressed a propaganda and social meeting held at the Central Labour Hall, Ilford, last (Wednesday) night, by the local branch of the National Union of Railwaymen.

He added: "That is the real menace—this type of Fascism. And the Capitalists will jolly well finance it.

"Whatever kind of Fascism comes into force in this country, it is going to lead to war, which will be far more horrible than the last."

Lord Kinnoul first broached the question of what the present Government, which came into office with such an enormous and unparalleled majority, had done since their election. It had set out, he said, to save the pound, but it did not do it. Then it was going to save the country. But what had it really done?

WORKLESS LIVE ON TENPENCE A WEEK.

The speaker referred to the findings of a committee of doctors who had recently conducted researches into matters of nutrition and malnutrition. They said that for an adult male, not doing muscular work, it required about 5s. a week in food, and 4s. 2d. for a woman. Yet the speaker himself had found that the lowest amount on which the unemployed were living to-day was 10d. a week.

Some of them had 3s. a week, but there were few who had more than a shilling on which to live.

"That," he added, "is the effect of this wonderful cure of economy we had heard so much about."

The other day, he went on, a woman had died of starvation—in this country which boasted it was the only one that allowed no one to starve. Another woman had collapsed in the street from lack of food.

"That's what this great National Government is doing!"

After referring to his experience of the snores that reverberated through the House of Lords, Lord Kinnoul went on to speak of the campaign of slum clearance now proceeding.

A very definite plan had been drawn up by Mr. Greenwood, the speaker declared; but within a week of succeeding to the office the new Minister of Health had slowed up the local authorities at once.

Any single person, he emphasised, could go to his local medical officer of health and make a complaint about a slum, and he was obliged to investigate it and make a report to the local authority. Any four electors, or one J.P., could go above the local authority and force the Minister of Health to take action against them. That is what had happened at Leicester. Sir Hilton Young was now excited over slum clearance; the speaker thought it a pity that he did not think about it two years ago, though long may the good work continue.

The facts he had mentioned, however, that any individual could "kick up a fuss" about a slum, were not generally known, and he thought they should be rammed home to the people.

THE GOVERNMENT MOULTING.

Returning to the subject of the Government, Lord Kinnoul said: "There are so many by-elections about to be fought now that the Government is like a hen that is moulting and shedding its feathers all around the place. Some of the Tories have died."

The speaker thought that the Government had bored them to death. They had bored him in the House of Lords—he knew that! Now, he urged, was the time for propaganda, and to tell everybody in the country what Socialism meant.

Referring to Sir Oswald Mosley and his Blackshirts, the speaker then declared that he was not worried about "this shirt movement" which was now sweeping all over Europe.

Making the appropriate gestures, he went on: "We have Sir Oswald Mosley and his Blackshirts, Hitler and his Brownshirts doing this, and Mussolini and his Blackshirts doing that. Then we have General O'Duffy in Ireland with his Blueshirts, and last of all we have old Gandhi with no shirt at all!" (Loud laughter.)

He would not be at all surprised, he continued, if the present Government declared another kind of crisis, and found something else to say, such as: "We shall not have another general election—there's another crisis on!"

Finally, he urged his hearers to work for the security of themselves and their children, and for their very existence in the future, by going round, in what he knew to be a very Tory constituency, and telling their friends that Socialism is the only way to salvation in the future.

PRESENTATIONS TO OLD MEMBERS.

In reporting upon the continued strength of the Union, Mr. J. Marchbank, acting general secretary of the Union, referred to the problem of unemployment among railwaymen which he said would result from the recent pooling of the transport interests.

Emphasising that they were in a better position than they used to be, he urged the Union's members to be diligent, active and loyal (declaring that the womenfolk could help considerably in this respect), in order that they might maintain their conditions.

Mr. Marchbank also made presentations to retired members and flower day workers. Messrs. R. Jay, H. Ford, H. Pearce and A. Trigger (the BOY GOALKEEPER BREAKS A LEG.

School's Cup-Tie Abandoned.

The Schools Hospital Cup-tie between Goodmayes and Highlands at Cricklefield on Saturday morning was abandoned because the Highlands goalkeeper—Charles Eric Moon, aged 12—broke his leg.

He was endeavouring to save his goal when he fell to the ground and told a teacher that he had broken his leg.

A corner flag post was used as a splint and the injured goalkeeper was taken to the King George Hospital by ambulance and was detained.

It was found that his leg was broken in two places.

In the afternoon of the same day Lawrence Harris, of 81, Clinton-road, Bow, broke his leg while playing on the Old Coopers' ground Forest-road, Barkingside. He also was taken to King George Hospital.

FATAL FALL FROM SCAFFOLDING.

Ilford Victim of a Wembley Tragedy.

The death of an Ilford man, following a fall from the scaffolding of some shops in course of construction at Wembley, was the subject of an inquest in St. John's schoolroom on Tuesday.

The accident was on Friday and the man, John Tonliff Kinipple, aged 42, of 559a, High-road, Ilford, died in Wembley Hospital on Saturday.

IN GOOD HEALTH.

Mrs. Kinipple said her husband was a journeyman carpenter employed by Messrs. Marrable on a job at Alperton. He was in quite good health and had never suffered from giddiness.

James White, a foreman, of 8, Grange-road, Leigh-on-Sea, said they were constructing three shops at Alperton. Deceased, who was a most competent workman, was working on the scaffolding and fell off.

Witness, in answer to the factory inspector, said the scaffolding was of four boards width, as was usual. The supports for the scaffolding were about six feet apart, and the space between the nearest board and the wall was about nine inches.

HOW DID HE FALL?

The Coroner: Did you see the man fall?

Witness: Just as he reached the ground I saw him.

Did he fall through the inside or outside of the scaffolding?—I should say from the inside.

Witness added that the deceased was quite a heavy man, and if he fell off the roof, where he was supposed to be working, the force of the fall would carry him through the nine-inch space.

George Edward Andrews, a bricklayer, of 99, Hall-lane, Chingford, said he saw the deceased at work, off and on, throughout Friday morning, and the last time he actually saw him alive was about five minutes before the accident happened. He (witness) was working on the other side of the building. Witness thought the scaffolding from which the deceased fell was five boards wide, but one board was removed that morning, leaving four boards and a foot clearance between the brick wall and the inside plank.

Witness, answering the coroner, said had he been working there he would have wanted the extra board, right up to the wall. It did not prejudice a workman to ask for an extra board. A bricklayer worked closer to the wall than did a carpenter.

Tom Wells, a scaffolder, said he thought there were four boards in the scaffolding, and acting on the instruction of Andrews he had removed one of them that morning, as all the brickwork had been finished and the inner board was not necessary.

Dr. Fishman, the resident medical officer of the Wembley Hospital, said that the deceased died on Saturday from a fractured skull.

The coroner said there was no definite evidence as to how many boards were there. The factory inspector had told him that he considered a scaffolding of three boards to be unsafe. But there was no question of breaking factory rules and regulations because there were none for those buildings.

A verdict of "Accidental death" was returned.

Mr. Leigh, on behalf of the employers, tendered the deceased's relatives their sorrow that such an accident had occurred. Deceased was a good workman.

DEATH OF MRS. C. C. HAIG

Sudden Indisposition on Her 65th Birthday.

Her many friends will learn with deep regret of the death, which took place yesterday (Wednesday) evening in King George Hospital, of Mrs. C. C. Haig, 10, Albert-road, Ilford.

She was taken suddenly ill on Friday evening, her 65th birthday, and was removed to hospital on Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Haig will be remembered for her untiring work during the war years on the Ilford War Help, and two years ago, was chairman of the Women's Section of the British Legion. She was also, until recently, treasurer to the Housewives Union.

She was one of the comparatively few people who were willing at any and all times to do good for others.

She will be greatly missed by many people.

The funeral will be at St. Mary's Cemetery on Saturday at 12 o'clock.

THE BECONTREE MURDER.

Sweetheart Strangled in Her Home.

KIRBY EXECUTED.

Reprieve on Insanity Grounds Refused.

Robert James Kirby, aged 26, a labourer, of 11 Vallence Circus, Chadwell Heath, found "guilty" at the Central Criminal Court of the murder of Grace Ivy Newing aged 17, of 28, Stevens-road, Chadwell Heath, was hanged at Pentonville yesterday, Wednesday.

The jury at the trial added to their verdict a recommendation to mercy, but it was announced on Tuesday that a reprieve had been refused.

The girl was found strangled in her mother's house in the early hours of Friday, July 7th. Kirby was arrested at Leyton a few hours later and charged at Stratford Police Court the same day.

DRAMATIC STORY.

A dramatic story was told at Stratford Police Court when Kirby was committed for trial.

Dr. Matthew Frew, police surgeon, there described how he was called to the house at 2.55 a.m. and found the body of the girl in the living room lying partly on the couch and partly on the floor. A piece of cord was embedded in the neck.

Death had taken place within six hours.

A post mortem examination disclosed that death was due to strangulation and that the girl was pregnant.

Witness agreed in cross-examination that the dead girl had a gland that would possibly make strangulation easier.

The mother of the accused man described how her son, who had been unemployed for some time, came into her bedroom about 1 a.m. on July 7th and awakened her and said "I have done Gracie in."

When her son came in he was very white. "He was like a statue," said Mrs. Kirby, who said in cross-examination that her son had not told her he was very fond of the girl.

BROTHER'S STORY.

Charles William Kirby, brother of the accused, said he took him downstairs when his brother said he was going to Ilford to give himself up.

Witness tried to overtake him but failed to find him and so went to Chadwell Heath Police Station.

He returned with police officers and saw the body of the girl in her mother's house.

Mrs. Rosina Newing, the mother of the dead girl, said Grace was a shop assistant working at Manor Park. The prisoner had been keeping company with Grace for some months.

She was awakened by the police on July 7th and went down and saw Grace on the couch.

WOULD STAND BY HER.

Mrs. Newing said accused had told her he believed Grace was an expectant mother through him and he said that if it were so he was willing to stand by her.

Kirby and Grace seemed to get on very well together and she knew of no real trouble between them.

Francis Victor Kirby, 18, Westdown-road, Leyton, told how he was awakened at 6.30 a.m. on July 7th and his wife asked accused, who was his brother, why he called so early. Accused, who seemed quite normal, said he had got up early.

THE TRIAL.

At the Old Bailey, Mr. Ernest Fulton, K.C. and Mr. Anthony Hawke, prosecuted for the police and Mr. Francis Peregrine defended.

Kirby pleaded not guilty.

Opening the case, Mr. Fulton read over the evidence given at the police court proceedings when the case for the prosecution was given.

Mr. Peregrine, addressing the jury said he would plead that the accused was insane.

He did not propose to put Kirby in the box as accused had rejected certain advice he had given him.

MENTAL EXPERT CALLED.

Mr. Peregrine then called Dr. Eric L. C. Smith, a mental specialist, who, he said, was the only witness he would call.

Witness said he examined accused on September 13th. At first he could not get him to talk about the affair, and when he did as a result of his manner he came to the conclusion that accused was not normal.

He thought Kirby had a very low mentality.

"INSANE GRIN."

He had an insane grin on his face all the time the conversation was taking place.

Mr. Peregrine: There was a deficiency in reason?

Witness: Yes.

Mr. Peregrine: Will you tell the jury what Kirby said about the case?—Yes. He new what he was doing. He knew before and while he was committing the act what he was doing and he knew the consequences to himself.

Did he think he was doing right?—Yes. He told me he thought he was doing right.

"ASKED TO DO IT."

Do you know why he did this act?—He said the girl asked him to do it.

Do you think Kirby was truthful?—Yes.

Do you know anything about the word "favour?"—He told me that the girl wanted to die. He said "I did her the favour. I would do anything for the girl."

The prison doctor said he had studied Kirby and though he agreed that he had a low mentality he did not think there was any sign of insanity. He behaved like many other prisoners remanded on such a charge.

JURY'S VERDICT.

The jury were absent for a quarter of an hour and then returned a verdict of "Guilty." They recommended prisoner to mercy.

Mr. Justice Swift asked Kirby if he had anything to say and Kirby, in firm tones, said "No."

Mr. Justice Swift thereupon passed sentence of death which Kirby heard without emotion.

The usual notice saying that the execution had taken place was posted outside the prison gates yesterday morning. It was signed by the Governor and the Under Sheriff for Essex.

HOSPITAL DINNER AT MANSION HOUSE.

The Lord Mayor of London to Preside?

The King George Hospital Extension dinner, to be held at the Mansion House, will, it is expected, be presided over by the Lord Mayor of London, and the event will probably take place on Tuesday, December 19th.

It will be remembered that at the inaugural dinner, held in 1929, the Prince of Wales was in the chair.

A number of important personages, in addition to the Lord Mayor, are being approached to give support on the coming occasion, for which invitations will be sent out in due course.

Mr. G. Austin Hepworth, the hospital's secretary, will be glad to receive the names of those willing to act as stewards at the dinner.

SUCCESSES.

The following pupils of Mr. Jack Bowden, A.R.C.M., L.T.C.L., 67, Mayfair-avenue, Ilford, have been successful since the end of the summer term: L.R.A.M., Eveline Barnes (paper work student); open scholarship to Magdalen College, Oxford, Brian Caink; Trinity College of Music examinations, senior organ, Arthur D. Button; senior pianoforte, Ruth Mee, aged 12 (honours); senior organ, Phillip Wills (fifth success in one year). 832

ROAD SINKS AT BARKINGSIDE.

Subsidence Near Excavations.

FOREST ROAD IMPASSABLE.

Forest-road, Barkingside, was closed to traffic on Tuesday night and Wednesday because of a road subsidence.

The subsidence affects about six yards square adjoining the trench which has been dug in connection with sewer works in that area.

This trench is 25 feet deep.

The affected part of the road dropped about a foot, but the trench itself did not fall in.

The matter was reported to the police about 9 p.m. on Tuesday and police officers went to the spot and directed traffic to make a detour.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE.

The members of the Chigwell Row Women's Institute held an enjoyable concert meeting on Thursday at All Saints' Schoolroom.

Following a brief business discussion, a delightful address was given by Mrs. Claire Goshett on "Life's Ideals."

A refreshment interval followed, after which the choir of the Chigwell Row Girls' School, under the direction of Mrs. Johnson (headmistress) sang several items. Two recitations given by Miss P. Bertin and Miss J. Spain were particularly well received, as were two pianoforte solos played by Miss Sheelagh Johnson, an Ilford County High School pupil.

Miss Bell was the winner of a stitching competition which was judged by Mrs. Johnson.

An elocution competition was won by Miss Blunden, who will thus compete in the county competition to be held at Chelmsford.

There were several stalls, all the holders doing good business.

HARVEST FESTIVAL.

The harvest festival services in connection with Chigwell Parish Church were held on Sunday, when the edifice was appropriately decorated with farm produce by the ladies of the congregation.

The preacher in the morning was the Rev. P. S. Abraham, vicar of Romford, and in the evening Rev. A. F. Gardiner, rector of Lambourne.

The offertory at both services, which amounted to £8 6s., was given to the Royal Agricultural Benevolent Society.

On Monday the fruit and vegetables with which the church was decorated were distributed among the sick and poor of the parish.

Harvest festival services will be held at Grange Hill Mission, which is attached to Chigwell Parish Church, on Sunday next when Rev. M. O. Smith (vicar) will preach.

ALL SAINTS' SCHOOLROOM.

Negotiations to End Anomalous Position.

Negotiations are proceeding between Chigwell Row Parochial Church Council and Chigwell Parochial Church Council to bring to an end an anomalous position with regard to All Saints' Schoolroom.

The school, since Chigwell Row was separated from Chigwell as a separate parish, has been maintained and decorated at the expense of All Saints' Parochial Church Council although it has never been handed over to them.

At the recent meeting of the Chigwell Row Parochial Church Council, the question was raised why they should maintain a building that was the property of another parish. As a result of discussion a letter was sent to the Chigwell Church Council asking them to surrender their interest in the property.

When approached by a "Recorder" reporter, the Rev. M. O. Smith (vicar of Chigwell) said the letter would be placed before the next meeting of the Church Council.

"Why the school was not handed over when Chigwell Row was made a separate parish, I cannot understand," he said. "There are certain legal difficulties to overcome and we want to find out what our legal position is. We think it reasonable that the property should belong to Chigwell Row, but we want to hand it over in a proper legal way."

ELECTRIC CABLE.

It is anticipated that electricity will be available for residents at Chigwell Row in a very short time. The work of extending the cable from Grange Hill to the village was started only a few weeks ago and already the cable is "live" as far as "Frog Hall," which is now illuminated by electricity.

Gardening Notes.

PLANNING THE GARDEN.

A Programme for October.

By G. A. TONKIN

(Seven Kings and Goodmayes Horticultural Society).

The "Ilford Recorder" having generously allotted us this space fortnightly for the subject of horticulture, I hope that it will be the means of stimulating interest in the work of the Seven Kings and Goodmayes Horticultural Society, besides helping gardeners generally to get the best out of their efforts.

October is one of the most important months of the gardening year, being the time for planning and planting, but before dealing with planning just a word on the current year's crops.

Roots should be lifted if not done already. Parsnips and turnips, however, may be left in and dug as required. The best way of storing carrots and beet is to lay them between layers of dry sand or soil. This method preserves their flavour better than if stored in open boxes.

Spring cabbages should be planted in October. These are an important vegetable for the kitchen garden as they provide a succession of cabbages before spring-sown vegetables are ready, besides being useful for exhibiting in the summer shows. Plant 15-18 inches apart in rows two feet wide. Before severe weather sets in earth up soil around them as protection. April, Ellams Early and Wheelers Imperial are some of the suitable varieties.

Foundation of Success.

The foundation of gardening success lies in the thorough preparation of the soil. This is done only by deep digging, which entails hard work.

Although simple digging or turning over of the soil one spit deep may be good enough for the average amateur, double-digging or bastard trenching is to be preferred; the greater depth of triable soil thus provided ensures much finer vegetables, flowers and fruits

Bastard trenching or double-digging is not undertaken by many owners of gardens, nor is it necessary except when flowering plants or vegetables are cultivated for purposes of exhibition.

The method of double-digging depends on whether the land has been cropped for some years or is new to cultivation.

In old gardens double-digging should be done so that the top soil is turned underneath and the lower soil placed on top, but if the ground is fallow, as it often is in gardens of new houses, the first and second layers of soil should be kept in their same respective positions. This is done by digging No. 1 trench and removing the soil to the end of the plot, the upper and lower soils being kept in separate heaps. In addition the top soil of No. 2 trench is removed and placed in a separate heap. After the bottom of the first trench has been forked over the 2nd layer of No. 2 trench is placed on the bottom of No. 1 trench and the top soil from No. 3 trench is put on the top of No. 1 trench. The result of this is to fill the first trench, empty the second and remove the top soil of the third one.

If in the digging of neglected ground the second layer or subsoil were brought to the top and the top soil buried, the crops would not be satisfactory the first year, because the transposed subsoil would be infertile. This applies only to derelict land, which should be dressed with lime as soon as digging is finished, one bushel being used on 3-4 rods. If the soil is light, chalk is to be preferred to lime.

It is of little use double-digging light sandy soil unless it contains hard stony patches, which ought of course to be broken up. Usually it is sufficient to dig it one spit deep and to mulch the surface with manure in the spring. A mistake is often made in digging manure deeply in light sandy soil, for it disappears quickly.

All plants require a supply of such minerals as nitrates, phosphates, potash salts, lime, etc., and these, with the possible exception of the nitrates, originate in the rocks of which the crust of the earth is composed. The action of the wind, rain, frost and sunshine leads to a slow disintegration of these rocks, and the broken up particles become mixed with the humus to form the soils of our gardens.

Crop Rotation.

By carefully arranging the order in which different crops succeed each other on the same patch of ground it is possible to conserve the mineral content of the soil for a much longer period than if the same crop were to be grown year after year on the same site.

A system which works well is to divide the plot into three sections. The first should yield carrots, parsnips, beet, celery and potatoes. The second should be used to grow beans, peas, onions, turnips and spring cabbage, and the third may be devoted to summer and autumn cabbages, sprouts, broccoli and kale. In the second year those crops that were previously on section 2 would be grown on section 1, those of section 3 would be on section 2, and those of section 1 would be on section 3. Each succeeding year this rotation would be continued, with the result that only once in three years would the crops be grown on the same site. Of course suitable fertilisers are necessary from time to time, for crop rotation does not obviate their use. Apart from other considerations, the continued moving of potato and cabbage crops about the garden helps to lessen the attacks of soil-borne parasites.

In the next article planting and pruning will be dealt with, but those interested in roses would do well to attend the educational talk on that subject to be given in the Wesleyan Lecture Hall, Blythswood-road, on October 20th, by Mr. S. F. Chamberlain. Admission is free. Talks on carnations, perennials, chrysanthemums and violas are also planned for each succeeding month except December.

A Weekly Talk on

How to Get the Right Perspective.

By F. T. Usher.

THE successful photographer invariably pays great attention to what is familiarly known as the point of view. The unsuccessful photographers pay no attention to this phase of their subject. In many cases they do not even know anything about it, and in their cases they prefer to snap at what they see just as they see it at the moment, and trust to luck. Therein lies the cause of their failures to make good pictures.

It is always worth while to consider a point of view when about to make a photograph of any sort. The artist has a great advantage over the camera-man in that he can draw his lines to represent the point of view which he prefers. The photographer, on the other hand, depends entirely upon the position of his camera, plus the focal length of his lens, to obtain a most pleasing perspective.

REAL BEAUTY.

Take, for example, a beautiful scene through which a country lane runs. The scene suddenly confronts the camera-man as he steps along the centre of the road. To stand and make a snap from that position would, in nine cases out of ten, be fatal. The greater part of the foreground of the picture as seen on the plate would be occupied by the road immediately in front of the camera. Obviously this is not what we want, so we step to one side of the road, and the immediate effect is to make the lines of the road run from the right or left of the picture, the foreground being broken up agreeably by detail in the form of grass or low foliage from the hedge. The road, although still dominating the drawing of the picture, is now more subdued and fits in better with the harmony of the surroundings.

Roads are often inseparable from a picture and sometimes they are very useful from the pictorial point of view, but they must be handled carefully, otherwise their obtrusiveness will spoil the general result. It is seldom good to have a road running out at the sides of a scene, thus carrying the eye away from the main interest, but that can be easily avoided by the simple expedient of moving a few steps to right or left. With a little practice the eye automatically urges the camera-man to seek the best point of view, but until the action becomes automatic great care should be taken. These things affect the composition of a picture, and good composition usually enhances the beauty of the subject. It is not given to everyone to understand the rules of art, but we can make up for our deficiencies in that respect by avoiding what is unbeautiful, by selecting the right point of view.

POINTS TO CONSIDER.

While it is necessary to have good perspective we also require balance of masses, and we may go some way towards success by giving some attention to the masses. A handsome tree may be worth including in the picture, but it would not look well placed in the centre, thus dividing the picture into two parts. Again, we may shift the point of view so that it stands at one side, but unless we have something at the opposite side to keep the balance the effect would be lop-sided. Movement to the right or left would in all probability have the effect of bringing some distant tree or building into view on the side opposite the large tree, which would relieve the one-sided effect of the first arrangement.

Fences, rivers, walls and other objects forming straight lines would spoil any picture if they were allowed to run right across it, but by shifting the point of view we can make them run into the picture or in any direction we choose and cause them to harmonise with other lines in the view.

Landscape work always requires treatment with a colour sensitive film, such as Selochrome, or a colour sensitive plate, in order that the greens of the trees and the blues of the sky may be rendered more accurately.

These are small matters, but they are worth noting, and help in the making of pictures as compared with ordinary snapshot records.

UNCLE PETER'S LETTER.

Things Get Worse in the Office!

SO I GO AWAY!

My dear little nephews and nieces,

It was simply no good! I couldn't stand it any longer. That moulting business I mean! Things got to such a pass, that we actually had the representatives of two big hair-restoring firms visit the "Recorder," this week, wanting to sell me a few crates of hair-restorer to use on all the animals! And, of course, they both came on the same day and at the same time, and started to argue with one another as to whose firm sold the best hair-restorer, and if Tinker hadn't suddenly joined in the conversation and told them both what he thought of them, I don't think I should ever have got rid of them!

Well, the Editor saw that I couldn't stand the strain of it all much longer, so he said he thought I'd better go away for a little holiday to get over it, and that perhaps while I'm away, the Directors will have a good spring-clean—even though it is autumn— and get rid of all the fur. Anyway it will give the Head Printer a chance to calm all his men down again, because they've begun to threaten Union action against me and all the animals, because the Union rules say you mustn't be asked to clean fur out of printing machines, let alone having to dust it off the finished papers.

So the Editor told me to pack up my toothbrush and clear off to Timbuctoo for a few weeks. And I'm writing this letter to you—yes, really and truly—in the restaurant car of a fast express train! I haven't got Tinker with me though! Peterkin and Gwennie took care of that! They both held on to his collar as tightly as they could until my train had got up speed and puffed out of the station.

I'm afraid that I was so busy getting ready to come away that I didn't have time to answer all your letters, this week, but I have bought them away with me and you shall all have answers, absolutely for certain, next week. And new letters will be sent on to me, so be sure and write a lot for me, so that I shall be able to read them to all the nice little coloured children in Timbuctoo—if I get as far as that!

There are, however, two letters that I specially want to tell you about and which can't wait till next week. The first is from my little niece, Audrey Tabersham. I expect most of you have seen Audrey's name among our lists of prize-winners at some time or another, because it has certainly been there more than once. I am very sorry to say that Audrey's letter tells me that she is ill, and has had to go to the King George Hospital for an operation. So that makes two or our Peterkins who are in hospital just now, because Cyril Stevens isn't well enough to be home yet.

I'm very glad to say that Audrey's letter is one of the nicest, happiest letters any little niece could write, and that though she can't sit up yet, she tried our competition. That's what I call being really plucky! Will you all send your love and kind thoughts to Audrey, just as soon as you read this letter?

The other letter I want to tell you about brought very good news. It was from Dorothy Eastwood, and told me that Dorothy has found two new Peterkins for us—her little brother and sister, Gordon and Jean Eastwood who are twins, aged 11 months! I am sure we are all delighted to have them in our club!

And now I must stop writing and look out of the carriage window because the view is getting really exciting.

Lots of love, my chicks,
Your affectionate,
UNCLE PETER.

PETERKIN'S LETTER.

Gwennie Pours Out Tea!

My dear cousins,

I didn't argue with Gwennie when she said she was going to pour out the tea, but I just said inside myself, "Oh, will you! We'll wait and see!"

Perhaps you'll think I was rather horrid—and maybe I was. But you see Gwennie would keep rubbing it in that she was going to pour out, and each time she told me, I felt more aggravated about it.

I don't know if the train steward heard what she said, or if he guessed how I was feeling. But when he came along with the tray he quite upset all Gwennie's calculations!

He brought us a lovely plateful of hot, butter toast, a pot of tea and a jug of milk. He carefully took these off his tray and arranged them on our table. And then he calmly picked up the teapot and poured out our tea, himself, giving us each a cup only about half-filled.

You ought to have seen Gwennie's face! I was a bit surprised myself. Gwennie waited until he had gone and then she whispered to me, "I could have poured it out much better than that! Look he's only half filled my cup!"

"Never mind," I said, "let's eat up our toast and drink what tea we've got, and then when this is all gone, we can pour some more out for ourselves."

"I'm a good mind to pour some more out now, and fill my cup up properly," Gwennie said, tentatively feeling the handle of the teapot.

"You mustn't," I said, hastily, "It'll look so greedy."

"No it won't," Gwennie argued. "I'll fill your's up too!"

"No, you won't," I said, beginning to get angry, "because I shall pour my own tea out when I'm ready."

"You won't," Gwennie exclaimed, and reached out to pull the teapot right over to her side of the table where I couldn't reach it.

I was so angry that I forgot everything except making sure that Gwennie didn't get her own way. I let go of Tinker who, up to that moment, I had held fast with my left hand, and I too reached out after the teapot.

But the very instant Tinker felt my hand move, he shot out from under the table, sprang up on to the seat beside Gwennie, and seized her piece of buttered toast. And as he jumped, he knocked Gwennie's elbow with his head and sent the teapot flying out of her hand! Hot tea poured out of it over Gwennie's frock over the table-cloth, and over Tinker.

Tinker yelped, Gwennie screamed and the teapot clattered down on to the floor and rolled down the corridor.

From all directions, train officials and waiters came flocking to enquire into the cause of the commotion and everybody seemed to be looking our way and exclaiming at once, "Wherever did that dog come from?"

* * *

I'll go on next week.
Lots of love,
Your affectionate cousin,
PETERKIN.

RULE OF THE BIG MINORITIES.

How the Many are Swayed by the Few.

By H. L. Gee.

THE world and our individual lives are very largely controlled by minorities! This must seem a strange assertion at a time when government in this country is developing along more and more democratic lines. True, the serfdom of feudal times has been superseded by a wiser citizenship, and the despotism of the Tudors has given place to a Parliamentary representation upon which the people have considerable influence. Ostensibly the multitudes govern themselves, as if to prove the worth of that old half-truth, "The voice of the people is the voice of God." But when we come to look more closely into life (individual, civic, national) we discover a paradox—the many are swayed by the few, the majorities are ruled by the active minorities.

All our legislation, for example, is necessitated by the presence of the lawless minority! Our law courts and prisons, our policemen and detectives, the entire system of regulations and punishments and defences and restrictions, not for the ninety and nine righteous persons, but for the one breaker of the law. In the realm of fashion the majorities are completely ruled by the minorities, for the very essence of fashion is to be different from the rank and file, and only the few can determine the nature of that difference. No sooner has the newest style come in (that is, no sooner have the elect few taken a step before the many) than everyone must follow suit, and the very success of the most recent vogue is the cause of its sudden decline. When the multitudes have adopted it, it becomes imperative that some new creation should appear, and in this manner the few amongst the many are really the dynamic of all change.

LEAVEN WORKING SILENTLY.

After all, is not progress invariably the result of activity on the part of the minorities? Has it not been so always? The multitude follows the few—though frequently they deride those whom they follow, unless they kill them! There was a time when all men believed the world to be flat, and when Gallio ventured to think otherwise they threatened to take his life.

There was a man named Columbus, who was one of a very small minority which believed in El Dorado. The multitude poured contempt on his wild schemes—until they were compelled to believe in the existence of a New World! Almost every great and useful invention, from the "spinning jenny" to wireless telegraphy, owes its origin to one solitary individual who became the centre of a small (yet believing) minority which eventually bestowed a rich blessing upon a suspicious and thankless world. The majority derided Murdoch and his attempts to light London with gas; the majority were sworn enemies of Watt and Stephenson: but amongst those antagonistic majorities were active minorities destined to exercise a tremendous influence.

For the active minority is (and always has been) the leaven working secretly and silently and surely. The multitude acts according to the commands of the few. It goes whither it is led by the pioneers of science and social reform. It thinks it thinks, but in reality it merely borrows opinions—and those opinions, having percolated through gossip and the press originate in the minds and hearts of the thinking few! The majority is a vast and immeasurably powerful machine, but the minority is its driving power!

The multitude would remain permanently "in status quo" were it not for the dynamic of those who are ever ahead of their day and generation. The dissatisfied minority of the Stone Age laid the foundations of the Bronze Age. The fools amongst the alchemists blazed the trial to modern science. The martyrs of Smithfield helped to put out the unlit fires of the next century!

TIDE IN AFFAIRS OF MEN.

Without vision a people perish, because amongst the multitudes there are none who have been born too soon, who can see an inch further than their fellows, who are prepared to break the chains of convention and make up the vanguard that shall blaze a trail towards greater things. The prophets make a small minority—yet how great that minority is!

Long ago there was a little company of men and women in an upper room, and to them came an inbreathing of the very spirit of God, and they went out to conquer the whole world! What folly! But nothing is impossible to an active minority, for the smaller it is the more concentrated it is, and the greater it is persecuted the more it thrives and expands, the surer its influence! Of themselves the masses stagnate (if they do not actually retrogress), and it is always the vitality of the part which vitalises the whole!

There is, indeed, a sense in which wrong out-wrongs itself and right can be so unbearably virtuous as to cause its own demise! Looking at human life as a whole there is what one might term an automatic limit to good and evil because there is an automatic check upon both. Life goes on in huge cycles, and the pendulum of existence swings with steady motion.

As in Biblical times, the chosen people of God forgot the law of Moses, forgot their past and sought after strange idols and then went so far from the straight path that they compelled themselves to return thereto, so all through history every ill has had its remedy. A degenerate age will eventually horrify itself so that better times will follow, and often the very excellence of those times is the root cause of a second degeneration!

THE SEA OF HUMAN LIFE.

As surely as the multitude seeks after vain things, so surely will a minority arise to point the way and bring Pentecostal power and purge the sins and purify the foulness. And then, almost before the moment when the minority has reached its climax and become a majority it oversteps the mark, abuses its power, and is itself attacked by opposing minorities! So the vast sea of human life ebbs and flows; the good in part the very cause of the bad, the bad the genesis of the good, and this everlasting ebb and flow is the result of the big minorities!

Of what use is this tidal movement? There is a question for philosophers to wrangle over! Let one reason suffice for the present. Movement is better than stagnation! Without the little tides the vast oceans would be no better than still ponds, and without the restlessness of the minorities progress would be impossible! Exactly what progress is it is hard to tell, but we feel, surely, that life was not meant to be content with itself.

Outwardly we are governed by the majorities which invariably act to-day as they acted yesterday. Inwardly we are impelled by the minorities from whom we derive power and inspiration, and to whom we owe all that discomfort which makes life a great and a glorious adventure.

The minority of to-day is the majority of to-morrow, and the forward movement, the strength, the life, and inspiration of to-morrow is being fashioned secretly and silently by the minorities of to-day!

CHADWELL HEATH MUSICAL SOCIETY.

"With the talent we have at our disposal, of which to-night's performance was a mere drop in the ocean, I have no doubt that the Chadwell Heath Musical Society can become the premier society in this district."

This was the opinion of the new secretary, Mr. S. Marchant Williams, expressed at the first meeting on Monday in the music room of the Cooper's Arms, Chadwell Heath.

The society was founded in 1927, but interest has been flagging. This year the society has been completely re-organised, and the new president is Mr. Jack Bullen, of Seven Kings.

An excellent performance was given on Monday, contributions being made by the orchestra, Miss Grace Vale, Mr. Harry Osborne, Mr. Fred Pavey, Mr. Gould, Mr. Toft and Mr. Pollard.

WHERE IS IT?

Further Posers to Test Your Local Knowledge

By H. Marcus Fisk.

HERE is a second list of questions by which you may test your powers of observation regarding the lesser-known facts of Ilford. Answers to last week's set of questions are also given.

WHERE IN ILFORD CAN BE FOUND:—

(1) A pigstye (in the centre of the town)?

(2) The place where there originated one of the most celebrated horticultural objects in the world?

(3) A tomb not in a church, churchyard or cemetery?

(4) The spot (not Seven Kings Station) where the railway runs under the High Road?

(5) A place half-an-hour's walk from any railway station?

(6) A parish without licensed premises?

(7) An aerodrome?

(8) An automatic traffic control signal in use many years?

(9) The highest ground?

(10) A private house in an otherwise unbroken sequence of 150 shops?

(11) A bell-tower, not on a church?

(12) A mulberry tree over a pavement?

(1) A bridge that leads nowhere?—Over the railway near Newbury Park Station ending in the gardens behind the houses of Stainforth-road and Glebelands-avenue.

(2) A well-known building which once stood on the opposite side of the road?—The old Hospital Almhouses and Chapel on Ilford Hill. The original road followed the line of Roden-street and the passage beside the General Post Office, instead of the Broadway, which is much more modern.

(3) A wooden house?—There are several wooden houses. The best example being near the Animals' Hospital in Roding-lane.

(4) A road without houses?—A number of roads have only the garden walls of the intersecting ones; Athol-road, Goodmayes, is one.

(5) A road where the numbers jump from No. 1 to No. 31, the two houses being adjacent?—Aldborough-road (Seven Kings end); it is presumed the missing numbers were (or are) intended for any houses to be built on the Allotment Society's land.

(6) A whole village still standing intact in the midst of modern streets?—The old village of Horseshoes, now existing as Victoria-road and Queen's-road, Barkingside, which till only two or three years ago was entirely in country fields.

(7) Four Secondary Schools?—This is rather a catch. There are, of course, really only three secondary schools, the boys' in Balfour-road, the girls' in Cranbrook-road, and the Ursuline, but Barking Abbey School lies just in the Ilford boundary.

(8) An orchard still functioning cut in two by a main road?—In Eastern-avenue, between Barley-lane and Whalebone-lane.

(9) A public inscription in Latin?—On the Roman Catholic Club in High-road, near Green-lane corner.

(10) A chapel under control of the Borough Council?—In the Municipal Cemetery.

(11) A monument erected to a Cherry Pie? (This is, technically, just outside the Borough boundary)—On the wall of "The George," just after Eastern-avenue leaves Ilford at Redbridge.

(12) A church with a copper spire?—St. Peter's, Aldborough Hatch.

Heavy Weather

By P. G. Wodehouse

IN the drawing-room, however, when he arrived there after taking the stairs three at a time in that juvenile way of his which gout-crippled contemporaries so resented, he found only his sister Julia. She was seated in an armchair, smoking a cigarette and reading an illustrated weekly paper. The tea which he had hoped to spoil was in the process of being cleared away by Beach and a footman.

She looked contented, and she was feeling contented. Ronnie's growing gloom during the past two days had not escaped her. In a mood to be genial to everybody, even to one whom she had always looked upon as the family blot, she welcomed the Hon. Galahad with a pleasant nod.

"You're late, if you've come for tea," she said.

"Tea!" snorted the Hon. Galahad. He stood fuming until the door closed. "Now, then, Julia," he said. "I want a word with you."

Lady Julia raised her shapely eyebrows.

"My dear Galahad! This is very menacing and ominous. Is something the matter?"

"You know what's the matter. Where's Connie?"

"Gone to answer the telephone, I believe."

"Well, you'll do to start with."

"Galahad, really!"

"Put down that paper."

"Oh, very well."

The Hon. Galahad strode to the hearthrug and stood with his back to the empty fireplace. Racial instinct made him feel more authoritative in that position. He frowned forbiddingly.

"Julia, you make me sick."

"Indeed? Why is that?"

"What the devil do you mean by trying to poison young Ronnie's mind against Sue Brown?"

"Really, Galahad!"

"Do you deny that is what you have been doing ever since you got here?"

"I may have pointed out to him once or twice the inadvisability of marrying a girl who appears to be in love with another man. If this be treason, make the most of it. Surely, it's a tenable theory."

"You think she's in love with young Bodkin?"

"Apparently."

"If you will step down to the billiard room," said the Hon. Galahad, "I think you may possibly alter your opinion."

Something of Lady Julia's self-confidence left her.

"What do you mean?"

"Touching," said the Hon. Galahad unctuously. "That's what it was. Touching. It nearly made me cry. I never saw a more united couple. All their doubts and misunderstandings cleared away."

"What?"

"Locked in each other's arms, weeping on each other's chests—you ought to go down and have a look, Julia. You'll be in plenty of time. It's evidently going to be one of those nonstop performances. Well, anyway, that's the first thing I came up here to tell you. You have been taking a lot of trouble to ruin this girl's happiness these last few days, and you are now getting official intimation that you haven't succeeded. They are all right, those two. 'Sweethearts still' is the term."

The Hon. Galahad spread his coat tails to the invisible blaze and resumed:

"The other thing I came to say is that there must be no more of this nonsense. If you have objections to young Ronnie marrying Sue, don't mention them to him. It worries him and makes him moody, and that worries Sue and makes her unhappy, and that worries me and spoils my day. You understand."

* * *

LADY JULIA was shaken, but she had not lost her spirit.

"I'm afraid you must make up your mind to having your days spoiled, Galahad."

"You don't mean that even after this you intend to keep making a pest of yourself?"

"You put these things so badly. What you are trying to say, I imagine, is: Do I still intend to give my child a mother's advice? Certainly I do. A boy's best friend is his mother, don't you sometimes think? Ronnie, handicapped by being virtually half-witted, may not have seen fit to take my advice as yet, but if, in the old days, you ever had a moment to spare from your life work of being thrown out of shady night clubs and were able to look in at the Adelphi Theatre, you may remember the expression: 'A time will come!'"

The Hon. Galahad stared at this indomitable woman with something that was almost admiration.

"Well, I'm dashed!"

"Are you?"

"You always were a tough nut, Julia."

"Thank you."

"Always. Even as a child. It used to interest me in those days to watch you gradually dawning on the latest governess. I could read her thoughts in her face, poor devil. First, she would meet Connie, and you could almost hear her saying to herself, 'Hello. A vicious specimen, this one.' And then you would come along, all wide, innocent blue eyes and flaxen curls, and she would feel a great wave of relief and fling her arms round you, thinking, 'Well, here's one that's all right, thank God!' Little knowing that she had just come up against the stoniest-hearted, beastliest-natured and generally most poisonous young human rattlesnake in all Shropshire."

Lady Julia seemed genuinely pleased at this tribute. She laughed musically.

"You are silly, Galahad."

* * *

THE HON. GALAHAD adjusted his monocle.

"So your hat is still in the ring, eh?"

"Still there, my dear."

"But what have you got against young Sue?"

"I don't like chorus girls as daughters-in-law."

"But, great heavens above, Julia, surely you can see that Sue isn't the sort of girl you mean when you say 'chorus girls' in that beastly sniffy way?"

"You can't expect me to classify and tabulate chorus girls. I haven't your experience. They're all chorus girls to me."

"There are moments, Julia," said the Hon. Galahad meditatively, "when I should like to drown you in a bucket."

"A butt of Malmsey would have been more in your line, I should have thought."

"Your attitude about young Sue infuriates me. Can't you see the girl's a nice girl—a sweet girl—and a lady, if it comes to that?"

"Tell me, Gally," said Lady Julia, "just as a matter of interest, is she your daughter?"

The Hon. Galahad bristled:

"She is not. Her father was a man in the Irish Guards, named Cotterleigh. He and Dolly were married when I was in South Africa."

He stood for a moment, his mind in the past.

"Fellow told me about it quite casually one day when I was having a drink in a Johannesburg bar," he said, with a far-off look in his eyes. "'I see that girl Dolly Henderson who used to be at the Tivoli has got married,' he said. Out of a blue sky——"

Lady Julia took up her paper.

"Well if you have no further observations of interest to make——"

The Hon. Galahad came back to the present: "Oh, I have."

"Please hurry, then."

"I have something to say which I fancy will interest you very much."

"That will make a nice change."

The Hon. Galahad paused for a moment. His sister took advantage of the fact to interject a question:

"It isn't, by any chance, that if this marriage of Ronnie's is stopped, you will publish those Reminiscences of yours, is it?"

"It is."

Lady Julia gave another of her jolly laughs.

"My dear man, I had all that days ago from Constance. And my flesh didn't creep a bit. It seems to agitate Connie tremendously, but speaking for myself, I haven't the slightest objection to your publishing a dozen books of Reminiscences. It will be nice to think of you making some money at last, and as for the writhings of the nobility and gentry——"

"Julia," said the Hon. Galahad, "one moment."

He eyed her intently. She returned his gaze with an air of faintly bored inquiry.

"Well?"

"You are the relict of the late Major General Sir Miles Fish, C.B.O., late of the Brigade of Guards."

"I have never denied it."

"Let us speak for a while," said the Hon. Galahad gently, "of the late Major General Sir Miles Fish."

* * *

SLOWLY a look of horror crept into Lady Julia's blue eyes. Slowly she rose from the chair in which she had been reclining. A hideous suspicion had come into her mind.

"When Miles Fish married you," said the Hon. Galahad, "he was a respectable—even a stodgily respectable—colonel. I remember you saying the first time you met him that you thought him slow. Believe me, Julia, when I knew dear old Fishy Fish as a young subaltern, while you were still poisoning governess' lives at Blandings Castle, he was quite the reverse of slow. His jolly rapidity was the talk of London."

She started at him, aghast. Her whole outlook on life, as one might say, had been revolutionised. Hitherto, her attitude toward the famous Reminiscences had been, as it were, airy, detached—"academic" is, perhaps the word one wants. The thought of the consternation which they would spread among her friends had amused her. But then she had naturally supposed that this man would have exercised a decent reticence about the pasts of his own flesh and blood.

"Galahad! You haven't——"

The historian was pointing a finger at her like some figure of doom.

"Who rode a bicycle down Piccadilly in sky-blue underclothing in the late summer of '97?"

"Galahad!"

"Who, returning to his rooms in the early morning of New Year's Day, 1902, mistook the coal scuttle for a mad dog and tried to shoot it with the fire tongs?"

"Galahad!"

"Who——"

He broke off. Lady Constance had come into the room.

"Ah, Connie," he said genially. "I've just been having a chat with Julia. Get her to tell you all about it. I must be going down and seeing how those young folks are getting on."

He paused at the door.

"Supplementary material," he said, focusing his monocle on Lady Julia, "will be found in Chapters Three, Eleven, Sixteen, Seventeen and Twenty-One. Especially Chapter Twenty-one."

With a final beam, he passed jauntily from the room and began to descend the stairs.

In the billiard room, the scene which he had rightly described as touching was still in progress. He wished he could take a snapshot of it to show to his sister Julia.

"That's right, my boy," he said cordially. "Capital!"

Ronnie detached himself and began to straighten his tie. He had not heard the door open.

"Oh, hullo, Uncle Gally," he said. "You here?"

Sue ran to the Hon. Galahad and kissed him.

"I shouldn't," said that gratified but cautious man. "He'll be getting jealous of me next."

"There is no need," said Ronnie, with dignity, "to rub it in."

"Well I won't, then. Merely contenting myself with remarking that of all the young poops I ever met——"

"He is not a poop!" said Sue.

"My dear," insisted the Hon. Galahad, "I was brought up among poops. I spent my formative years among poops. I have been a member of clubs which consisted exclusively of poops. You will allow me to recognise a poop when I see one. However, we won't argue the point. What I want to talk about now is that manuscript of mine."

A wordless cry broke from Ronnie's lips.

"Poop or no poop," proceeded the Hon. Galahad, "he has got to guard that manuscript with his life. Because if ever there were two women who would descend to the level of the beasts of the field to lay their hooks on it——"

"Uncle Gally!"

"Ronnie, darling," cried Sue, "what is it?"

She might well have asked. The young man's eyes were fixed in a ghastly stare. His usually immaculate hair was disordered where he had thrust a fevered hand through it. Even his waistcoat seemed ruffled.

"——they are your mother and your Aunt Constance," proceeded the Hon. Galahad, who was never an easy man to interrupt. "And here's something that will surprise you. Young Monty Bodkin is after the thing too. Young Bodkin has turned out to be an A-1 snake in the grass, I'm sorry to say. He's under orders from the man who runs the firm that was going to publish my book, to pinch it and take it to him. Lord Tilbury. I used to know him years ago as Stinker Pyke. Why they ever made young Stinker a peer——"

"Uncle Gally!"

A little testily, the Hon. Galahad allowed the stream of his eloquence to be diverted at last:

"Well, what is it?"

A sort of frozen calm, the calm of utter despair, had come upon Ronnie Fish.

"Monty Bodkin was in here just now," he said. "He wanted that manuscript. I told him where it was. And he went off to get it."

* * *

NO JOY in this world is ever quite perfect. "Surgit," as the old Roman said, "aliquid amari." Monty Bodkin, having removed the manuscript from Ronnie's chest of drawers and gloated over it and taken it to his room and, after gloating over it again, deposited it in a safe place there, found his ecstasy a little dimmed by the thought of the awkward interview with Percy Pilbeam which now faced him. He was a young man who shrank from embarrassing scenes, and it seemed to him that this one threatened to be extremely embarrassing. Pilbeam, he realised, would have every excuse for being as sore as a gumboil.

Look at the thing squarely, he meant to say. A private detective has his feelings. He resents being made a silly ass of. If you commission him to do something, and then buzz off and do it yourself, pique inevitably supervenes. Suppose Sherlock Holmes, for instance had sweated himself to the bone to recover the naval plans or something, and then the Admiralty authorities had come along and observed casually, "Oh, I say, you know those naval plans, old man. Well don't bother about them. We've just gone and snitched them ourselves." Pretty sick the poor old human bloodhound would have felt, no doubt. And pretty sick in similar circumstances Monty anticipated that Percy Pilbeam was going to feel. He did not like the job of breaking the news at all.

However, it had to be done. He found the proprietor of the Argus—Pilgus, Piccy, London—in the smoking room, massaging his moustache, and with some trepidation proceeded to edge into the agenda:

"Oh, there you are, Pilbeam. I say——"

The investigator looked up. It increased Monty's feeling of guilt to note that he had evidently been thinking frightfully hard. He had a sort of boiled look.

"Ah Bodkin. I was just coming to find you. I have been thinking——"

* * *

MONTY'S tender heart bled for the fellow, but he supposed it was kindest to let him have it on the chin without preamble.

"I know you have, my poor old sleuth," he said. "I can see it in your eye. Well, I've got a bit of bad news for you, I'm afraid. What I came to tell you was to switch off the brain power. Stop scheming. Put the mind back into neutral. I'm taking you off the case."

"Eh?"

"I'm sorry, but there it is. You see, what with one thing and another, I've been and got that manuscript myself."

"What?"

"Yes."

There was a long pause.

"Well, that's fine," said Pilbeam. "I hope you have hidden it carefully?"

"Oh yes. It's shoved away under the bed in my room. Right up against the wall."

"Well, that's fine," said Pilbeam.

His attitude occasioned Monty much relief. He had braced himself up to endure reproaches, to wince beneath recriminations. It seemed to him extraordinarily decent of the man to take it like this. He was dashed, indeed, if he could remember ever having met anyone who, under such provocation had been so extraordinarily decent.

"What are you going to do with it?" asked Pilbeam.

"I'm taking it down to the Emsworth Arms to a fellow of the name of Tilbury."

"Not Lord Tilbury?"

"That's right," said Monty, surprised. "Do you know him?"

"Before I opened the Argus, I was editor of Society Spice."

"No, really? Fancy that. Before he booted me out, I was assistant editor of Just Tots. It seems to bring us very close together, what?"

"But why does Lord Tilbury want it?"

"Well, you see, he has a contract with Gally for the book, and when Gally refused to publish, he saw himself losing the dickens of a lot of money. Naturally, he wants it."

"I see. He ought to give you a pretty big reward."

"Oh, I'm not asking him for money. I've got lots of money. What I want is a job. He promised to take me back on Just Tots if I would get the thing for him."

"You are leaving here, then?"

Monty chuckled amusedly.

"You bet I'm leaving here. I expect the sack any moment. I'd have got it yesterday, all right," said Monty, with another chuckle, "if old Emsworth had happened to come along when I was working on the door of that potting shed."

"What was that?"

"Rather amusing. I found old Tilbury locked up in a species of shed yesterday afternoon. Apparently he had been caught in conversation with that pig of the old boy's, offering it potatoes and so forth, and was suspected of trying to poison the animal. So they shut him up in this shed, and I came along and let him out. Just imagine how quick I should be leaving if Emsworth knew that I was the chap who flung wide the gates."

"My word, yes," said Pilbeam, laughing genially.

"He'd throw me out in a second."

"He certainly would."

"Rummy, his attitude about that pig," said Monty musingly. "A few years ago, he used to be crazy about pumpkins. I suppose, if you really face the facts, he's the sort of chap who has to be practically off his rocker about something. Yesterday, pumpkins. This day, pigs. To-morrow, rabbits. This time next year, roosters or rhododendrons."

"I suppose so," said Pilbeam.

"And when are you thinking of taking this manuscript to Lord Tilbury?"

"Right away."

"I wouldn't do that," said Pilbeam, shaking his head. "No, I don't think I would advise you to do that. You want to wait till everybody's dressing for dinner. Suppose you were to run into Threepwood."

"I never thought of that."

"Or Lady Constance."

"Lady Constance?"

"I happen to know that she is trying to get that manuscript. She wants to destroy it."

"I say! You certainly find things out, don't you?"

"Oh, one keeps one's ears open."

"I suppose you've got to, if you're a detective. Well, I do seem properly trapped in the den of the Secret Nine, what? I'd better not make a move till dressing for dinner time, as you say. I'm glad you gave me that tip. Thanks."

"Don't mention it," said Pilbeam.

He rose.

"You off?" said Monty.

"Yes, I've just remembered there is something I want to speak to Lord Emsworth about. You don't know where he is, do you?"

"Sorry, no. The ninth doesn't confide in me much."

"I suppose he's in the pigsty."

"You can tell him by his hat," said Monty automatically. "Yes, I imagine he would be. Anything special you wanted to see him about?"

"Just something he asked me to find out for him."

"In your professional capacity, do you mean? Pilgus, Piccy, London?"

"Yes."

"Is he employing your services, then?"

"Oh, yes. That's why I'm here."

"I see," said Monty.

This made him feel much easier in his mind. If Pilbeam was drawing a nice bit of cash from old Simon Legree, it put a different complexion on everything. Naturally, in that case, he wouldn't so much mind being done out of the Bodkin fee.

Still, he did feel that the fellow had behaved most extraordinarily decently.

* * *

LORD EMSWORTH was not actually in the pigsty, but he was quite near it. It took more than a thunderstorm to drive him from the Empress' side. A vague idea that he was getting a little wet had caused him to take shelter in the potting shed during the worst of the downpour, but he was now out and about again. When Pilbeam arrived, he was standing by the rails in earnest conversation with Pirbright. He welcomed the detective warmly.

"You're just the man I was wanting to see, my dear Pilbeam," he said. "Pirbright and I have been discussing the question of moving the Empress to a new sty. I say yes, Pirbright says no. One sees his point, of course . . . I quite see your point, my dear Pirbright . . . Pirbright's point," explained Lord Emsworth, "is that she is used to this sty and moving her to a strange one might upset her and put her off her feed."

"Quite," said Pilbeam, profoundly uninterested.

"On the other hand," proceeded Lord Emsworth, "We know that there is this sinister cabal against her well-being. Attempts have already been made to nobble her, as I believe the term is. They may be made again. And my view is that this sty here is in far too lonely and remote a spot for safety. God bless my soul," said Lord Emsworth, deeply moved, "in a place like this, a quarter of a mile away from anywhere, Parsloe could walk in during the night and do her a mischief without so much as taking the cigar out of his mouth. Where I was thinking of moving her, Pirbright would be within call at any moment. It's near his cottage. At the slightest sign of anything wrong, he could jump out of bed and hurry to the rescue."

It was possibly this very thought that had induced the pig man to say "Nur" as earnestly as he had done. He was a man who liked his sleep. He shook his head now, and a rather bleak look came into his gnarled face.

"Well, there is the position my dear Pilbeam. What do you advise?"

It seemed to the detective that the sooner he gave his decision, the sooner the unprofitable discussion would be ended. He was completely indifferent about the whole thing. Officially at the castle to help guard the Empress, his heart had never been in that noble task. Pigs bored him.

"I'd move her," he said.

"You really feel that?"

"Quite."

A mild triumph shone from Lord Emsworth's pince-nez.

"There you have an expert opinion, Pirbright," he said. "Mr. Pilbeam knows. If Mr. Pilbeam says, 'Move her,' she must certainly be moved. Do it as soon as possible."

"Yur, m'lord," said the pig man despondently.

"And now Lord Emsworth," said Pilbeam, "can I have a word with you?"

"Certainly, my dear fellow, certainly. But before you do so, I have something very important to tell you. I want to hear what you make of it. Let me mention that first, and then you can tell me whatever it is that you have come to talk about. You won't forget whatever it is that you have come to talk about?"

"Oh, no."

"I frequently do. I intend to tell somebody something, and something happens to prevent my doing so immediately, and when I am able to tell it to them, I find I have forgotten it. My sister Constance has often been very vehement about it. I recollect her once comparing my mind to a sieve. I thought it rather clever. She meant that it was full of holes, you understand, as I believe sieves are. That was on the occasion when—"

Pilbeam had not had the pleasure of the ninth earl's acquaintance long, but he had had it long enough to know that, unless firmly braked, he was capable of trickling on like this indefinitely.

"What was it you wished to tell me, Lord Emsworth?" he said.

"Eh? . . . Ah yes, quite so, my dear fellow. You want to hear that very important fact that I was going to put before you. Well, I would like you to throw your mind back, my dear Pilbeam to yesterday. Yesterday evening. I wonder if you remember my mentioning to you the extraordinary mystery of that man getting out of the potting shed?"

"Certainly."

"The facts—"

"I know."

"The facts—"

"I remember them."

"The facts," proceeded Lord Emsworth evenly, "are as follows: In pursuance of my instructions, Pirbright was lurking near this sty yesterday afternoon, and what should he see but a ruffianly looking fellow trying to poison my pig with a potato. He crept up and caught him in the act, and then shut him in that shed over there, intending to come back after he had informed me of the matter and hale him to justice. I should mention that, after placing the fellow in the shed, he carefully secured the door with a stout wooden staple."

"Quite. I—"

"It seemed out of the question that he could effect an escape—I am speaking of the fellow, not of Pirbright—and you may imagine his astonishment, therefore—I am speaking of Pirbright, not of the fellow—when, on returning, he discovered that that is just what had occurred. The door of the shed was open, and he—I am once more speaking of the fellow—was gone. He had completely disappeared, my dear Pilbeam. And here is the very significant thing I wanted to tell you: Just before you came up, I got Pirbright to shut me in the shed and secure the door with the staple, and I found it impossible—quite impossible, my dear fellow to release myself from within. I tried and tried and tried, but no, I couldn't do it. Now, what does that suggest to you Pilbeam?" asked Lord Emsworth, peering over his pince-nez.

"Somebody must have let him out."

"Exactly. Undoubtedly. Beyond a question. Who it was, of course, we shall never know."

"I have found out who it was."

Lord Emsworth was staggered. He had always known in a nebulous sort of way that detectives were gifted beyond the ordinary with the power to pierce the inscrutable, but this was the first time he had actually watched them at it.

"You have found out who it was?" he gasped.

"I have."

"Pirbright, Mr. Pilbeam has found out who it was."

"Ur, m'lord."

"Already! Isn't that amazing, Pirbright?"

"Yur, m'lord."

"I wouldn't have thought it could have been done in the time, would you, Pirbright?"

"Nur, m'lord."

"Well, well well!" said Lord Emsworth. "That is the most extraordinary—Ah, I knew there was something I wanted to ask you . . . Who was it?"

"Bodkin."

"Bodkin!"

"Your secretary—young Bodkin," said Pilbeam.

"I knew it!" Lord Emsworth shook a fist skyward, and his voice, as always in moments of emotion became high and reedy: "I knew it! I suspected the fellow all along. I was convinced that he was an accomplice of Parsloe's. I'll dismiss him!" cried Lord Emsworth, almost achieving an A in alt. "He shall go at the end of the month."

"It would be safer to get him off the place at once."

"Of course it would, my dear fellow. You are quite right. He shall be turned out immediately. Where is he? I will go to him instantly."

"Better let me send him to you out here. More dignified. Don't go to him. Let him come to you."

"I see what you mean."

"You wait here, and I'll go and tell him you wish to see him."

"My dear fellow, I don't want to put you to all that trouble."

"No trouble," Pilbeam assured him. "A pleasure."

* * *

IT is one of the distinguishing characteristics of your man of the world that he can keep his poise even under the most trying of conditions. Beyond a sort of whistling gasp and a sharp "God give me strength!" the Hon. Galahad Threepwood displayed no emotion at Ronnie's sensational announcement.

He did, however gaze at his nephew as if the latter had been a defaulting bookmaker.

"Are you crazy?" he asked.

It was a question which Ronnie found difficult to answer. Even to himself, as he now told it, the story of that great gesture of his sounded more than a little imbecile. The best, indeed, that you could really say of the great gesture, he could not help feeling, was that, like so many rash acts, it had seemed a good idea at the time. He was bright scarlet and had had occasion to straighten his tie not once but many times before he reached the end of the tale. And not even the fact that Sue, with womanly sympathy, put her arm through his and kissed him was able to bring real consolation. To his inflamed senses, that kiss seemed so exactly the sort of kiss a mother might have given her idiot child.

"You see what I mean, I mean to say," he concluded lamely. "I thought Sue had finished with me, so there didn't seem any point in holding on to the thing any longer, and Monty said he wanted it, and so— Well, there you are."

"You can't blame the poor angel," said Sue.

"I can," said the Hon. Galahad. He moved to the fireplace and pressed the bell. "It would surprise you how easily I could blame the poor angel. And if there was time, I would. But we haven't a moment to waste. We must get hold of Monty without a second's delay and choke the thing out of him. We'll have no nonsense. I am an elderly man, past my prime, but I am willing and ready to sit on his head while you, Ronald, kick him in the ribs. We'll soon make him— Ah, Beach."

The door had opened.

"You rang, Mr. Galahad?"

"I want to see Mr. Bodkin, Beach. At once."

"Left!" squeaked Sue.

"It is possible that he may still be in his bedchamber, packing the last of his effects," said the butler, "but I was instructed some little while ago that he was leaving the castle immediately. There has been trouble, sir, between Mr. Bodkin and His Lordship. I am unable to inform you as to what precisely eventuated, but—"

A cry like that of a tiger leaping on its prey interrupted him. Through the open door, the Hon. Galahad had espied a lissom form crossing the hall. He was outside in a flash, confronting it.

"You, there! You bloodstained Bodkin!"

"Oh, hullo."

The Hon. Galahad, as his opening words had perhaps sufficiently indicated, had not come for any mere exchange of courtesies.

"Never mind the 'Oh, hullo.' I want that manuscript of mine, young Bodkin, and I want it at once so make it slippy, you sheep-faced young exile from hell. If it's on your person, disgorge it. If it's in your suitcase, unpack it. And Ronnie here and I will be standing over you while you do it."

There was an infinite sadness in Monty Bodkin's gaze. He looked like a male Mona Lisa.

"I haven't got your bally manuscript."

"Don't lie to me, young Bodkin."

"I'm not lying. Pilbeam's got it."

"Pilbeam!"

Monty's voice trembled with intense feeling:

"I told the foul, double-crossing little blister where it was, like a silly chump, and he went off and squealed to Lord Emsworth about my letting old Tilbury out of the potting shed, and Lord Emsworth sent for me and fired me, and while I was out of the way, being fired, he nipped up to my room and sneaked the thing."

"Where is he? Where is this Pilbeam?"

"Ah," said Monty, "I'd like to know that myself . . . Well, good-bye all. I'm off to the Emsworth Arms."

He strode somberly out of the front door and down the steps. A cough sounded behind the Hon. Galahad.

"Would there be anything further, sir?"

The Hon. Galahad drew a deep breath.

"No, thank you, Beach," he said. "I think that perhaps this will be enough to be getting on with."

AFFECTED BY NEW MOON

Solicitor's Statement Regarding Prisoner.

A statement that a woman prisoner was said by her husband to act very strangely whenever there was a new moon, was made by a solicitor at Stratford on Saturday.

The accused was May Eliza Stahl, a married woman, aged 39, of 117, Heath-road, Chadwell Heath, who was charged on a warrant with assaulting Olive Constance Brooker, of 122, Kenneth-road, Chadwell Heath.

Mr. W. Daybell, for the complainant, told the Bench that the gardens of the two women's houses backed on to each other. The complainant had never spoken to the prisoner in her life, but the accused often put her fist up to her.

"According to the prisoner's husband," he went on, "she acts very strangely when there is a new moon, and accuses——"

The prisoner (interrupting): You are a very insulting gentleman!

On the day in question, Mr. Daybell continued, when there was a new moon, both parties were out in the street with their perambulators, and the accused pushed hers deliberately into the other. She then went up to the complainant, knocking her little boy down as she did so, and struck her several blows.

"BOMBS OR BALLS?"

A summons was granted, but the prisoner did not appear, and a warrant was issued.

"I am told," Mr. Daybell added, "that the prisoner has seven young children; otherwise, I would ask that she be remanded so that the state of her mind might be investigated."

The accused, who pleaded guilty, said she could not come to the court when summoned, owing to an injury to her leg. She also "claimed damages" for broken china that she declared had been thrown into her garden by the complainant's children, together with things about which she remarked: "I don't know whether they are bombs or balls."

She was bound over, in the sum of £10, to be of good behaviour for 12 months, and was ordered to pay 4s. costs.

"LORD LEONARD" IN THE DOCK

—But He is Not a Member of the Aristocracy.

A man who was charged at Stratford on Saturday with the theft of a bicycle, was asked by the chairman of the Bench (Alderman H. Heather) what his Christian names were.

"Lord Leonard," replied the accused.

The Chairman: You are not a member of the aristocracy, or the House of Lords?

The Prisoner: Not at all.

The prisoner was Lord Leonard Andrade, a crane driver, aged 25, of 31, Bush Grove-road, Dagenham, who was charged with stealing a bicycle, value £4, the property of Arthur Godridge, an electrician, of 68, Edison-avenue, Romford, and further, with receiving it well knowing it to have been stolen.

He pleaded not guilty.

Godridge said he left his machine in the rack at Ford's works, Dagenham where he was employed, in August last. It disappeared, and on Friday he saw it in the kerb beside the rack. On keeping observation with other employees, he saw the accused go to it, unlock it, and attach a lamp and a pump to the machine. He was accosted, and he said he bought it at Romford Market.

WORTHLESS RECEIPT.

The bicycle had been altered in several respects, but the prosecutor was able to identify it by the number on the frame.

When charged the prisoner said "How was I to know it was stolen?"

Andrade produced a receipt which he said he received when he purchased the bicycle, but the chairman, declaring, "This paper is not worth anything," remanded him on bail for a fortnight to enable him to find the man from whom he bought the machine, and bring him to court to give evidence.

A WOMAN AND HER DOG

Amusing Dialogue in Police Court.

A woman summoned for keeping a dog without taking out a licence was the central figure in an amusing dialogue at Stratford Police Court, on Friday.

The woman was told that as she had been fined before for a similar offence she would have to pay 25s.

The Woman: I cannot pay.

The Assistant Clerk (Mr. W. Doody): You have heard what the chairman has said, you are to pay 25s.

The Woman: I have enough to do without paying fines. I had taken out a licence which I thought was all right.

The chairman (Mr. T. Philpot): You know or should know, that dog licences expire at the end of the year. Whether that is right or wrong does not enter into the matter. Personally, I think that they should go for the 12 months from the time they are taken out. That is not the law, however, you have been fined before; this is your second offence, and you must pay 25s.

The Woman: I cannot afford it.

The Assistant Clerk: Do you know where you are?

The Woman: Yes, I am in the County Court. (Laughter).

The Assistant Clerk: You are not. You are in a police court, and these gentlemen sit here in the King's name. They have power to send you to prison in default of payment of the fine.

The Woman: Then the dog will die and I will die with it.

The Chairman (smiling): You pay the fine and the dog won't die.

The Woman: How much is it?

The Assistant Clerk: Twenty-five shillings.

The Woman: Will you give me time?

The Chairman: Yes.

The Woman: I will pay.

QUITE SO!

In another case a woman defendant said she had the licence the day the inspector called.

Mr. Philpot: Quite so! Did you have it the first or the second time he called?

Defendant: The second.

Mr. Philpot: Then I am afraid you will have to pay 10s.

ILFORD DOCTOR FINED.

An Ilford doctor who was similarly summoned wrote to the Court "craving" the indulgence of the Bench as it was an oversight on his part that the licence was not obtained. The dog was his children's pet.

Mr. Philpot: Is the dog that big Dane seen at the top of the Cranbrook?

The Inspector: Yes.

Mr. Philpot: He will have to pay ten shillings.

TO CALL FOR BALANCE.

A "first offender" enclosed a £1 note in a letter he sent to the Court apologising for his inability to attend. "If there is any balance I will call for it," he said.

Mr. Philpot: Fined 10s. Do you think we can put the balance in the Poor Box, Mr. Doody?

Mr. Doody: He says that he will call for the balance, but I will gently remind him of the Poor Box.

THE BUSINESS OFFICE IN 1945

On Tuesday Mr. Joseph Smith, of the Roneo Company, delivered at the Forest Gate Branch of Clark's College, a lecture on "Office Practice," specially featuring the latest Roneo duplicator.

As the lecture was given with an eye to the needs of students who, by 1945, will be taking prominent parts in commerce, special attention was devoted to modern business methods and to their trend in the immediate future.

The duplicator which illustrated the demonstration proved a veritable "Robot." A stack of 500 blank sheets inserted at one end of the machine was delivered at the other nicely stacked and complete with a printed letter heading, facsimile letter, an illustration and signature in different colours—all by the turning of a handle

Mr. Walter Brown, the headmaster of the branch, presided, and in thanking the lecturer, stated that it was good to learn that the machine was the product of British brains and was manufactured at Romford.

ILFORD DENTIST DEFRAUDED.

Gardening Work That Was Never Done.

BOGUS TELEPHONE CALLS ALLEGED.

How a Chigwell man, representing himself to be an employee of a man who it was said did not exist, contracted with an Ilford dentist to carry out gardening work for him, and obtained money from him (it is alleged) by false pretences, was told at Stratford Police Court on Monday

The prisoner was Albert Charles Bevis, described as a traveller, aged 29, whose address was given as 2, Gravel-lane, Chigwell Row. He appeared on two charges of obtaining sums of £1 and £2, by false pretences and with intent to defraud, from James Thomas Brown, of 371, Henley-road, Ilford.

He pleaded guilty to both charges.

It was stated that the prosecutor (who did not appear) was a dentist, and that the prisoner introduced himself to him, early in the year, in the name of Rickard, and offered to sell him a number of plants.

The prosecutor agreed to buy them, and paid the prisoner 17s. 3d., for which Bevis gave him a receipt on behalf of a Mr. Harrison, of Holly House, Chigwell

WORK POSTPONED.

The prisoner also suggested that Mr Brown should have his garden seen to, and the following day the prosecutor received a telephone call from a man who gave his name as Harrison, and said his employee (the prisoner) had told him that Mr. Brown wished to have his garden put right.

The man told Mr. Brown what it would cost; the prosecutor agreed to have it done, and "Harrison" said he would send his man along.

A few days later, the prisoner called at the prosecutor's house and said the deposit was ten per cent on £3 10s., which was what it would cost to attend to the garden. The dentist gave him £1, and Bevis gave him a receipt. He was asked for his address and he gave the particulars, "F. Harrison, Holly House, Abridge-road, Chigwell."

Bevis said he would commence the work the following Thursday, but the prosecutor heard nothing from him until ten days had elapsed, when the prisoner called at Mr. Brown's house again and said the weather was against the work, and that he would do it as soon as possible.

He also suggested that the prosecutor would want a garden roller and a grass-cutter, which he said he could obtain for him cheaply, together with some rustic arches. The prosecutor gave Bevis £2 with which to buy the articles for him, and the accused again wrote out a receipt for the money.

VOICE RECOGNISED.

The following Wednesday a man telephoned Mr. Brown saying he was sorry that the goods had not been delivered, but that they would be sent soon. He also said he could not start work on the garden yet awhile owing to the weather The prosecutor recognised the voice as that of the prisoner, known to him as Rickard, and went to Chigwell in an attempt to find Harrison, his employer.

He could not, however, find the address, nor anyone of that name, and he wrote to Rickard asking him for his correct address, and for definite information as to when the goods would be delivered. He received a reply in the name of F. Harrison Bevis, and after several promises from the prisoner that were not fulfilled, he put the matter in the hands of the police and applied for a warrant for his arrest on April 10th.

Detective Edmunds said the accused was served with a summons and failed to appear. He disappeared, and was subsequently seen by witness at Norwich, where he had been detained on the warrant. He was brought to Ilford and charged, but made no reply.

The officer applied to the magistrates for a remand on the ground that there were a number of other cases to be investigated. He believed that the prisoner had committed similar offences at Romford and wanted to make enquiries regarding these.

Bevis was remanded in custody for a week.

STOLE A CYCLE TO LOOK FOR WORK

Because His Motor-Bike Was Out of Order.

A man who stole a bicycle in order to look for work, because, he said, his motor-cycle was out of commission, was before the Stratford magistrates on Thursday.

The owner of the machine was an employee of Ford's, where the accused eventually obtained a job.

He was John Robert English, fitter, aged 34, of 5, Davington-road, Dagenham, who pleaded guilty to stealing a bicycle valued at £2, belonging to Walter Cooper, labourer, of 80, Fanshawe-crescent, Dagenham.

English was further charged with receiving the property well knowing it to have been stolen.

The prosecutor said he left his machine outside the "Robin Hood," Chadwell Heath, and when he came out, it was gone. Later, however, he saw it in the cycle rack at Ford's (where both he and the prisoner were employed), from where the accused afterwards took it. He was detained.

Nothing was known against the prisoner, and Detective Blacktop told the magistrates that he had recently come from Gateshead, and just found work at Ford's factory. He had three young children, and also a motor cycle of his own

FIVE WEEKS OUT OF WORK.

Questioned by the Chairman (Ald. F. H. Dane), English said his motor cycle had broken down, and he had no licence for it. He had been unemployed for five weeks, and took the prosecutor's bicycle in order to go and look for work.

The detective added that owing to the large number of similar cases at Ford's, he was afraid English would lose his job, which he had only started the previous day.

Ald. Dane (to the prisoner): We ought to send you to prison, but we look upon you more as a fool than anything else. You will be bound over for twelve months, in the sum of £5, and you will have to pay the costs.

MAN'S DEPLETED LEGACY

Once of Independent Means —Now Without Any.

Basil Zicaliotti, of 34, Clements-road, Ilford, was summoned at Stratford on Thursday, by Muriel Irene Stanning, of 33, Cecil-road, Chadwell Heath, who applied for an affiliation order to be made against him.

The applicant had been made certain payments since the birth of the child in April, 1932, but as these became irregular, she issued the summons.

She described the defendant as of independent means.

The defendant, however, stated that, at the moment, he had no means. He had been of independent means previously, when his mother died and left him some money. But he was led to believe that it was more than it actually was, and eventually he found it difficult to carry on with the payments, which he desired to continue.

The Bench made an order for him to pay 7s. 6d. a week through the court, until the child is 16.

LOCAL WILLS.

Mr. Stirling Gilchrist of 53, Kingswood-road, Ilford, who died on August 16th, left £4,970.

Mr. D. Steedman, of 50, Ashgrove-road, Goodmayes, who died at Romford on July 17th, left £2,079.

CHARITY FRAUD CHARGE.

Two Youths in the Dock at Stratford.

Two youths, aged 18 and 19, were in the dock at Stratford on Thursday, on a charge of conspiring together, in Ilford and Dagenham, to obtain charitable contributions by fraud.

They were: Peter McLeod, a salesman, aged 19, of 2, West View, Grove-road, Chadwell Heath, and Roland Buck, window cleaner, aged 18, of 19, Mawneys-road, Romford.

P.C. Bashton told the Court that he was on duty at Ilford Police Station the previous evening, when he received information from Mr. Wallis, a representative of Dr. Barnardo's Homes, which caused him to go with him to Seven Kings Railway Station.

He saw two young women standing outside the station, who were approached by the prisoner Buck. They handed him two packets containing collecting envelopes, some with money inside, and some without.

Witness approached Buck with Mr. Wallis, who asked if he was authorised by Dr. Barnardo's to collect on their behalf. He replied, "No I am working for Mr. McLeod, of Chadwell Heath. I am employed by him as a supervisor."

NAME MIS-SPELT.

Buck was then approached by McLeod himself, who was asked by Mr. Wallis if he was authorised to collect for Dr. Barnardo's. He replied, "I am not authorised. We have authorised these persons (meaning the young ladies) to collect for Dr. Barnardo's Homes."

He produced a collecting card signed by him as district organiser. Witness then saw one of the small envelopes that were being used, and noticed that the name, "Dr. Barnardo's" was spelt wrongly.

He told the prisoners he was not satisfied with their explanation, and asked them to accompany him to the police station, where they were charged.

When searched, McLeod had a £1 note and seven 10s. notes upon him, with sixpence in coppers. Buck had 14s. 8d., and there was 1s. 9½d. in the collecting envelopes, besides 100 empty envelopes.

On the application of Detective Noble, the accused were remanded for a fortnight to enable extensive enquiries to be made. They were allowed bail.

ILFORD WITNESS IN DIVORCE CASE.

Husband Granted a Decree Nisi.

Before Mr. Justice Langton in the Divorce Court, on Thursday, Mr. Joshua Charles Carter, now living at Leman-street, London, and formerly of Beehive, Ilford, petitioned for the dissolution of his marriage on the ground of the adultery of his wife, Mrs. Ethel Mary Carter, with a man named Caldwell. The suit was undefended.

The parties, it was stated, were married at the Stepney Register Office in 1929, and there was one child.

According to the petitioner's case, Mrs. Carter who was a demonstrator of adding machines, remained in that employment after her marriage, and it was alleged that whilst she was in the North, at an exhibition, she committed adultery with Caldwell, a salesman employed by her firm.

Subsequently, Caldwell visited the house, and after a scene, the petitioner alleged, Mrs. Carter and he went to Willesley-avenue, Sidcup, Kent, where Caldwell had taken a house.

Evidence in support of the petition was given by Mr. Carter and by Mr. Leonard Frederick Cole, of Redbridge-lane, Beehive, Ilford, and a decree nisi, with custody, and costs against the co-respondent, was granted.

WOMAN DEFRAUDS RAILWAY.

Evasion Leads to the Police Court.

"This is one of those cases in which a woman who is a bit short of money, goes to extremes in order to save a few coppers, and as the railway now comes under the Transport Board, it is at the expense of the public."

Mr. F. T. Barrington-Ward, K.C., the Thames magistrate, made this observation on Friday, when imposing a fine of 10s. with one guinea costs, or seven days, upon Elizabeth Lane, a young married woman, of 22, Mortlake-road, Ilford, who was summoned for travelling on the District Railway with intent to avoid payment of her proper fare.

At first defendant pleaded guilty, but the magistrate said to Mr. Pierron, who appeared for the L.P.T.B. "Before I take a plea of guilty do you mind looking at that," and handed down a letter sent by defendant to the Court.

Mr. Pierron (after reading): Apparently she desires to plead "not guilty."

Mr. Barrington-Ward (to defendant): Look here! You are not legally represented, and, if what you say in your letter is true, I advise you to plead "not guilty."

Defendant: It is true.

A plea of "not guilty" was then entered.

Mr. Pierron explained that, in August, defendant was employed temporarily by the railway authorities at their offices at Baker-street station, five or six people having been sent to help the clerks there. On the morning of the 19th, defendant entered Barking station and instead of booking to Baker-street, purchased a return to West Ham. Unfortunately she was caught near Farringdon-street by inspectors, and found to have a ticket to West Ham only she said she had intended getting out at West Ham in order to meet a friend, but had not done so. Consequently she was assessed 9½d. excess fare.

The Magistrate: That put matters legally right?—Yes, sir.

Continuing, Mr. Pierron said that on the return journey that evening, defendant booked from Baker-street to Mansion House, where she got out. She then re-entered the station and, instead of booking to West Ham, took a 1½d. ticket to Aldgate, travelled through to Barking and passed out, giving up the return half of the ticket from West Ham, which she had purchased in the morning. When stopped she said she had come from Plaistow and that she had run into the station, which accounted for her ticket not being cancelled. It was then pointed out to her that her movements had been watched, and she said she was very sorry, but the fares were high. She admitted having committed the fraud on three previous occasions. At the time she was earning £2 10s. a week and her husband was in work.

Mr. Barrington-Ward (to defendant): Unless the excuse in your letter is reasonably true, you had far better plead guilty. It is cheaper in the end. The only reason I advised you to plead not guilty was in view of what you say in your letter. I will read it.—"I would just like to say that it was not a wilful fraud. I fully expected the Metropolitan Railway to give me a free pass or at any rate a cheap ticket."—What has that got to do with you travelling from Aldgate to West Ham without a ticket?

Defendant: I will plead guilty. I did so at first.

Mr. Pierron stated that in a letter to the company, defendant said that she was working at Baker-street at a reduction of 10s. a week in her usual salary, the fare was considerable, and on the three occasions she committed the fraud she was particularly short of money. She admitted the fraud and expressed her regret.

Mr. Barrington Ward: Well that is a far more sensible attitude.

Imposing the fine stated, the magistrate warned defendant that next time she would be liable to a fine of £20.

A stained-glass window, presented to the Waltham Abbey Parish Church by Brig.-General R. B. Colvin, C.B., Lord-Lieutenant of Essex, in memory of his sister, will be dedicated on October 22nd.

EASTERN AVENUE CRASH SEQUEL.

Woman Dies in Hospital

HURT IN OVERTURNED CAR.

The death of a woman after the overturning of a motor car in which she was a passenger was the subject of an inquest held at Ilford Town Hall on Monday by the Coroner (Dr. P. B. Skeels).

The woman was Mrs. Florence Mary Whiteman (53), of 68, Huddlestone-road, Leyton.

Ernest Whiteman, the husband, said his wife had been in poor health for six or seven years owing to various operations.

WENT FOR A RIDE.

On September 26th he took his wife for a ride in their car. He was returning towards Wanstead along Eastern-avenue. The road was wet and greasy and the night was dark. He had been following another car for some time. Suddenly it pulled up and witness applied his brakes.

The car skidded towards the offside of the road and mounted the pavement and turned on to its side.

"Everything went black," said witness, "and I found myself wedged under the steering column."

PUSHED WIFE THROUGH WINDSCREEN.

He must have fallen on to his wife who was on his left side He pushed his wife out through the windscreen and then scrambled out himself.

He did not think his wife was injured at that time because she stood up. She was, however, suffering from shock.

Another motorist took both of them to the King George Hospital.

There were no witnesses of the accident.

P.C. Norman Smith, 482K, produced a plan of the scene of the accident, which was near the West Ham Mental Hospital.

Dr. B. W. Smith, house surgeon at the King George Hospital, said that during transit to the hospital Mrs. Whiteman suffered from paralysis. She died on October 5th.

A post mortem examination disclosed that the heart was in a poor condition. There was a fracture of the neck but the spinal column was not damaged and this had nothing to do with the cause of death.

Death was due to coronary thrombosis (a condition affecting the arteries near the heart) set up by the enforced rest she took after the accident, which was therefore a contributory cause of death.

A verdict of "Accidental death" was returned by the jury.

EMBEZZLING SALESMAN SENT TO PRISON.

Second Lapse Seven Months After Binding Over.

Henry Charles Nathan, a salesman, aged 36, of 68, Ingleby-road, Ilford, was sentenced to two months hard labour at Stratford Police Court on Thursday, when he appeared on remand on charges of fraudulently embezzling sums of £10, £3, and £20, received by him on behalf of his employers, Messrs. Goodways, the furnishing company, of 150, High-road, Ilford

Evidence had previously been given of admissions made by the accused, following complaints from customers.

Detective Harold Evans now stated that the accused had been bound over last February, and placed on probation, at Greenwich, for embezzling £20 from his former employers.

He was receiving a pension of 12s. a week from the army, and had been in fairly regular employment. All his employers, with the exception of those from whom he had embezzled the £20, had given him a good character.

PAID BACK £21.

He was told, the officer added, that dog racing was the cause of the trouble he had previously been in. The total amount he had embezzled from his present employers was £40; he had, however, paid back £21 11s. 6d., so that he had profited to the extent of £19 8s. 6d.

His wages were £3 a week, and commission which invariably amounted to 30s. a week.

In sentencing him, the chairman (Alderman F. H. Dane) said the Bench must protect the public, and that the prisoner had had a chance before, but had thrown it away.

"BREAKING WINDOWS IS SO UTTERLY IDIOTIC!"

Tramp Causes Disturbance at Chadwell Heath Public House.

"Breaking glass windows is such a ridiculous thing to do!" said Mr. W. P. Forbes, chairman of the Stratford Bench, on Monday, to an unemployed seaman who had broken the window of a public house at Chadwell Heath, after being ejected by a barman, and who was said to have done the same thing in other parts of the country.

"It's so utterly idiotic!" Mr. Forbes added. "I can't understand why people do it"

The prisoner, Joseph Hayden, aged 44, of 43, Toronto-road, Portsmouth, pleaded guilty to disorderly behaviour while drunk at High-road, Chadwell Heath, but denied the charge of deliberately breaking a window of the "Cooper's Arms," and causing damage to the value of £1.

P.C. Rupert Smith said he saw the prisoner struggling with a potman outside the public house, and went to the employee's assistance. The potman complained that the man had thrown a sack (containing cooking utensils) through the window, after he had ejected him from the premises. The prisoner, the officer added, was under the influence of drink.

PLAYED A MOUTH ORGAN.

The barman said the accused, who was drunk, came in the public house and started to play a mouth organ. When asked to go outside, he did so, but continued playing, and then came in to make a collection. He insulted several of the customers, asked for beer, and refused to leave the premises, so witness put him outside by force.

Afterwards, the prisoner hit the door with the sack he was carrying, and then hit the window, which broke.

The accused, who was said to be "on the tramp," said he had not had much food for weeks, and the drink overcame him. He denied that he broke the window intentionally.

He was stated to have a long list of convictions for various offences, including wilful damage.

He was fined 10s., ordered to pay for the damage he had done, and given the alternative of 14 days in prison.

THROUGH PURGATORY WITH STOMACH PAINS

Really Miraculous Benefit

Here is a remarkable case from Lancashire. Mr. E. B. M., of Ramsbottom, has been a stomach sufferer ever since the war, having been, in his own words, "through purgatory with pains for months at a stretch."

In 1927 an operation for duodenal ulcer gave him some relief, but the pains came again and on May 20th of this year he had a stomach haemorrhage and was rushed to the infirmary, where his wife was told to expect the end within 24 hours.

However, he rallied and was given Macleans. This is what he says:—

"I was kept on Macleans in the Infirmary and am still taking it. To-day I am walking about making every progress towards perfect health and am eating articles I have not dared to eat for the past ten years. My weight has gradually climbed from eight stone to 10 st. 5. My appetite is good and all trace of pain or discomfort in my stomach is gone.

"I am sure that Macleans have saved my life."

If you, too, suffer from any stomach trouble, Macleans will do the same for you, but be sure to ask for Maclean Brand Stomach Powder under that exact name, and see the signature "ALEX. C. MACLEAN" before you buy. It is never sold loose, but only in 1/3, 2/- and 5/- bottles in cartons, of Powder or Tablets.

Council Candidate for Two Hours!

UNIQUE ACTION OF MR. H. WOOD.

Stands, Speaks—and Then Withdraws.

SEVEN KINGS R.A. VOTE

Decision to Support Rev. Alex Mead.

RESIGNATION OF SECRETARY

Probably for the first time in the history of the town, a section of Ilford ratepayers had the opportunity of seeing a candidate for the Council submit himself for election and withdraw in the space of two hours. This occurred at the meeting of the Seven Kings Ratepayers' Association at St. John's Hall on Monday.

The "candidate" was Mr. H. Wood, the famous opponent of the Dust Destructor, and his action caused such hilarity as even the Seven Kings Association has hardly ever equalled.

The evening was devoted to the hearing of Council election candidates for Seven Kings Ward — Councillor O. Waters, the Rev. Alex Mead, Mr. H. E. B. Meech, Mr. E. J. Smith, and the candidate of a passing moment—Mr. Wood.

On a ballot, the Rev. A. Mead was adopted as the Association's candidate.

At the end of the meeting the resignation of Mr. G. T. Stoodley, hon. secretary, was accepted with regret, and Mr. John Barker was elected in his place.

Mr. G. Tyler presided, and was supported by Mr. G. T. Stoodley, hon. secretary, and Mr. John Barker, vice-chairman.

Among others present were Ald. A. Young, Councillors O. Waters, H. Billington and H. Smith.

ELECTION CANDIDATES.

Mr. E. J. SMITH, Labour candidate for Seven Kings Ward, was the first speaker. He said he had had considerable experience of local government work in the North of England. For four years he had served on a local government body, and was responsible for improvements effected in a workhouse hospital. He dealt with his work in this respect in some detail, explaining that the body he served upon legislated with economy and yet spent money well in social service.

Mr. Smith then referred to the Isolation Hospital, and said it was one of the finest he had seen, but it was necessary for every effort to be used to bring the accommodation up to present requirements.

Speaking of the Maternity Home he declared himself in favour of extension. All ratepayers were entitled to their share of the accommodation they paid for.

That was what the Labour Party stood for.

Mr. Stoodley asked what Mr. Smith knew of London and Ilford.

Mr. Smith said he had been in Ilford for 14 months, "My experience is," he added, "that local government is the same in Ilford as it is in Newcastle-on-Tyne."

Mr. Field asked Mr. Smith if he would suffer the dictates of the Co-operative Society.

NO DICTATION.

Mr. Smith said he knew something of the Co-operative Society, as he was for 17 years on the Board of Management. So far as he was concerned the Co-operative movement would not dictate any policy to him.

"If I go to swell the Labour Group on your Borough Council," added Mr. Smith, "what we shall do is to confer together and do what we think is the best thing in the interests of the community without acting on the dictates of anyone."

REV. A. MEAD.

The Rev. ALEX MEAD, the next candidate to address the meeting, said he had lived in Ilford about eight years, and ever since he had been at Meads-lane Congregational Church he had always taken up the position that the work of the town concerned him as a minister and a citizen. It was because of that that he offered himself as a candidate.

He was not the man who made a big noise, but he tried to get on with his work quietly.

He referred to his effort locally to assist miners some years ago, and said he and the Rev. C. Reed were able to do a great deal of good for the miners, although the Mayor of that time said nothing could be done in Ilford for them.

Mr. Mead claimed that he was primarily responsible for the establishment of the Social Service Council in Ilford.

"I represent no party whatever," said Mr. Mead. "My own opinion is that local government should not be dominated by parties." (Hear, hear.)

Dealing with what he described as the general outline of the policy he might adopt, he said he felt that perhaps they could do with better travelling facilities.

On the subject of the Isolation Hospital, he said: "Supposing we spent the money on the Hospital, and there was a bad epidemic, could we cope with it? I don't think we could. We are keeping down the number of people who are sent to the hospital because we have our other public health services at work."

He expressed similar views regarding the Maternity Home. On education, he declared himself strongly in favour of equality of opportunity.

"I wish that had operated when I was a boy in England," he said, "I had to emigrate to one of our Dominions and fight my way through to get my education."

MR. MEECH.

Mr. H. E. B. MEECH, the next speaker, was greeted with enthusiasm and cries of "Name."

He made reference to the closing of Happy Valley footpath, and related how the L.C.C. closed some footpaths on the Becontree Estate years ago, and how he "opened" them again by cutting four feet out of the fences! The result was that orders were given for all the paths to be freed from obstruction.

The reminiscence was well received by the audience.

STANDING FOR A PRINCIPLE.

Mr. Meech mentioned his many attempts to get on to the Council, the Board of Guardians and the County Council.

"Why not try the House of Lords?" inquired Mr. Field.

Mr. Meech said he had been standing for a principle. "I believe," he said, "there is a little clique that rules Ilford affairs and decides who shall be the candidate. That has made me a rebel."

He said he was standing for the principle of Ilford people being given the opportunity of saying whether they wanted Sunday cinemas and Sunday games.

He mentioned, amid laughter, how he once played bowls on a Sunday in Goodmayes Park and wrote to the Council telling them he had done it.

He declared that the Council could not stop them playing in the parks on Sundays, and he appealed to the young people not to allow themselves to be dictated to by anyone.

It was, he said, principally on the question of Sunday recreation that he was standing.

J.P. SYSTEM SLATED.

Mr. Meech made reference to the system of appointing Justices of the Peace. "It is a puzzle to me how some of our J.P.'s are ever appointed. The whole system should be done away with and the police courts should have stipendiaries." (Hear, hear.)

COUNCILLOR WATERS.

Councillor WATERS was the next speaker. He explained that he and Mr. Mead were in entire agreement on the subjects of the Isolation Hospital and the Maternity Home, and that he went a long way with Mr. Meech on the subject of Sunday recreation.

Councillor Waters asserted that he had lived in Ilford for over 50 years, and had spent 21 years in its government, either on the County Council or the local Council.

He had never shirked an issue or refused to come to their meetings and tell them what his views were.

He defended the attitude he had adopted in the Council Chamber on the question of the Isolation Hospital and Maternity Home extensions.

CAUSTIC REFERENCE TO COLLEAGUES.

In this connection he referred caustically to the Public Health Committee. "Their record of management has not shown either too much courage or too much ability in the handling of public health matters in this town."

On the subject of education Councillor Waters said that when he first stood for the Council the children of parents of £500 or £600 a year were getting the plums. He told them it had to end. It had been a long drawn-out fight, but now there was absolute equality of opportunity in Ilford.

Cries of "No, no" and "disagree."

Councillor Waters stated that nearly all the places in the Wanstead High School had been captured by Ilford children, and then explained how fees were regulated by the incomes of the parents.

"That is not equality," said a ratepayer.

"If that is not equality I don't know what is," said Councillor Waters, who went on to show how he had helped to get the secondary schools in Ilford.

Referring again to public health, Councillor Waters made mention of dust collection, and disposal, and declared that the cost was to-day down to 13 shillings "and something." Shortly he hoped it would be down by another 1s. 8d.

SUNDAY GAMES.

He dealt with the parks, and said the money spent on them was well spent, but the ratepayers were entitled to use those parks on Sundays. "You are not going to tell me it is a crime against God to have one of the best bands in the park on Sunday or for a poor woman living in one room to get out in the fresh air and have a cup of tea in the park on Sunday."

"I cannot see it is such a crime to have tennis in the parks when all round the park railings the well-to-do enjoy it. I have never heard from any source that point taken up."

Remarking on Sunday Cinemas he pointed out that the Council could do nothing in the matter except decide whether the ratepayers should be allowed to say what they wanted.

"It is not fair to the ratepayers of this town unless you give the ratepayers a chance to say what they want."

Even Mr. Hutchison, he said, declared last week that he would have to abide by the decision of the people, but he took "damned good care" not to have the decision of the people!

THE STAR TURN.

Mr. Wood was the hit of the evening. He declared that the position at the dust destructor was worse now than it ever was and appealed to the meeting to "take no notice" of Councillor Waters.

"It was mentioned to me that there was a suggestion to play tennis in the dust destructor grounds. Councillor Waters suggested it. He is the man who asks you to put him on the Council.

"The councillors do not want him!" (Loud laughter.)

Mr. Field: That's why we want him.

Mr Wood: He is going to do all sorts of things but never is it done. It is always going to be done—sometime after you have voted for him. (Laughter.)

"I even went and canvassed for him," went on Mr. Wood plaintively, while the meeting rocked with mirth. "The hardest job I had was to get the people who did know him to vote for him. It was easy enough to get those who did not know him." (Loud laughter.)

"I asked your chairman," added Mr. Wood, "if I could make a speech and he said no. I therefore put myself up as a candidate, but I have no intention to stand as a candidate."

The gale of laughter which followed this naive statement lasted for several minutes.

OTHER QUESTIONS.

In answer to a question, Mr. Mead said that when there was a sufficient public demand for a poll to be taken on the question of Sunday cinemas, he thought the poll should be taken.

Mr. Clothier asked Councillor Waters whether he was standing as an independent candidate or the representative of any political party.

Councillor Waters: It will be the worst day's work for this borough when affairs of the borough are conducted by political organisations and when the only claim a man has for your vote is a political ticket. I have always run as an independent candidate and it was in spite of my political views that I was first selected by this Association.

Continuing, Councillor Waters said it would be the worst thing for the town if the Constitutional Association did the same thing as the Labour Party were doing.

SURPRISE RESULT.

On a ballot being taken, the Association decided to support the candidature of the Rev. A. Mead.

Two ballots were taken. On the first Mr. Mead received 40 votes, Councillor Waters, 36, Mr. Meech six, and Mr. Smith one.

A second ballot was taken on Mr. Mead and Councillor Waters, and the voting was—Rev. A. Mead 44, Councillor Waters 36.

SECRETARY RESIGNS.

The chairman announced that Mr. Stoodley had written resigning from the position of hon. secretary. No persuasion had been able to prevail upon him to continue.

Mr. Tyler bore tribute to the work done by Mr. Stoodley. The work of the secretary was no light task. Tremendous work had to be done and it was all kicks and no ha'pence. Mr. Stoodley had been a wonderful servant to the Association.

Mr. Clothier moved that the resignation be accepted with the deepest possible regret. He also paid tribute to the courtesy, consideration and assistance which Mr. Stoodley had given him at all times without stint.

Mr. Stoodley said there was a ton of hard work to be done by the secretary and the job needed more time than he could devote to it. He recalled that when he took office the split caused by the formation of the Goodmayes Association was in progress, and it was feared then that the membership would drop, but actually it now stood at 900—higher than ever before.

Mr. John Barker was proposed by Mr. Stoodley to succeed him as hon. secretary. Mr. Tyler seconded.

The motion was carried unanimously, and Mr. Barker expressed his thanks and determination to give his best to the task he had undertaken.

ESPERANTO IN ILFORD.

The Eastern Federation of the Esperanto Society held their quarterly meeting at the Richmond Hall, Ilford, on Saturday, when reports were submitted by the various groups throughout Essex.

After tea, the Ilford branch of the Society gave a programme which included solos, community singing, and a sketch.

Two short plays were presented by members of the East Ham group, and reel dancing was performed by some Scottish friends, accompanied by the bag pipes.

The evening concluded with country and modern dancing.

Thirty Years Ago

ILFORD COUNTY COURT STARTED

And the Old School Board Died.

MR. CARNEGIE'S GIFT.

By "Retrospect."

THIS week, thirty years ago, was a notable one for Ilford, according to the "Recorder" file.

"On Monday morning," we read, "the first sitting of the Ilford County Court was held. In the evening of the same day the Ilford School Board held its final meeting; and last night the new Education Committee began to reign in its stead.

"I hope and believe that its career will be marked by fewer personalities than have beset the track of the School Board. The work of education flourishes best in a calm and equable atmosphere.

"The funeral orations over the defunct School Board were duly said, in the presence of a select audience of ratepayers. . . Through ten long years has the Board been in existence, and in spite of its occasional eccentricities, it has deserved well of the town. Its solid and substantial work will endure for generations, and its excellent deeds, which were many, will be remembered long after its faults, which were few, are forgotten."

At the final meeting of the Board the chairman mentioned that, during its decade of existence, they had spent £148,638 13s. 1d. in building nine schools and a domestic economy centre. Three further schools were at that time being built.

In the work of education itself, £91,881 3s. 4d. had been spent. There were then 7,389 scholars on the roll and 210 teachers.

Comparison of these figures with those of to-day would give a good indication of how Ilford had grown. For instance, the total estimated expenditure on elementary education for the present year alone is £128,314!

Actions Against Council.

The County Court, however, seems to have been as busy in the beginning as it is now. In all, there were 386 actions entered for the first two days' sittings. Of these, 262 were down for hearing on Monday, of which 80 undefended actions were heard before the registrar (Mr. W. C. Clifton), and 11 defended actions were settled by the judge, who, in those days, was His Honour Judge Tindal Atkinson.

A total of 124 actions were entered for Tuesday's court, of which eight were heard by the judge and 53 before the registrar.

Two of Monday's actions were against the Ilford Urban District Council, against whom judgments of £7 5s. and £50 were given. In both cases the plaintiff claimed damages for injuries received through the alleged negligence of the Council's tramway servants.

The first case was brought by a girl of 15 who was injured when alighting from a tram in Ilford-lane. In the other case, a hawker's pony and trap had overturned as a result of a wheel getting into a rut next the tram-lines.

The court, of course, was held at the Town Hall, Ilford—as it is still, in spite of moves that have been made in other directions for many years. "Learned counsel," said a gossip writer, "appreciated the fine, breezy court-house provided free of expense by the Ilford Council."

Local cases had previously been heard at Romford, and we also read that "the knowledge that the court would sit at Ilford this time had one remarkable effect upon debtors. It caused many of them to pay up immediately upon getting their summons. They did not mind having their names called out in Romford court-house in the least; but to be shouted from the vestibule of Ilford Town Hall was another thing entirely."

Library Not Wanted.

About this time local residents were agitating for other additions to the amenities of the town, besides a County Court.

In July the Ilford and District Householders' and Ratepayers' Protection Society (who must have had little room to spare on their notepaper!) passed a resolution urging the Council to provide them with a "Free Library and Swimming Baths worthy of the town," which, the proposer considered, "would make more and more popular this enormous and growing Metropolitan suburb."

A month later it was announced in the "Recorder" that "Mr. Andrew Carnegie, the philanthropic millionaire, has offered to present Ilford with the sum of ten thousand pounds (£10,000) for a free public library, subject to certain conditions."

One of these conditions was that the town should raise a penny rate for the maintenance of the library.

But not everybody wanted a library, and so objected to having to pay for its upkeep. Then there was what was referred to in these pages as "The Battle of the Sites"—a vicious controversy that went on over the matter of where the library was to be erected.

In fact, a meeting of the same ratepayers' association referred to above (though consisting of only 60 persons) decided by a majority of four votes that the library should not be built at all. And the vicar of Ilford, the Rev. H. W. Muloney, giving his opinion as to its desirability, wrote: "Let Ilford enjoy the proud distinction of being a town without a public library."

He further declared that people already read too much and thought too little, and that it would be a good thing if they had public bonfires to destroy most of the books that were published, rather than public libraries in which to preserve them.

High Road "Drunks."

But, of course, the Council could not possible turn down Mr. Carnegie's handsome offer, which was accepted with thanks.

The matter of a theatre for Ilford also engaged the attentions of many writers of letters to the editor. Some thought it would be a decided acquisition, while others argued that undesirable plays might be presented, and so help Ilford's youth on the wayward path.

Supporting the proposed theatre, one resident wrote, after referring to Ilford as "Queen of the Eastern Suburbs":

"Having come from a southern suburb, where we had the choice of many forms of amusement, Ilford is deadly dull! . . No wonder our public houses are full. The first Saturday night I was here I saw more drunkenness in the High-road than I saw in Brixton in a twelvemonth."

Making the Parting Easy.

Euthanasia of Dogs.

By "PHILOKUON."

HOWEVER attached we may be to our dogs or other animals, the times comes soon or late, when a parting is inevitable. A severe attack of distemper or some other disease may leave a dog in such a state that it would be a misery for him to live, and the lives of elderly animals are often prolonged from motives of mistaken kindness. Humane people are concerned about the most suitable methods for ensuring a painless end. A little time ago the public mind was much exercised over a case that appeared in the papers in which exhaust fumes from a motor car were used.

Lieut.-Colonel Wakefield Rainey, M.R.C.V.S. discusses the subject fully in a little pamphlet entitled "Euthanasia of the different means usually employed. There is not much doubt that he prefers shooting, which, "when properly carried of Dogs and Cats," in which he writes out is satisfactory, because unconsciousness is produced instantaneously and unexpectedly. The transition from life to death is free from any sort or form of anguish or terror." In towns he suggests that the idea weapon for this purpose is a .22 calibre humane-killer pistol or short rifle fitted with a silencer and operated by a trigger. To remove any fear of returning consciousness he proposes injecting into the thorax immediately afterwards five cubic centimetres of Scheeles' prussic acid.

HUMANE SLAUGHTER.

In a recent issue of the "Veterinary Journal" he laid further emphasis upon this form of destruction, remarking that it was impressed upon him at an early age that an immediate death by shooting was the only proper way of despatching to the happy hunting grounds any horse or dog. His conclusion is that "the practical results of the humane slaughter principles have been magnificent; the practical results of the putting-to-sleep principles have been disastrous."

In these matters sentimentalism frequently outweighs practical considerations. It sounds so much pleasanter to think of our old friends being put to sleep in a lethal chamber rather than undergoing a more violent death. The sense of smell, so acute in dogs, will cause them uneasiness in the lethal chamber, and make them pass through what Colonel Rainey describes as "a mournful and distressing experience."

When such means have to be used he begs that every care should be taken not to arouse the apprehensions of the animal, and he insists that coal gas only should be used. "Animals exposed to coal gas, gradually introduced into lethal chambers, do not show the frenzy observed with certain concentrations of exhaust gas." He would prohibit the use by anyone of chloroform or ether in lethal chambers or boxes, except where mechanical facilities exist for its foolproof use in a highly concentrated form, as at the Battersea Dogs' Home.

Perhaps the commonest agent is prussic acid, and although it does not cause painless death, Colonel Rainey explains that it is extremely rapid, and perhaps the most foolproof and invariable in its action, if fresh Scheeles' prussic acid is employed.

What You Can Do With Apples.

Floating Island.

Required: Six large sound apples, 2 cupfuls water, 2 eggs, 1 cupful milk, ¼ teaspoonful cornflour, a pinch of salt, and the necessary sugar. Boil the water with ½ cupful sugar for ten minutes, and in the meantime wipe, peel, and core the apples. Put them carefully in the syrup, cover closely, and cook till the apples are tender.

Now place them in a shallow baking-dish, and reduce the syrup till thickened, when you pour it over the apples, and let it cool. Make a meringue by beating the egg-whites stiff with 3 tablespoonfuls sugar, pile on the top of the apples, and bake for 15 minutes, or till a delicate brown in colour.

While the apples are baking, prepare a custard with the egg-yolks, milk, cornflour and salt, and sugar to sweeten. Cook well, stirring constantly, then remove, and cool, and serve round the apples in a glass dish.

Apple Croquettes.

Peel, core, and chop finely about 6 apples, put them into a pan with a gill of water, and simmer gently until the apples are soft. Rub them through a sieve and add ¼lb. breadcrumbs, 1 teaspoonful lemon rind, ¼ teaspoonful grated nutmeg, ¼lb. finely chopped and stoned raisins, and 4oz. brown sugar. Mix these ingredients well together, shape them into balls, roll them in flour until coated, then fry in boiling fat until they are well browned.

Apple Charlotte.

Cut some thin slices of bread, dip each into clarified butter, and cover the bottom and sides of a plain round or oblong tin mould, but let each piece just overlap the next. Peel and core and cut up sufficient good cooking apples, according to the size of the mould. Put them in a stew-pan with a little water, butter (about 1oz.), the juice of a lemon, and a pinch of cinnamon. When the apples are quite soft, add sugar to taste, and stir all well until it is a smooth marmalade, but be sure not to let it burn. Fill the tin with this mixture and cover with a round piece of thin bread which has been dipped in butter. Put it in a brisk oven and bake until a light brown. Turn out on to a dish, and serve with a thin, hot apricot-jam sauce poured round.

Baked Apples and Pineapple.

Choose some fine apples. Remove the cores and fill with crushed pineapple, either fresh or tinned, and a little butter and sugar. Bake gently in the oven.

Apple and Apricot Jam.

Soak 2lb. dried apricots in enough water to cover them for 24 hours, then cut them into quarters. Cook 2lb. peeled and sliced apples with a little water until they are pulpy, then add apricots, the water in which they were soaked, 5lb. sugar, and cook until tender, or until it sets when tested in the usual way.

WASH ANGORA JUMPERS.

Angora jumpers should not be pulled out too much when wet, as they are likely to stretch when washed. Wash the jumpers in lukewarm water and soap flakes, squeezing until clean, and rinse by squeezing in more lukewarm water. Fold carefully and put through a wringer until no more moisture is left. Shake gently and spread out flat in a warm place to dry. When dry, brush the fluffy surface with a very soft brush.

GLAZING PASTRY WITHOUT EGGS.

To one tablespoonful of brown sugar add two tablespoonfuls of milk. Boil them together until the sugar is dissolved, and then cool. Brush over the pastry with this before putting it in the oven, and it will produce a beautiful brown crust.

A CLEAR SKIN.

A skin free from spots and blemishes is a great adjunct to beauty. A diet containing plenty of fruit and vegetables and an abundance of water will purify the blood and keep the skin beautifully clear. Another great help towards cleansing the skin from impurities is to take a course of Ostelin tablets, which contain the valuable vitamin D, and are a splendid tonic.

KEEPING ELECTRIC BELLS IN GOOD CONDITION.

Electric bells are often thought to be out of order when all that is really required is a little water in the battery to replace that which has evaporated. If, however, there is sufficient water, and the sound is still weak, sal ammoniac may be required. Empty the jar and refill it with water to which ¼lb. sal ammoniac to the quart is allowed. Use hot water, but do not put in the battery until it is cold.

Weddings of the Week.

Band Corporal R. Wilkes with his bride (Miss Rose Meek, of Oakfield-road, Ilford) after their wedding at St. Clement's on Saturday.

World Tour Precedes Marriage.

MR. H. R. HOLYOME AND MISS L. E. BENN.

A tour of the world preceded the marriage, at St. Peter's, Aldborough Hatch, on Saturday, of Mr. H. R. Holyome, eldest son of Mr. H. Holyome, of 19, Cameron-road, Seven Kings, and Miss Lilian E. Benn, eldest daughter of Mr. Jay Benn, of Washington, U.S.A.

Mr. Holyome, who is a nephew of Miss Marie Kendall, the famous vaudeville artist, met his bride-to-be in Singapore, from whence the tour started.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. P. Byng.

The bride, dressed in grey velvet, carried a bouquet of pink tea roses. She was given away by the bridegroom's father and Mr. R. Kendall Holyome, her uncle, was best man.

The only bridesmaid, Miss Anita Harrison, wore a dress of floral pink organdi and carried a bouquet of violets and roses.

Mrs. Holyome, the bridegroom's mother, was dressed in a gown of navy blue and white.

There were twenty guests—including Miss Marie Kendall—at the reception, given at 19, Cameron-road, after which the happy couple left for a secret destination for their honeymoon.

BAND-CORPL. R. WILKS AND MISS R. E. MEEK.

At St. Clement's Church on Saturday, the wedding took place of Band-Corpl. Richard Wilkes, third son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilkes, of 4, Combass-road, Victoria Park, and Miss Rose Edith Meek, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Meek, of Oakfield-road, Ilford. Canon A. W. Ottaway, M.A., officiated.

The bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in a dress of white satin, and train lined with pink georgette, edged with silver lace. She also wore a white veil and chaplet of orange blossom. Her bouquet was of red roses with green shower.

The bridesmaids were Misses Dorothy and Vera Meek, sisters of the bride, Miss Rose Wilkes, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Gladys Ouston, a friend. A little nephew of the bride acted as page. The bridesmaids wore dresses of floral georgette of autumn shades, with green

Youths Bound Over For Banjo Playing in Street.

Two youths, William Lambert, aged 18, warehouseman, of 23, Keppel-road, Dagenham, and Stanley Lamford Newman, aged 18, lighterman, of 95, St. George's-road, Dagenham, were bound over for twelve months and each ordered to pay 4s. costs, at Stratford, on Friday, for causing a breach of the peace in Wood-lane the previous day.

P.C. J. Hepperson said that at 9.20 p.m. he saw about 20 people gathered round the two prisoners, one of whom was singing and the other playing a banjo. He dispersed the crowd and cautioned the prisoners. The accused than went into a shop doorway and resumed playing and singing, attracting another crowd.

In answer to the chairman (Alderman J. Sanders) Lambert said he was returning from a banjo lesson and was continuing it in the street. He did not think there was anybody living over the shop, and he just continued playing the banjo when he was warned by the constable.

Newman said that Lambert was giving him a lesson on the banjo.

The Chairman: I don't think it is fair you know, to pass on lessons without any charge. The police I know have a lot of trouble at that spot, and we are determined to put this nuisance down.

How thankful I am for the Laundry

No wonder laundry washed clothes look so much better, cleaner, smarter. Laundry washed clothes are passed at least eight times through specially softened water. Laundry soap is specially pure—the purest of its kind obtainable. Rinsing is done at least three times—sometimes four or five—in clean, rain soft water so that every atom of soap is removed. Drying is done without wringing by a current of warm, clean air in special dust free rooms. Can you wash as well as this yourself? That is how the laundry washes.

NEW FIRE ENGINE PASSES TESTS.

SPECIAL DISPLAY.

The amazing efficiency of Ilford's new £3,400 fire-fighting appliance—a combination fire escape and pump—was on Thursday demonstrated before the Mayor (Ald. C. W. Clark), and members of the Ilford Corporation, the chiefs of neighbouring fire brigades and other interested spectators, in the grounds of Beal School.

The machine, a photograph of which was published in the "Recorder" last week, represents the last word in modern fire brigade equipment, and is the first of its kind to be brought into service in this country.

THE DEMONSTRATION.

The demonstration was thrilling. A whistle sounded and the engine throbbed. A second signal, and machinery was set in motion to carry a fireman, standing on the platform of a steel ladder smoothly and swiftly skywards to a height of 85 feet. In 27 seconds the ladder was fully extended, and the man on top was bringing water to bear on an imaginary fire.

Communication between the ladder platform and the ground is established by telephone. Its effectiveness was shown when it was decided to tackle the mythical flames from a new angle. A few words over the telephone wire, the adjustment of a lever and the turntable, on which the ladder is mounted, swung smoothly round. Then the angle of elevation of the ladder still fully extended was gradually changed until it was almost horizontal. The machine, meanwhile, was as steady as a rock.

Another whistle, another lever pulled, and the ladder seemed to fold itself into its normal position.

From normal position the ladder was next extended horizontally, with a man at its extremity. Again there was no indication of the great machine overbalancing.

The ladder was once more extended vertically and a pumping demonstration, with six lines of hose, was given.

No test to which the appliance was submitted seemed too formidable.

MAYOR DECLINES TO ASCEND.

While the demonstration was being given there was an amusing telephonic interlude.

The Mayor asked the man at the top of the ladder if it would be quite safe for Councillor C. B. Blow to ascend. The fireman replied that it would, and the Mayor asked Councillor Blow to go up.

Councillor Blow, showing great deference, suggested that it would be improper for the first citizen of the town not to be the first to ride on the ladder. The Mayor, however, intimated that he would not be offended if Councillor Blow went up first!

Eventually, the Mayor and Councillor Blow agreed that after all, it was a fireman's job to climb fire escapes and not theirs.

TESTS SATISFACTORY.

Chief Officer J. Tweeddale told the "Recorder" that he was very pleased with the results of the tests. "The machine," he said, "did all that I expected. The Council, too, are pleased with the new machine."

SLIGHT COLLISION.

The new engine was involved in a slight collision at the Barkingside tram terminus yesterday (Wednesday).

It was being used for driving practice when it came into collision with a tram car.

The rear right wing of the fire engine was damaged and so was the step of the tram car.

Guild Sunday.

Vine Memorial Young People's Guild Sunday was observed on October 8th, starting at 8 a.m. with a Prayer Meeting and Holy Communion. The Minister, Rev. C. Bernard Cockett, M.A., conducted the morning service, assisted by Messrs. C. Franklin, F. Wallis, A. Welsh and E. W. Gretton, Miss Bowman being the soloist. The evening preacher was the Rev. F. Chalmers Rogers, M.A., of Wandsworth, and the soloist Mr. Reginald Hyde.

DRAGGING PAINS & NERVE WEAKNESS FROM CONSTIPATION

At 66, She Has Only BILE BEANS To Thank For Putting Her All Right.

"To have got back my health at 66 is marvellous after so many years," says Mrs. E. A. Whittingham, of 15, Elton-road, Bishopston, Bristol. "After confinement I suffered so much from constipation and piles that the doctor said operation was my only hope. The constant dragging pains in the lower part of my body made me feel heavy, depressed and weary. It was as if one organ after another was being put out of order. I had bilious attacks, headaches, wind, and felt 'nervy' and irritable.

"My health never really improved until I started with regular nightly doses of Bile Beans. By putting me right inside, these splendid pills soon removed the chronic constipation, the piles and uncomfortable swelling. My digestion has been set right, and I am surprisingly free from the sick headaches and 'nerves.' I used to have twinges of rheumatism from time to time, but these never trouble me now, for Bile Beans have purified my whole system."

The ten vegetable extracts so ingeniously combined in Bile Beans ensure absolutely natural and gentle action on each of the organs as required. Bile Beans are unequalled for constipation, liver troubles, headache, indigestion, anaemia, debility, acid stomach, backache, rheumatism, etc. SOLD EVERYWHERE.

ILFORD'S ZEALOUS PLAYGOERS.

Another Full House for Greater London Players

"THE FIRST MRS. FRASER"

Ilford playgoers are nothing if not enthusiastic, especially about the Greater London Players.

After breaking all their previous records last week, and packing the Town Hall full for the first night of their new season, this talented and enterprising company drew another great crowd on Tuesday evening, when, for the second play in what is almost certain to be their most successful session, they presented "The First Mrs. Fraser."

The zeal with which local lovers of the drama, and of the Players, follow their activities, was apparent more than an hour before the show was due to start, when a queue had already formed at the doors. By eight o'clock, the hall was nearly full, and there was a last-minute rush for seats.

"The First Mrs. Fraser," a three-act comedy by St. John Ervine, is another of those plays about divorce. It tells of the inevitable complications consequent upon the severing of a 20 years love-match in which James Fraser, a rich Scotsman and his wife are (or were) the partners.

For the ageing husband yearning to be young again, has married what would be known in a "talkie" version of the play as a "gold-digger," a selfish, conceited hussy who, while relying on her "sugar daddy," for the wherewithal, seeks to satisfy her craze for social distinction by encouraging a slug-like young heir of the peerage, with a view to marrying him when she thinks it propitious to discard the gold mine.

Or, so the family thinks!

The family consisting of Janet, the good, kind, understanding and faithful first wife who was so ideal that her qualities were not appreciated; Murdo, her eldest and very respectable son who takes after his father somewhat in thinking (very selfishly) that he is the only one who has suffered as a result of the unhappy separation; his wife, Alice, who is more than a problem for him because she is not quite so "respectable" and Ninian the younger son, just down from Oxford, and possessing all the appropriate candour and cattishness.

Then, of course there is Mabel, the maid, who, though not one of the family, regards herself as one sufficiently to disapprove of the whole thing; and Philip, who, at least, is a friend of the family, and a good deal more than a friend to its maternal head.

EROS TRIUMPHS.

Actually, however, as the family afterwards discover, Elsie, the second Mrs. Fraser, is having an affair with a cabaret dancer, with whom (believe it or not!) she is actually so moved as to fall genuinely in love.

Of course, it all comes right in the end, when Eros (as usual) gets his way. There is a second divorce: Philip, whose nasty, fishy habits prevent him from becoming more than a friend to the jilted wife, is discouraged, and the repentant James, looking round for more economical ways of living, and returning instinctively to his "first," is allowed to court his wife all over again.

It was all very amusing, though rather tedious at times, owing to the rather slow unfolding of sequences. It is a play of talk rather than movement, and when, in some cases, the long-winded conversations were rather too one-sided, it was inclined to drag.

Nevertheless, the Greater London Players made the most of it. David Burney, as the youngest son, was a typical undergraduate, and his outspoken comments were made to good effect—particularly when he was telling his erstwhile father just what he thought of him.

Marjorie Dence, as Mabel "fetched" and carried excellently, and politely poked her nose in the family's private business with a sympathetic understanding that was well portrayed.

The selfish respectability of the eldest son, to whom his mother's sufferings were disgrace that had to be lived down was equally well reflected in the acting of R. Eric Lee, while Margaret Tory's naughty wife was just as truly represented.

Leslie Harcourt, as the unsuccessful suitor of the first Mrs. Fraser (though successful enough to be addressed as Uncle Philip by her offspring), left little to be desired. His off-handedness in Mr. Fraser's presence, and his persistence in Mrs. Fraser's, were delightful, and the way in which he refused to accept the erring husband's air of proprietorship in his old home, when they chanced to meet therein, made it one of the most enjoyable scenes in the play.

THE PROMPTER BUSY.

Flora Blennerhassett's performance as the unpopular Elsie, James' "second," was not so satisfactory however. She looked the part, and almost played it, but she was severely handicapped in that she did not know it. Her frequent glances in the direction of the prompter (can there be no other way of attracting her attention?), and her constant faltering over her lines, completely spoiled the effect of one most important scene, and considerably nettled the audience into the bargain. Even when she knew her lines, or seemed to know them, she lowered her voice so often that they could not be heard.

Stringer Davies' interpretation of James Fraser's self-pity, self-confidence, and colossal presumptuousness made him another performer who was roundly applauded at the conclusion. His Scottish accent, though, was a little confusing at first, until one learnt that he was supposed to come from the North. It struck me, too, that his acting was a little too restrained in parts. He was best in the final scene, when he had rid himself of Elsie, and was looking forward, very short-sightedly, to coming into his own again with Janet, his first wife, whom he had treated so shabbily.

As for Janet herself, Olive Walter made her live. The part, indeed, might have been specially made for her. The good-humoured resignation with which she met her fate was a real study in human psychology, and her instinctive loathing of Elsie, not because she had stolen her husband but because she was so horribly unconcerned about the welfare of everybody but herself, was skilfully expressed.

When she openly professed this abhorrence of the self-first second wife of her husband she acted with a sincerity that was particularly impressive. The deafening applause that greeted her when she took her bow showed that the audience were not slow in appreciating her talents. But then, she is well known to the friends of the Players, and can always be relied upon for a good performance.

ILFORD'S "WEST END THEATRE."

The play was produced by Kathleen Wike, who, in giving thanks for the acceptable music supplied during the intervals by the Metropolitan Academy of Music, under the direction of Frank Bonner, A.R.A.M., remarked that the Town Hall was getting more like a West End theatre every week.

She also thanked the audience for helping them to break all their records the previous week, which she declared had encouraged them tremendously.

Next Tuesday, the Players will present the last play Edgar Wallace wrote before he died, "The Green Pack," which Miss Wike described as a thriller with "no bangs, pops or black-outs, and things like that."

W. H. G.

The new parish hall of St. Michael's, Gidea Park, will be dedicated on Saturday; and on October 23rd the Bishop of Chelmsford will license the Rev. E. J. Elvin (formerly of Forest Gate) as incumbent.

Councillor Gay has been appointed by the West Ham Insurance Committee to represent that body on the Town Council's Maternity and Child Welfare Committee.

"WORSHIPPING A PIECE OF BREAD."

Baptist Pastor on Two Supernatural Forces.

CONVENTION APPEAL.

"Mediums Controlled by Wicked Spirits."

A declaration that the Anglo-Catholic Church, by "encouraging the worship of a piece of bread," pointed only to a dead Christ, with an appeal to youth to resist the power of Satan and his kindred spirits, and to embrace a religion of real practical value, were made by the Rev. T. M. Bamber, pastor of the Baptist Church at Rye-lane, Peckham, in addressing a meeting at the Ilford (High-road) Baptist Church on Monday night.

The occasion was the opening of the Youth Convention, consisting of a series of meetings held at the church during this week, and finishing to-night. Further meetings will also be held on Sunday.

The aim of the Convention, which has for its motto, "The Utmost for the Highest," is to provide an answer to the questions of modern youth as to what they are to believe, and what to do with their lives; and to bring young people into closer touch with the spiritual realities which many of them are ardently seeking.

The Convention was arranged on the suggestion of the younger members of the High-road Baptist Church, and is designed to appeal to young people of all denominations. No fewer than 35 Baptist Churches in the Eastern Group are represented at the Convention.

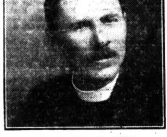
Most of the organising of the event has been in the capable hands of Mr. R. Darling, the convention secretary, and Mr. R. J. Stanger. The pastor of the church, the Rev. Frank H. Smith, presided at the meetings, and Mr. Horace Berry, of North London, was the soloist.

THE ONLY THING THAT MATTERS.

Youth was well represented at the opening meeting on Monday.

Mr. Bamber approached the question of whether they wanted the real thing in religion—the thing of practical value?

"God," he said, "has sent forth His Spirit into all your hearts—and 99 per cent. of Christians do not know it. They are living in spiritual poverty, inertia and feebleness and even when they are told they will not believe it.



REV. FRANK H. SMITH.

"It does not matter what club you belong to—it's all going to end in the grave. You can have a row of medals across your breast and all down your back; it does not matter. You may belong to the Royal Yacht Squadron—it all finishes in dust. The only thing that matters is whether you have received the spirit of Christ or whether you have not."

The men of the world were blind to this fact, he continued. "I should not ask George Bernard Shaw about religion, or any novelist. They are blind! But when you get hold of this fact it will settle for your lifetime what shall be the quality and character of your service. At present, though, men and women, in and out of the churches, are blind to the fact that the only thing that matters is redemption.

"The world is tremendously ignorant. They think that Christ vanished in the past with Plato and all those other people."

Speaking of the sins of the world, the preacher said these were not caused by a man hoeing his turnips on Sundays, or things like that. They should never say to a man, "Come to church," if the Holy Ghost was not there. Sin was caused because they believed not on Him.

SPIRITUALISM "SATANIC."

Therefore, he was asking his hearers: Were they really asking for the Holy Ghost? A lot of people did not believe in Satan but they did not wipe out a fact by saying that he did not exist. They could not understand the issue of to-day unless they could see two supernatural powers in existence—the power of the Holy Ghost and the power of Satan and his kindred spirits.

"So you get Spiritualism," the speaker declared. "A medium going off in a trance, under the control of wicked spirits. It is Satanic; from the pit. It is supernatural, but it's not divine."

Mr. Bamber pronounced quite solemnly that he felt sure that, as he stood there, the power of the Holy Ghost was with him, but that the powers of wickedness were also there, creating irritability and bringing a thousand other subjects into the mind. The work of wicked spirits to-day was to keep people from redemption, and not from religion. They could have as much religion as they liked, but it was not redemption.

"In the Anglican Church you have a tremendous movement, with which the Bishop of London is identified, encouraging the worship of a piece of bread. The Bishop of London says, 'That's Christ.' They are pointing to a dead Christ, while the Holy Ghost points to a living Christ!"

FREE CHURCH "SILENCE."

A friend of the speaker had been converted to Roman Catholicism, and also worshipped a dead Christ out of whom he received no power. In the Nonconformist church, too, Mr. Bamber added, they had almost a dead silence about the Jesus Christ of to-day.

Emphasising the importance of raising the question of sin in human society, he asked: "Do you find politicians raising the question of sin?" Yet if they did not do this, it was like putting a plaster on a man suffering from cancer. "And here's the world, a mass of corruption, because of its ungodliness and sin! God has said there shall be no peace for the wicked. What can we say to the wicked world?"

He thought that, when the world saw that they believed in the realities of their religion, then they would begin to touch the world.

"We are not fighting the publican or the cinema proprietor. They are simply manifestations of Satanic power pressing in upon human society. We are not wrestling against flesh and blood, or against principalities and powers, but against wicked spirits in a diabolical sphere."

Every young person, he concluded, must resolve that the power of Satan should be exorcised from their life.

TUESDAY'S MEETING.

On Tuesday night, Mr Harold E. Heath, of Sidcup, spoke on the subject, "Make melody in your hearts," and Wednesday's speaker, the Rev. Wm. A. Ashby, of Walthamstow, in the course of a striking address, said there was a time and place to be with God, and the place was in church.

The Rev. W. H. Aldis, Home Director of China Inland Mission, will speak to-night.

BEDROOM DAMAGED BY FIRE.

A quantity of bedding, bed linen, blankets and the floor boards of a first floor room at 22, Eynsford-road, Ilford, was damaged by fire which broke out in the room on Friday evening.

The occupier, Mr. Powley, managed to extinguish most of the flames with buckets of water, and the Ilford Fire Brigade finished the job with a first aid jet.

The Romford Council have authorised the chairman and collector to let allotments to the unemployed for the year 1934 upon the same terms as at present.

BISHOP LOOKS 100 YEARS AHEAD.

"SILLY REMARKS" ABOUT ESSEX IMMIGRANTS.

Reference to "silly and childish" remarks made by Essex people who did not hold themselves responsible for providing churches for new immigrants into the county, was made by the Bishop of Chelmsford (Dr. H. A. Wilson), at a mass meeting held at the Conference Hall, Stratford, on Monday, in connection with the Bishop's Appeal for Essex Churches and Schools.

It was reported that of the £175,000 it is hoped to raise as a result of the Appeal, £121,000 has now been contributed.

After referring to the Appeal as the task, calling for tremendous courage and faith, of bringing the knowledge and truth of the Church within the reach of the people of the country, who were committed by God to their charge, the Bishop went on:—

"During the campaign you may have heard some people making silly and childish remarks, such as 'We don't see why we are responsible for these people; we never asked them to come into Essex.' We believe God sent these people into our county, and entrusted them to our care because God trusts in us to do our very best for them. We are going to give them the thing which is the dearest and most priceless thing in the whole of our lives—our sacred faith. We shall never cease until the thing is carried right through to the end." (Applause).

THE VITAL PRESENT.

"These years through which we are passing," the Bishop continued, "are years of critical and vital importance, not only to our country, but to the whole of the world. I believe that posterity will look back on these years and say they have been some of the greatest formative periods for good or evil, the world has ever known.

"You have heard that kind of thing said a good many times, and that is one of the dangers of the situation as we become accustomed to it. But these five to ten years through which we are living are years which are going to decide the outlook and history and the hopes of the world, probably for 50 years, and possibly 100 years to come. If things are badly done now the effect of it will be felt to the generation of our children's children, and possibly beyond that."

WANTS CHRISTIAN GOVERNMENT.

"To-day," said Dr. Wilson, "we are in a state of flux. No one can tell us what is going to happen. No one knows what the government of our country is going to be; I don't think I care if it is an aristocracy, a democracy, or even an autocracy, providing it is a government based on Christian principles. (Applause).

"This movement in which we are engaged can be with very considerable truth described as a patriotic movement, because the happiness, peace and progress of our country depends upon the faith of the people much more than on the people who do the talking in Parliament. We are dealing with the root and foundation of the whole thing."

The Bishop also mentioned that last week he had a message from a friend who was going to build them another church, providing it did not cost more than £10,000.

This statement was greeted with applause, and the Bishop added: "The only difficulty is that I don't know where to build the church. There are seven or eight places competing for it in the county."

MAN'S TERRIBLE INJURIES.

Crushed by Four-Ton Lorry.

The terrible injuries received by a man who was run over by a four-ton lorry in Meadway, Seven Kings, on Friday morning, were described to the Coroner (Dr P. B. Skeels) at an inquest held at the Ilford Town Hall on Monday, on William John Monk (55), a coal-merchant, of 73, Tanner-street, Barking.

Mr. Edward Duke appeared for the driver.

Jack Rayner, of 157, Grange-road, Ilford, gave evidence of identification, and said Monk was a strong man and had good sight and hearing.

Replying to Mr. Duke, witness said he could not understand how Mr. Monk could have failed to hear a motor horn sounded quite close to him or a man shouting at him.

Spencer Joseph Complin, 399, Whalebone-lane, said that at 10.45 a.m. on Friday he was driving a delivery van at the junction of Meadway and Ashburton-avenue. He heard shouting, but no motor-horns. It was the driver of a lorry who was shouting. The lorry was not quite in the centre of the junction, and was going at about 10 miles an hour.

He saw Monk crossing from Ashburton-avenue towards Goodmayes. He was looking down and walking slowly. The lorry was about two yards from him. There was no other traffic.

DID NOT HEAR?

The lorry knocked Monk down, Monk seeming not to hear the shouting of the lorry driver.

Witness said he thought it was possible for the driver of the lorry to stop. Monk was not hesitating, but going right across the road.

He thought the man walked straight into the lorry, but it was possible for the lorry to have avoided him by pulling over more to its right, or to have stopped.

The Coroner: Is it right for the jury to understand that the lorry was not being controlled as it should have been?

Witness: I would not say that.

Proceeding, witness said Monk was hit by the near side of the lorry, and was run over by both near-side wheels.

After the accident he heard the driver of the lorry say he had pulled over as far as he could.

Answering Mr. Duke, witness said he had had no experience of driving a four-ton petrol electric lorry. He had been driving a 15-h.p. Ford van for about a year.

WOMAN'S STORY.

Mrs. Lilian Elizabeth Pattle, of 68, Meadway, Ilford, said she was looking out of her bedroom window and saw the lorry in the middle of the crossroads. Monk stepped off the kerb and walked towards the lorry, which was going very slowly.

She heard the driver shout, but Monk took no notice at all. The driver tried to avoid the man, but could not do so. She did not think it was possible for the lorry to have stopped.

DRIVER'S EVIDENCE.

John Joseph Lane, 39, Tunmarsh-road, Plaistow, driver of the lorry, said his vehicle was a four-ton petrol-electric lorry and was fully loaded.

As he approached the cross-roads he was doing about 15 miles an hour. He eased down to allow a coal-trolley to pass in front.

As he got to the corner of Ashburton-avenue he saw a man walking in the road across Ashburton-avenue directly towards him.

He (witness) blew his hooter and, as the man took no notice, he applied his brakes.

"I had not enough speed to avoid the man by swerving out," declared witness, who said the man was ten feet away from him when he first saw him and was looking away from the lorry and walking slowly.

TREAT EVERYONE AS DEAF.

The Coroner said he could not understand why witness did not avoid the man, and witness replied that he blew his horn and expected the man to hear.

"But supposing he was deaf?" said the Coroner. "Are you to knock him down simply because he cannot hear?"

Witness: No, sir. We are not to know he is deaf.

Should you not assume that he is deaf?—No, sir. We assume that people can hear.

The Coroner: You are quite wrong. You are to assume that everyone is deaf, and take every precaution in using the road. It does look as if you could have stopped, and I want your explanation."

Witness said he had gone too far to avoid the man. He had been driving for 24 years, and had a clean licence. There was nothing he could have done to avoid the man.

Dr. Charles McShane, Highfields, Longbridge-road, Barking, said he was called to the scene of the accident, and found Monk dead.

MULTIPLE INJURIES.

The cause of death was multiple injuries, which included a fractured skull, broken ribs, fractured pelvis and a broken arm.

Addressing the jury, the Coroner said: "It is the duty of a pedestrian to use the road properly and to look out, if he is crossing the road, in exactly the same way as the driver of a lorry has to look out and endeavour to avoid anything that may be on the road."

The evidence, he went on, was not clear that the pedestrian was looking out as he should have done. At the same time, was the driver using that due care required of him by law?

Without retiring, the jury returned a verdict of "Accidental death."

GREATER LONDON'S GREATEST FURNISHERS

Established in the HIGH ROAD, ILFORD in 1902

PRINTERS' EFFORT FOR CHARITY.

Auspicious Start of a New Season.

There is every indication that the new series of bohemian concerts, organised by the Ilford Auxiliary of the Printers' Pension Corporation, the first of which was given in the "Cauliflower" Hotel, Ilford, on Saturday, will eclipse even the very high standard of those of previous seasons.

The Masonic Hall of the hotel was filled to capacity, and the audience were raised to a high pitch of enthusiasm by the excellence of a programme presented by the "Comedy Concoctions." Fun and light-heartedness were the keynote of a quick-fire entertainment in which, perhaps, the laurels should go to Archie Taylor, who not only showed that he possesses a baritone voice much above the average, but displayed his versatility when he contributed several character coon studies after the interval.

Then there were Ivy Hamilton, whose pure and rich soprano voice delighted the audience; George Thompson, a comedian with many original ideas; Len Wood, who danced as well as he sang—which is saying a good deal; Young Squibbs, a lively entertainer, and Maudie Swanson, a first-rate singer of chorus songs.

In addition to the solo items, there were many duets and concerted numbers, which well maintained the very high standard of the whole entertainment.

Mr. A. Parrock (hon. organising secretary), who presided on behalf of the members of the committee, explained the charitable objects of the concert, and expressed the belief that the present season would break all records. He announced that the "plate" had realised the satisfactory total of £20.

Mr. Dick Lewis, the honorary musical director, was warmly congratulated on the excellence of the first concert of the season.

BECONTREE AUXILIARY.

The Becontree and District Auxiliary also held their first concert of the season on Saturday. This took place at the new Becontree Social Club, Bennett's Castle-lane, when Messrs. C. J. Millsom and C. J. Shell presided.

Grace March and her concert party, "The Mignons," made their annual appearance, and were as popular as ever. A brilliant combination of six first-class artistes presented many original and novel items.

During the speech Mr. Shell made a speech befitting the occasion.

ROAD COURTESY.

A staunch advocate of courtesy as a solution to the road accident problem, Sir Stenson Cooke, the secretary of the Automobile Association, has had the direction indicators on his car specially inscribed with "Thank You" to acknowledge signals from police, A.A. patrols, and kindly gestures from fellow road users.

This little device invariably engenders goodwill and generally makes for safe and pleasant motoring, or to quote Sir Stenson, "courtesy begets courtesy."

INFRA-RED RAYS.

Mr. Olaf Bloch, chief research chemist to Messrs. Ilford, Limited, lectured on "Infra-red photography and its possible application to cinematography" to a large audience at the Gaumont-British Theatre, Film House London.

Mr. Bloch, who illustrated his remarks with a series of lantern slides, dealt with the latest uses to which infra-red rays could be put. They had, he said, photographic and curative properties, and their presence in daylight had been measured by photo-electric cells. The infra-red process had possible applications both industrial and scientific, medical and microscopical. It might be of particular value to doctors owing to its property of penetrating beneath the skin.

Ancient writings on pieces of leather, hitherto quite undecipherable, had been rendered decipherable by the infra-red process. The whole process had considerable possibilities before it and might be of great value in certain directions. There were examples where infra-red rays could yield results when ultra-violet rays had failed. It also had uses in regard to astronomy and the habits of animals. It was possible that emulsions and filters would be developed of such a kind as to make possible the taking of pictures in complete darkness.

The application of infra-red rays to cinematography was demonstrated before the lecture by the taking of a film and a photograph practically in the dark. A photograph of the audience was taken under similar conditions, and the results were afterwards shown on the screen. This was the first demonstration of the latest invention in cinematography that has been given outside the laboratories, where experiments have been conducted for some time.

THE ANTI-NOISE LEAGUE

Petition to be Presented to Home Secretary.

The Anti-Noise League, the recent formation of which was commented upon in the "Recorder" last week, is preparing a petition to the Home Secretary, demanding the suppression of nocturnal hooting and the stricter enforcement generally of the existing laws dealing with unnecessary motor noise.

At a meeting of the committee of the League on Tuesday, Lord Horder (who presided) explained that there was no antagonism towards the motoring fraternity, and the Automobile Association was lending its full support to the campaign for the mitigation of unnecessary noise.

It was stated that in the House of Lords Lord Buckmaster was introducing a resolution dealing with the whole subject. In the House of Commons Sir John Withers, M.P., had drafted a Bill for noise suppression which would have the backing of the League.

It was announced that the League had already enrolled more than 600 members in the first week, and that applications for membership were pouring into the new offices of the organisation at 18, Old Cavendish-street, Oxford Circus.

DEATH OF MISS E. G. MACMASTER.

A Girl of Brilliant Promise.

By the death of Miss Eva Gertrude Macmaster, of 8, Hatton-terrace, Green-lane, Ilford has lost a girl of many attainments, in social and business spheres, and a career that promised to reach great heights has been severed.

Miss Macmaster, who was only 25 years of age, was the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dugald Macmaster—formerly of "Inskriff," Isle of Mull—to whom the sincere sympathy of a large circle of friends will be extended.

Miss E. G. Macmaster was educated at Ladybank (from where she proceeded by scholarship to Cupar, Fife) and later in London. She received her business training at "Mulley's," Ilford.

She began business with a firm of solicitors in London, and two years later, joined a big international engineering company, who have erected electric pylons in all parts of the world. They appreciated her abilities and promoted her to the company's Paris office, from where she went on to Germany for some months.

Always a willing helper during her three years in Paris, she did much to help charities by public dancing after busy days in the office. In February last, she danced before an audience of 3,000 persons, which included the French President, M. Albert Lebrun, and the British Ambassador, Lord Tyrrell.

She was a member of the Caledonian Society in France and, before she left England, of the Ilford Scottish Association.

Three months ago the illness set in which has now cut down a beautiful flower. Her parents made several visits to Paris, and when Dr. Fell, at the British Hospital there, could do no more they brought her to London. The journey took two days, it being necessary to rest a night upon arrival at Folkestone.

She bore her illness bravely and cheerfully.

The funeral, at St. Mary's, Ilford, today (Thursday) was conducted by the Rev. W. M. Traill.

Weddings.

MR. NORMAN ELCE AND MISS DORIS SHACKLETON.

At St. Clement Dane Church on Wednesday, the wedding took place of Mr. Norman Elce of Hale, near Manchester, and Miss Doris Shackleton, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Shackleton, of 1, Abbotsford-road, Goodmayes

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a wedding gown of white satin and coatee to match, and her veil was held in place by a wreath of orange blossom. She carried a shower bouquet of deep tea roses.

She was attended by her sister, who wore a charming gown of pale pink lace organdi and a silver necklet, the gift of the bridegroom. Her bouquet was of pink and white carnations.

The bride's mother was dressed in a gown of green satin with a shoulder spray of lily of the valley.

Mr. Guy Manley was best man.

About 40 guests attended the reception held in the Caledonian Salon, Holborn Restaurant.

Mr. and Mrs. Elce later left for an Atlantic Isles cruise on S.S. "Homeric."

A GOSSIP'S BOWL

By "PUCK."

A Fighting Parson.

VERY few Ilford people know that the Rev. Alex Mead, minister of the Seven Kings Congregational Church, who is standing as a candidate for Seven Kings in the Borough Council elections, has had an unusually adventurous career from the days of his boyhood. Born at Wood Green, he was only thirteen when he emigrated to Canada—quite an adventure in itself at so early an age. In the Dominion he worked on farms, toiled in mining and lumber camps, engaged in building, and—there is a touch of humour in the contrast—tried his hand at cheesemaking as a vocation. Then, to make up for the schooling he had missed by emigrating so early, he worked his way through Woodstock College, Woodstock, Ontario.

And there he was, in the midst of his books and studies, when the Great War broke out and called him to the most strenuous service of all.

* * *

With the First Contingent.

MR. MEAD'S continued zest for real adventure impelled him to go for the front line. Scorning the "cushy" job, he joined the 1st Canadian Infantry Battalion and sailed for England with the first contingent in 1914. The beginning of the next year found him in France, on the Ypres front, tasting all the rigours of trench warfare. He served continuously with his unit until, in February, 1916, at Messines Ridge, a gunshot wound in the stomach put him out of action for a long time.

Stomach wounds were the most serious of any, the average of cases recovering being only about one in sixty. That he was successfully treated was due as much to his abstemious mode of living and sound physical condition as to the skill of the doctors.

* * *

A Second "Packet."

ALTHOUGH officially registered as 40 per cent disabled for the rest of his days, Mr Mead managed to avoid being discharged from the Army and was engaged on light duties, being for some time attached to the medical corps at Canadian headquarters. By the summer of 1918, however, in spite of his disability, he was back in the front line, this time as a commissioned officer in the Middlesex Regiment. Messines Ridge seems to have been an unlucky place for him, for it was there that he got his second "Blighty," as the troops used to say. In October a shrapnel wound in the ankle put an end to his service in the war. When the news of the signing of the Armistice came through he was walking about on crutches in the Strand.

Distinctions at College.

IN 1921, after two years in the insurance department of the Ministry of Health, Mr. Mead entered the Paton Congregational College and University College, Nottingham. He passed out from Paton College with distinction (an average of 85-90 per cent. in all examinations), winning the prize in Greek New Testament for three years in succession and the prize in Social Theory for two years in succession, and also the principal's prize in Theology. It is noteworthy that he was one of the first students to obtain the Diploma in Social Study awarded jointly by the University College of Nottingham and the Paton Congregational College. This course in social study included such subjects as local government, sanitation and hygiene, factory legislation and social history.

Leaving college in 1925, he came to Ilford as minister of the Seven Kings Congregational Church and has done an immense amount of work for the good of the town generally. Among other things he was mainly responsible for the effort made in the town on behalf of the distressed miners four or five years ago and initiated the effort for the local unemployed that developed into the Ilford Social Service Council. In the London Congregational Union he is a member of the Social Service Committee, and also of the General Purposes Committee of the Metropolitan Essex District Council.

"Too Respectable" Churches.

THE Bishop of Chelmsford (Dr. H. A. Wilson) has made a few pointed remarks in the direction of those too respectable people who go to church on Sundays, dressed in their very best, and look askance at any fellow worshippers in adjacent pews whose clothes are not so immaculate.

When he consecrated the new St. Paul's Church at East Ham, recently, he said: "I hope this new church will not be too respectable. One of the greatest dangers that faces organised religion to-day is the danger of being over-respectable. I hope that if people who are not too well dressed come here they will receive the heartiest possible welcome."

* * *

The "Sunday Clothes" Habit.

THEN he went on: "I am sometimes horribly frightened of the Sunday clothes habit. It is quite right when we come to do homage to God that we should come dressed in our best, but unfortunately it keeps away from the doors of the church multitudes who have no best to wear.

"There are many thousands who are kept out of church for fear of being conspicuous or self-conscious because they are aware of some defect in their appearance. I am not at all sure that many people would not be doing a good Christian service if they were to come to church shabby and untidy in order to encourage the many who are less favoured to come in."

The New Coroner.

FROM the efficient and thorough manner with which he conducted his first inquest in Ilford at the Town Hall on Thursday, it can be seen that the new coroner for Metropolitan Essex, Dr. Percy Bernard Skeels, takes his job very seriously.

He is a stickler for the correct procedure and the carrying out of formalities, and goes exhaustively into details which might not be so conscientiously investigated in other coroners' courts. That is all to the good.

But he is by no means new to the business of inquiring into the circumstances whereby so many unfortunate people meet their deaths in these tragic days.

He was previously an assistant deputy-coroner for the Eastern District of London, deputy-coroner for the Central London District, and deputy to the City of London coroner, and when he appeared last week before the Essex County Council, who appointed him to succeed Dr. A. Ambrose, stated that he had conducted between 700 and 800 inquests during the past three years, over 60 of these being held during the last two months.

The Right Man.

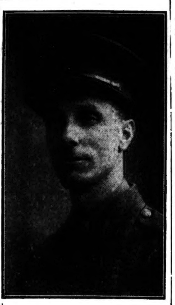
DR. SKEELS was chosen out of 44 applicants for the position, the salary of which is £1,000 a year, out of which he has to pay his travelling and other personal expenses.

He is 52 years of age, and has held several important posts in the past, gaining experience in all branches of the law. Originally, he was managing clerk to a London firm of solicitors, in which he subsequently became a partner, and finally acquired the whole practice.

In addition, he is a skilled medical man, having held honorary appointments on hospital staffs, and made a special study of pathology, disease, and causes of death.

He is an active member of the Medico Legal Society, a member of the Coroners' Society, and a Fellow of the Royal Society of Medicine.

It would be futile in these circumstances, to wish Dr. Skeels success in the discharge of his new duties. Obviously he is the right man for the important post.



MR. HENRY F. GOSLING.

"Oberon" Symphony Orchestra

THE "Oberon" symphony Orchestra, which opened its 34th season with practice at the Cleveland-road Schools on Thursday, has an old-established record. Founded in Ilford for the training of orchestral players and sight reading of good music, it has produced many first-class players, who are now scattered in various parts of the country.

The chief items played on Thursday were Haydns Symphony No. 9 in B flat major; Handel's Suite No. 1, arranged by Henry F. Gosling; "Caliph of Bagdad" overture, and Ballet music from "William Tell."

There are, I hear, vacancies still for strings and wind. The musical director is Mr. Henry F. Gosling, 82, Mortlake-road, Ilford.

Piquant Situations.

IT is not often that we are privileged to witness two such piquant situations as arose at Monday's meeting of the Seven Kings Ratepayers' Association. First we had the spectacle of Councillor H. E. Smith, who is a member of the Ilford Council, asking a question of his father, who is a candidate for Council honours in Seven Kings Ward. Then we had the immeasurable delight of seeing Mr. Harry Wood announce himself as a candidate, speak and withdraw his candidature in the space of a couple of hours. When he announced his intention of standing for election I had a feeling that the astute Mr. Wood had a move up his sleeve.

The Worker.

MR. JOHN BARKER, who has taken over from Mr. G. T. Stoodley the very onerous duties of honorary secretary of the Seven Kings Association, is probably the most perfect of Ilford's many impeccable scribes. For system, method, neatness and punctuality, as well as enthusiasm, there is none who can touch him. He holds a host of other appointments and graduated in the secretary business with the Valentines Sporting Club, for whom he worked as scribe for many years from 1921. He was, incidentally, a founder of that club—and he was still at school then. Since 1923 he has been Press secretary of the club and has written over 600 articles for this paper alone. He was organising secretary of the Ilford Athletic Week in 1925, 26, 27, is on the committee of the Ilford Playing Fields Association, has been treasurer of the Ilford and District Football League for five years. He is now chairman of Valentines Sporting Club, a member of the Ilford Railway Users' Association executive, and also of Ilford Parliament.

* * *

Enthusiast.

YOU might think that enough for one man, but in addition he has sat on one or two Business House committees in the city and is an active member of the City of London Police Reserve, in which he is a sergeant in "A" Division. He has been a member of the executive committee of Seven Kings Ratepayers' Association for three years, and is at present vice-chairman as well as its new secretary. What he does in his spare time I have never learned, but I would wager it was something to do with a committee. He is naturally the first person one thinks about when a job of work requires to be done or it is necessary to form a committee.

* * *

Mr. Stoodley's Work.

NEVERTHELESS he will not find it an easy task to surpass the record of hard work put in for the Seven Kings Association by Mr. Stoodley, who took up the position when it was laid down by Mr. G. H. Dorrill some years ago. He has been mainly instrumental in raising the membership to 900 and only he can say how many letters he has written and odd jobs he has done.

A peculiarity of all associations—and one that is not always pleasing to secretaries—is their touching enthusiasm for instructing officials to write thousands of letters and to send dozens of resolutions in duplicate, triplicate and by the score.

HELP FOR SICK ANIMALS.

P.D.S.A. Concert at Town Hall.

Arranged by the Metropolitan Academy of Music and Dramatic Art, an admirable concert was presented last (Wednesday) evening at the Town Hall, in aid of the People's Dispensary for Sick Animals of the Poor.

The programme was very attractive and much appreciated.

Though sufficient tickets were sold to friends of the Dispensary to produce a substantial profit even before the curtains were raised, it was disappointing to see rows of vacant seats. The artistes deserved a greater compliment.

The items were pleasantly varied and included selections played by Mr. Frederick Horrick's M.A.M. orchestra, violin solos by Miss Joan Tapper, recitations by Miss Peggy Fryer, part songs by Madame Dorothy Syer's M.A.M. Ladies' Choir, and vocal numbers by Frederick Link, Miss Sheila Cahill, Mrs. Ivy Claret and Francis Gray.

At the interval Miss Adam, chief of the Dispensary technical staff, thanked the artistes for their services which they had given voluntarily. She particularly wished, she said, to thank Mr. Donald Ford, who was responsible for the arrangements.

Mr. C. M. A. Steele, deputy chief of the technical staff, associated himself with Miss Adam's remarks. He wished to thank the audience and friends of the Dispensary for their constant support. Without their assistance, their work would be considerably curtailed. As it was, the work of the P.D.S.A. was being extended and he was confident that their progress would be continued.

MISSING MILKMAN MYSTERY.

Seven Kings Man Who Has Disappeared.

The police are trying to trace the missing man.

ESSEX RAMBLING CLUB.

Exploring Little-known Parts of Essex.

On Sunday 28 members of the Essex Rambling Club met at Romford and made their way by train to begin the day's walk from Laindon, under the leadership of Mr. Edwards. It was a walk of great contrasts, of the low hills, rich fields, calm rivers, which the poet tells us are to be found in Essex and in Essex alone.

The ramblers soon left behind them the bungalows of civilisation, and climbing steadily, in richly wooded country, crossed Langdon Hills on the eastern side, thence across field paths into Horndon-on-the-Hill, where a halt was made for lunch.

The afternoon walk was a great contrast to the hilly one of the morning. Field paths were taken towards Orsett and Baker-street, and then, turning north, the ramblers came into the low-lying marshland to the east of the Mar Dyke, with its fens and osier beds (delightful to see, but not to smell!) After a pause for tea the ramblers then made their way by Blankets Farm, and as darkness drew on they were splashing through mud and chasing their train to East Horndon Station. The train was caught and the club despatched on its homeward journey, after a day of varied attractions and excellent walking.

The next ramble will be on Sunday, October 15th, meeting at Billericay Station at 10.25 a.m.

MARVELS OF THE MIND.

Rev. B. Cockett on the Youngest of the Sciences.

A fascinating lecture on "The Marvels of the Mind," following last year's lecture on "Telepathy" was given at the Ilford Congregational Literary Society in Vine Memorial Church on Monday by the President, the Rev. C. Bernard Cockett, M.A.

After reference to the marvels of mechanism, matter and medicine he remarked that the President of the South African Association for the Advancement of Science stated that spiritual agencies were behind the process of evolution and its purpose was man. "There are powers in the universe that canot be studied by either the physicist or chemist."

The lecturer spoke of the evolution of sex, and the problems of being and becoming associated with etaphysics, the incursions of the Superconsciousness in the Old Testament, the appearance of the marvellous man, Jesus Christ, who linked the human and divine together, the story of mediaeval and modern history, with the advent of psychology, the science of the mind, the youngest of the sciences.

Normal psychology deals with thinking, feeling and willing; educational and experimental psychology is interested in various instruments and tests for memory, imagery, fatigue, suggestibility and attention. Body and mind are closely inter-related. We have the focus and margin of consciousness; the sub-consciousness and the super-consciousness Man on the levels is between the heights and the depths.

In the table of ether vibrations, there are unused and uninvestigated sections and abnormal psychology has its secrets, known chiefly to "psychics."

Information was then given as to the nature of dreams and visions, and the strange bonds of sympathy between twins pre-natal heredity, second sight, pre occupation, the power of habit and the power of auto-suggestion, curative, hypnotic and past-hypnotic suggestion.

DUAL PERSONALITIES.

A study was then given of the tragedy of a divided consciousness, Deacon Bodie, Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde, dual, alternating and multiple personality. Examples were given of an illusion, delusion and hallucination, the evils of repression, the complex and the psychological features of insanity. Secret sins and weaknesses influence the unconscious mind and then produce effects that are seen.

Examples were given of the amazing power of the mind over the body, of clairaudience and clairvoyance, and the association of these abnormal phenomena with the cult of spiritualism, for many of its so-called proofs of the presence of discarnate spirits can be explained by abnormal psychology.

Strange experiences and examples were then supplied of a psychic who could enter other people's minds and extract information that was supposed to be secret. The conditions and facts of certain hypnotic experiments were described and the power of a person in a hypnotic sleep to read another's mind. A slight survey of mental, faith and spiritual healing, and a prophecy of the great future for the redeemed and transfigured mind of humanity terminated a most interesting lecture.

Next Monday Mr. F. Spencer Chapman, B.A., F.R.G.S., will give a lantern lecture on "Exploring Greenland."

WORK OF THE HOSPITAL.

Last week the average number of patients resident daily in King George Hospital was 151.2. Fifty-six patients were admitted and 58 discharged.

Attendances in the various departments were: Casualty, 332; massage, 321; X-ray, 58; out-patient, 184.

ILFORD FREE CHURCH.

At a meeting of the Ilford Free Church Council, held on Friday at the High-road Baptist Church, the Rev. C. Bernard Cockett, M.A. presiding, subjects discussed included the Council election, an hospital bazaar stall, and the exploitation of criminals by the Sunday Press.

The Rev. W. H. Fox, hon. secretary of the World's Alliance for International Friendship through the churches subsequently reviewed the present situation of the churches at home and on the Continent. He said the Alliance was working in close harmony with the League of Nations Union in the promotion of peace and disarmament.
